

Contents

Part I A New World of Work

1 The Global Perspective: Macro-political Considerations	3
1.1 Demographic Changes	3
1.1.1 The Old Are Getting Older	5
1.1.2 Shrinking Numbers of Young People	6
1.1.3 A More Diverse Society	8
1.2 Socio-political Trends	9
1.2.1 'Family' Can Mean Many Things	10
1.2.2 The Rise of Living Alone	11
1.2.3 Gender	12
1.3 Generational Diversity and the Battle for Distribution	14
1.3.1 Traditionalists and Baby Boomers	15
1.3.2 Generation X	15
1.3.3 Generation Y	16
1.3.4 Generation Z	16
1.3.5 The Failure of the Intergenerational Contract	17
1.3.6 Generational Equity and the Distribution of Scarce Resources	18
1.4 Economic Factors	19
1.4.1 Employment	19
1.4.2 Qualifications	21
1.4.3 Jobs in a World Shaped by Industry 4.0	22
1.5 The Coronavirus-Effect	24
1.5.1 Demography and Social Policy	24
1.5.2 Generational Conflicts	24
1.5.3 Social and Economic Policies	25
1.5.4 World of Work	25
1.5.5 Digitalisation and Remote Work from Home	26
References	26
2 The Company Perspective: Micro-Political Considerations	29
2.1 The Interminable Shortage of Skilled Workers	29
2.1.1 The Gripes of Entrepreneurs vs. Labour Market Research	29

2.1.2	The Choice Between Study or Work	30
2.1.3	STEMs	31
2.1.4	Digital Transformation: Solution or Problem?	32
2.2	Diversity in the Workforce	33
2.2.1	Generational Diversity	34
2.2.2	Multiculturalism	36
2.2.3	Diversity of Interests	39
2.3	Performance (Dis)Orientation	41
2.3.1	Do Young People Lack Motivation?	41
2.3.2	Does Productivity Decrease with Age?	43
2.4	Industry 4.0	46
2.4.1	Increased Productivity	46
2.4.2	Impact on the World of Work	47
2.5	The Coronavirus-Effect	48
2.5.1	Work-Life-Blending Versus Work-Life-Separation	48
2.5.2	Homeworking Works!	49
2.5.3	The Generation Gaps Just Got Smaller	50
2.5.4	Adopting a 'Feel-Good' Management Style	50
2.5.5	VUCA Plus Covid-19	51
	References	51
3	The Ego Perspective: Workforce Considerations	53
3.1	A Working World of Unlimited Opportunities	53
3.1.1	'We Have Time'	53
3.1.2	'The World Is Open to Us'	55
3.1.3	Knowledge Is Relative	55
3.2	A New Distribution of Power	56
3.2.1	From Baby Boomers to Gen Z	56
3.2.2	From Employer to Employee Market	57
3.2.3	Increased Expectations	58
3.3	We Are All Individuals	60
3.3.1	Variety of Interests	60
3.3.2	Work-Life Balance	61
3.3.3	Individual Career Paths	62
3.4	The Coronavirus-Effect	63
3.4.1	Decline in Loneliness	64
	References	65
Part II Expectations of Good Work Opportunities—and the Sobering Reality
4	Expectations of a Good Job	69
4.1	What Is a 'Good Work Opportunity' Today?	69
4.1.1	Increased Expectations	69
4.1.2	Diversity of Interests and Values	71
4.1.3	The Attractive Employer	73

