

1	Enabling Mobilities: Reinterpreting Concepts and Tools	1
1.1	Introduction	1
1.2	Overcoming the Limits of the Utilitarian Approach to Mobilities	3
1.3	Conceptual and Operational Advancements in Transport Planning Decisions	6
	References	7
2	Accessibility: Enablement by Access to Valued Opportunities	11
2.1	Introduction	11
2.2	A Social Take on Accessibility	12
2.3	Shaping Socially-Oriented Accessibility Evaluations	14
2.4	Methodology	15
2.5	Opportunities and Accessibility in Bogotá	17
2.6	A Place-Based (Re)discussion of Accessibility	21
2.7	Conclusions	23
	References	24
3	Emerging Mobilities: New Practices, New Needs	27
3.1	Introduction: Why We Deal with Emerging Mobilities	27
3.2	Long Distance Commuters as Emerging Mobility. Research Evidence	29
3.3	Long Distance Commuters in Italy. A Focus on the Milan Urban Region	32
3.4	Long Distance Commuters: Beyond Just Displacement	38
	References	40
4	Big Data: Hidden Challenges for a Fair Mobility Planning	43
4.1	Introduction	44
4.2	What Is Big Data?	45

4.3	Big Data and Urban Mobility Policy	47
4.4	Can Big Data Enable Mobilities? Four Open Issues	49
4.4.1	The Information of Big Data Is Not Complete	49
4.4.2	Data Does Not Speak for Itself	51
4.4.3	Not Everyone Is a 'Sensor'	52
4.4.4	Corporations Are Not Suitable Mobility Planners	53
4.5	Conclusions	54
	References	55
5	Stations: Nodes and Places of Everyday Life	59
5.1	Introduction	59
5.2	Coordinating Transport Accessibility and Land Uses: The Role of the Stations	61
5.3	Classifying Railway Stations in the Lombardy Region	64
5.3.1	Node Place Model Application	67
5.3.2	TOD Index Application	71
5.3.3	Comparing Node-Place Model and Potential TOD Index	74
5.4	Policy Implications: Stations of Everyday Life	75
	References	77
6	The Policy Implications of Enabling Mobilities	81
6.1	Introduction	81
6.2	Policy Aims	82
6.3	Ethical Principles	84
6.4	The Design of Policy for Enabling Mobilities	86
6.5	The Implementation of Policy for Enabling Mobilities	87
6.6	The Evaluation of Policy for Enabling Mobilities	89
6.7	Conclusions	90
	References	91
7	Open Directions for Enabling Mobilities	95
7.1	Introduction	95
7.2	Conceptual Issues: What Do Enabling Mobilities Mean?	96
7.3	Operational Issues: Planning for Enabling Mobilities	97
7.4	Policy and Political Issues: Enabling Mobilities in Real-World Processes	98
7.5	Conclusions	99
	References	100