

Contents

Acknowledgements	xiii
List of figures and tables	xv
Abbreviations	xxi
1. Introduction	1
1.1 Speaking as doing	2
1.2 Sentence meaning and utterance meaning	4
1.3 Literal meaning and strategies for its enrichment	7
1.4 Clause types and speech acts	10
1.5 Cross-linguistic comparison	16
1.6 Cross-cultural pragmatics	21
1.7 Structure of the book, target audience, and goals	25
1.8 Summary	27
1.9 Topics for further research	28
1.10 Exercises	29
2. Illocutionary acts and illocutionary force	32
2.1 Meaning and force	33
2.2 Performative and constative utterances	37
2.3 Taxonomies of illocutionary acts	41
2.4 Direct and indirect speech acts	45
2.5 Politeness theory	49
2.6 Conversation analysis	54
2.7 Summary	58
2.8 Topics for further research	59
2.9 Exercises	61

CONTENTS

3. Clauses and clause types	64
3.1 Clauses and sentences	65
3.2 Clause types	69
3.2.1 The function of clause types	70
3.2.2 Construction and composition	72
3.3 Formal exponents of clause types	75
3.4 Intonation	79
3.4.1 Intonation is independent of morphosyntactic clause typing	79
3.4.2 The intonation of questions and statements	82
3.5 Major and minor clause types	84
3.6 Clause type paradigms	87
3.7 Summary	89
3.8 Topics for further research	90
3.9 Exercises	91
4. Functional typology	94
4.1 Comparing languages	95
4.2 Properties languages may have	103
4.2.1 Tone systems	104
4.2.2 Uncommon consonants	104
4.2.3 Rare word orders	105
4.2.4 Highly complex case and gender systems	106
4.3 Properties languages may lack	109
4.3.1 Lateral consonants	109
4.3.2 Plural marking on personal pronouns	110
4.3.3 Distance contrasts in demonstratives	110
4.3.4 Ordinal numbers	111
4.4 Grammaticalization	111
4.5 Language universals	115
4.6 Explanations	120
4.7 Summary	122
4.8 Topics for further research	122
4.9 Exercises	124

CONTENTS

5. Declaratives and assertions	127
5.1 The meaning and force of declaratives	128
5.1.1 Assertive uses	129
5.1.2 Epistemic uses	131
5.1.3 Explicit and implicit performatives	133
5.1.4 Are declarative clauses force-neutral?	135
5.2 English declarative clauses	136
5.2.1 Structural properties	136
5.2.2 The usage of English declarative clauses	138
5.2.3 Modal verbs	139
5.2.4 Declarative questions	141
5.2.5 Declarative commands	144
5.3 A cross-linguistic view on declarative clauses	145
5.3.1 Basic word order patterns and their distribution	146
5.3.2 Interaction with mood and modality	147
5.3.3 Evidentiality	152
5.4 Summary	155
5.5 Topics for further research	155
5.6 Exercises	156
6. Polar interrogatives and yes–no questions	159
6.1 The meaning and force of polar interrogatives	160
6.1.1 Direct and indirect speech acts	162
6.1.2 Constructional polysemy	165
6.1.3 Answers and responses	168
6.2 The form and function of polar interrogatives in English	170
6.2.1 Polar interrogative clauses	170
6.2.2 Interrogative tags (tag questions)	172
6.2.3 The usage of polar interrogatives in English	174
6.3 A cross-linguistic view on polar interrogatives	176
6.3.1 Major strategies to encode yes–no questions	177
6.3.2 Answer systems	182
6.3.3 The usage of polar interrogatives and questions	184
6.4 Summary	187
6.5 Topics for further research	188
6.6 Exercises	189

7. Constituent interrogatives and content questions	193
7.1 Questionhood and content questions	194
7.1.1 The meaning and force of constituent interrogatives	195
7.1.2 The social economics of questions	199
7.2 The form and function of constituent interrogatives in English	201
7.2.1 Types and functions of interrogative words	202
7.2.2 The position of interrogative words	204
7.2.3 Constructions based on constituent interrogatives	206
7.2.4 The usage of constituent interrogatives in English	207
7.3 A cross-linguistic view on constituent interrogatives	210
7.3.1 The marking of constituent interrogatives	210
7.3.2 The position of interrogative words	213
7.3.3 Meaning and form of interrogative words	218
7.3.4 The usage of constituent interrogatives	222
7.4 Summary	224
7.5 Topics for further research	225
7.6 Exercises	226
8. Imperatives and commands	229
8.1 The meaning and force of imperatives	230
8.1.1 Imperatives and illocutionary force	231
8.1.2 The meaning of imperatives	235
8.2 English imperatives	238
8.2.1 Structural properties	238
8.2.2 The usage of imperatives in English	244
8.3 A cross-linguistic view on imperatives and related categories	246
8.3.1 The encoding of imperatives	247
8.3.2 Negative imperatives: prohibitives	254
8.3.3 Related categories and strategies of encoding	258
8.4 Summary	262
8.5 Topics for further research	263
8.6 Exercises	264

CONTENTS

9. Exclamatives and exclamations	267
9.1 The meaning and force of exclamations	268
9.1.1 Affective stance, scalar extent, and speaker viewpoint	269
9.1.2 Factivity and referential identifiability	270
9.2 Exclamative clauses in English	272
9.2.1 The encoding of exclamations	273
9.2.2 The usage of exclamative clauses in English	278
9.2.3 Explaining the usage of what/how -exclamatives	283
9.3 A cross-linguistic view on exclamatives and exclamations	287
9.3.1 Constructions encoding exclamations	288
9.3.2 Languages boasting an exclamative clause type	291
9.4 Summary	295
9.5 Topics for further research	296
9.6 Exercises	298
10. Minor clause types	301
10.1 Form types	302
10.1.1 Minor clause types introduced by wh -forms	302
10.1.2 Minor clause types introduced by modal verbs	305
10.1.3 Finite subordinate clauses	307
10.1.4 Non-finite subordinate clauses	308
10.1.5 Incredulity response constructions	308
10.1.6 Formulae	309
10.2 Functions of minor clause types	309
10.3 Insubordination	311
10.3.1 Between langue and parole	312
10.3.2 Degrammaticalization and reanalysis	313
10.3.3 Insubordination and ellipsis	317
10.4 A cross-linguistic view on minor clause types	319
10.4.1 Subordinate verb forms	319
10.4.2 Subordinating conjunctions and complementizers	321
10.4.3 Subordinating interrogative words	324
10.4.4 Subordinate word order	326
10.4.5 Functions of insubordination	326
10.5 Summary	329

10.6 Topics for further research	330
10.7 Exercises	331
11. Performative verbs and social actions	335
11.1 Social actions	336
11.2 Performative verbs: the lexical encoding of social actions	342
11.2.1 English assertives	347
11.2.2 English commissives	348
11.2.3 English directives	348
11.2.4 English declaratives (declarations)	349
11.2.5 English expressives	350
11.3 The performative hypothesis	351
11.4 A cross-linguistic view on performative verbs	354
11.4.1 Differences in form	354
11.4.2 Differences in meaning	356
11.4.3 Distributional differences	357
11.5 Summary	360
11.6 Topics for further research	361
11.7 Exercises	362
12. Summary and outlook	365
12.1 The morphosyntax of clause types	366
12.2 The meaning of clause types	369
12.3 The force of clause types	372
12.4 The distribution of clause types	377
12.5 A gradient model of clause types	382
12.6 Summary	390
12.7 Topics for further research	390
12.8 Exercises	391
References	395
Language index	415
Name index	417
Subject index	422