Contents

Acknow	ledgements	iv
Series e	ditors' preface	V
	11(3) logitimaternivi Southe under the her block mentile me
1ddiad	Introduction	itw still
2	Discourse, capital, intersectionality and precarity	9
3	Globalisation, neoliberalism and welfare state models: a comparative analysis	24
4	Failing health and social care in the UK: austerity, neoliberal ideology and precarity	44
5	Public health, emergency settings and end of life care	60
6	The COVID-19 health and social care challenge	87
7	Innovative solutions and cultural change	108

Appendices	116
References	121
Index	150

to the impact of globalization and related processor, these contributing to the entropy of the national boundaries which originally famed the study of agoing. From this has come the enterpence of innes explored in various result ibutions to the strifes, for examples the impact of coloural diversion changing primers of working bid, new forms of inequality, the table of this city in later life, and white i construct. Third, a key concern of the series is to explore intentisciplinary connections of the disciplinary boundaries and this series provide a critical assessment of the disciplinary boundaries and torritories inducating later life, are then or the process, new perspective and approaches to the 21st contory.

Of particular importance has been the orbits in health and social circle driven by changing patterns of connership and delivery of strivens, circle in public spending, and the impact of CSWID-19. These changes have themelves interacted with global changes in syltems of ascend particular, these having the effect of introducing new forms of ascentrus and presently Green this context, Bethany Simmonds provides a significant contribution to the Policy Press/DSG series, filtuainating both the tespart of two liberal polities on eider people, but also staff working worker the care system. Her study outlines the wider score and social context in which care is sinuated, along with valuable case studies of the experiences of older people themeshes. The book should prove estential crading for policy makers,