

Contents

Identity and Solidarity in the Foreign Policy of EU Members: Renewing the Research Agenda
Elsa Tulmets (Institute of International Relations, Prague)	11
Towards a dual identity in foreign policies	14
Self and other in foreign policy	15
A dual identity in foreign policy	16
Defining the political self	17
Defining the historical self	19
A possible clash between political and historical identities	21
Solidarity and foreign policy	22
East Central European foreign policies towards the Eastern neighbourhood: some outcomes	27
Czech Foreign Policy Identity and Practice towards Eastern Europe: From Ignorance to Assistance
Tomáš Weiss (Charles University, Prague)	34
Investigating Czech foreign policy identity	35
Foreign policy identity based on European values	35
The evolution of foreign policy priorities	38
The focus on good neighbourly relations and transatlantic relations	38
Changing priorities after the EU/NATO accessions	39
Implementation in the Eastern neighbourhood	42
A recent shift in the expression of political solidarity	42
A consistent assistance policy	46
An active pool of non-governmental organisations	48
Conclusions	49

Another 'Mission in the East'?

The Polish Policy towards the Eastern Neighbourhood

Melchior Szczepanik (Institute for Public Affairs / Senate of Poland, Warsaw)

53

The historical context of the Polish Eastern policy	54
Eastern neighbours in the Polish foreign policy strategy	57
Establishing relations with the remodelled neighbourhood	57
Romantics and minimalists	59
Polish policy after the NATO/EU accession: championing the cause of the Eastern neighbours	62
Political and historical identity as driving forces of the romantic strategy	66
Foreign policy implementation	69
A symbolic support for the Orange Revolution	71
The launch of the Eastern Partnership	72
A modest but resolutely east-oriented assistance policy	74
Conclusion	75

The Eastern Partnership in Estonian Foreign Policy

Vahur Made (Estonian School of Diplomacy / Estonian Center of Eastern Partnership)

78

Defining Estonia's foreign policy identity	80
Is Russia the only game in town?	80
From an 'authoritarian borderland' to 'prospective future EU member states'	83
Towards a consistent foreign policy implementation?	84
From a democracy promoter to a model reformer: the rise of the Estonian messianic foreign policy	84
Estonian assistance policy and NGO engagement	87
Conclusion: two competing discourses for explaining Estonia's national interests in the context of the Eastern Partnership	90

The Challenges of Lithuanian and Latvian Policy towards the Eastern Neighborhood

Katerina Kesa (INALCO, Paris)

94

Latvia and Lithuania as active promoters of the Eastern Neighborhood	95
The expression of a Baltic foreign policy identity	96
The Eastern neighbourhood as a means to find a place in the EU	98
Latvian and Lithuanian solidarity towards the Eastern neighborhood	101
A new solidarity with origins in the past	102
The 'Coloured Revolutions': a push to Latvian and Lithuanian involvement in the Neighborhood	103
The need to choose between two alliances	104
The support of further EU and NATO accessions	105
A modest but active assistance policy	107
The multilateral level of assistance: technical aid and lobbying	108
Transfer of Latvian and Lithuanian skills and experience at the bilateral level	109
Conclusion	112

Slovakia's Eastern Policy: A Blend of Pragmatism and Solidarity

Lucia Najšlová (Europeum, Prague / SFPA, Bratislava)

116

Foreign policy identity and capitalizing on 'Europeanness'	118
Return to Europe: a vocation of pragmatism, values and the need to belong	118
Post-2004 priorities: they're watching, we have to help	122
Foreign policy implementation	126
Political effort: Many honest declarations	126
Assistance policy: a commitment to the East not always underpinned by money	128
Diplomacy and NGOs working hand in hand: the National Conventions	131
Conclusions	135

New Eastern Perspectives?

A Critical Analysis of Romania's Relations with Moldova, Ukraine and the Black Sea Region

Irina Angelescu (Graduate Institute of Geneva) 140

Investigating Romania's foreign policy identity 142

 On Romania's politics of identity 142

 Romania's foreign policy after 1989: the Western consensus 144

A selective role in the Eastern neighbourhood 147

 The impact of the EU and NATO membership (quest)
 on relations with the neighborhood 147

 Relations with Moldova 148

 Relations with Ukraine 153

 Champions of the Black Sea Area Cause? 155

Conclusions 158

A Limited Priority: Hungarian Policy in the Eastern Neighbourhood

András Rácz (Hungarian Institute of International Affairs Budapest) 160

The Hungarian foreign policy identity and Eastern Europe 162

 'Eastern winds' – the current Hungarian concept of the East 162

 Limited commitment towards Eastern Europe 163

The Hungarian neighbourhood policy towards Eastern Europe:
concepts and objectives 165

 The Hungarian neighbourhood policy towards Eastern Europe
 1990–2004 165

 Hungarian and EU neighbourhood policy in the post-enlargement context: partially overlapping priorities 169

Implementation of Hungarian foreign policy in Eastern Europe 172

 Diplomatic representation and high-level visits 173

 Development assistance 176

 The Eastern Partnership and Hungary 180

Conclusion 182

Mapping Slovenian Policy in the Neighbourhood Polona Bunič, Zlatko Šabič (University of Ljubljana)	185
Slovenia's foreign policy discourse on development assistance and the countries of the Eastern neighbourhood	188
Slovenia's assistance policy to the Eastern neighbourhood: policy implementation	193
Conclusion	199
Bulgarian Foreign Policy in the Neighbourhood on the Brink of the 21st Century: Between Identity and Solidarity Ivan Nachev (New Bulgarian University, Sofia)	202
The main principles of the foreign policy	204
Cooperation in the Western Balkans as Bulgaria's main foreign policy aim	205
Bulgaria's relations with the Eastern neighbourhood	207
From the Black Sea Economic Cooperation to the Black Sea Synergy	208
The challenges of Bulgaria's foreign policy in the Eastern neighbourhood	211
The place and role of Bulgaria in the EU foreign policy – between identity and solidarity	213
Conclusion	214
Conclusion Elsa Tulmets (Institute of International Relations, Prague)	217
Bibliography	223
Index	251
Notes on Contributors	253