4.2	Survey: Employee Expectations of a Good Job	75
4.2.1	The Research Question	76
4.2.2	Survey and Method	76
4.2.3	The Results	77
4.2.4	Conclusions	85
4.3	The Coronavirus Effect	86
4.3.1	Stress and the Anxieties of Employees	87
4.3.2	Working from Home	87
4.3.3	The Deal: Loyalty in Return for Accommodations	88
4.3.4	Conclusions	89
	References	89
Taking Stock: Multiple and Complex Challenges, But No Effective Solutions		91
5.1	Stakeholder Dissatisfaction	91
5.1.1	Role Conflicts	91
5.1.2	Cost Pressure	92
5.1.3	Self-Image/External Image	93
5.2	Economic Science Approaches	93
5.2.1	Transaction Cost Theory	94
5.2.2	The Principal Agent Theory	94
5.3	Behavioural Science Approaches	96
5.3.1	Social Exchange Theories	96
5.3.2	Motivational Theory Approaches	97
5.4	Historical Development	99
5.4.1	Scientific Management vs. Human Relations Movement	99
5.4.2	The Current HRM Controversy	101
5.4.3	Reorganisation or Dissolution of the HR Department?	102
	References	105
Part III Effective HRM in an Individualized and Fragile Working Environment
Rethinking Human Resources Management		109
6.1	Personnel Management vs. Human Resources Management	109
6.1.1	Leadership Is Relationship	109
6.1.2	Human Resources Management	111
6.2	A Single Process with a Single Aim	112
6.3	The HR Actors	115
6.3.1	The Top Management	116
6.3.2	The Line Managers	117
6.3.3	The HR Professionals	117
6.4	The Shoulder-to-Shoulder Approach	118
	References	119

7	The Recruitment Process	121
7.1	Staff Planning	121
7.1.1	Quantitative and Qualitative Staffing Needs	121
7.1.2	Challenges Within the New World of Work	122
7.1.3	Long-Term Planning Under Uncertainty	123
7.1.4	Practical Tips and the Division of Responsibilities in Staff Planning	124
7.2	HR Marketing	125
7.2.1	Informing, Encouraging Action—and Brand Building!	125
7.2.2	Target Groups	126
7.2.3	Employer Branding: Methods and Channels	129
7.2.4	Practical Tips and the Division of Responsibilities in HR Marketing	132
7.3	Staff Selection	133
7.3.1	Phase 1: The Starting Situation	134
7.3.2	Phase 2: Candidate Screening	135
7.3.3	Phase 3: Selection Interviews	135
7.3.4	Phase 4: Recruitment Tests	136
7.3.5	Phase 5: The Decision	137
7.3.6	Practical Tips and the Division of Responsibilities in Staff Selection	137
7.4	Staff Hiring	139
7.4.1	The Formal Employment Contract	139
7.4.2	The Psychological Employment Contract	140
7.4.3	Employee Onboarding	141
7.4.4	Practical Tips and the Division of Responsibilities in Staff Hiring	142
	References	143
8	The Staff Management Process	145
8.1	Staff Deployment	145
8.1.1	Delivery on a Promise	145
8.1.2	What Work Should Be Done?	146
8.1.3	Where Should Work Be Done?	147
8.1.4	When Should Work Be Done?	148
8.1.5	Smart Working (from Home)	150
8.1.6	Practical Tips and the Division of Responsibilities in Staff Deployment	151
8.2	Feedback Process	153
8.2.1	Day-to-Day Feedback	153
8.2.2	360-Grad-Feedback	154
8.2.3	Annual Staff Appraisals	155
8.2.4	Management by Objectives	155

8.2.5	Performance Evaluation	156
8.2.6	Practical Tips and the Division of Responsibilities in the Feedback Process	156
8.3	Remuneration	158
8.3.1	Principles of Remuneration	158
8.3.2	The Goal: Work Delivered by Satisfied Employees	160
8.3.3	Remuneration Strategy	161
8.3.4	Personalisation Through Flexible Cafeteria-Style Plans	162
8.3.5	Practical Tips and the Division of Responsibilities in Remuneration	164
8.4	Leadership Challenges of the Coronavirus Crisis	165
8.4.1	Diversity Management	165
8.4.2	Individual Work-Life Balance	167
8.4.3	Employee Well-Being as Part of Company Culture	170
8.4.4	Practical Tips and the Division of Responsibilities in Dealing with Leadership Challenges	172
	References	174
9	The Staff Development Process	175
9.1	The Revival of Staff Development	175
9.1.1	How Did We Get Here?	176
9.1.2	Employability	178
9.2	The Staff Development Process	180
9.2.1	The Seven Stages of the Staff Development	180
9.2.2	Education and Training	182
9.3	Life-Phase Oriented Staff Development	185
9.3.1	A Question of Age (or Not)	185
9.3.2	Personal Development Plans	188
9.3.3	The Perfect Career Wave: Not Ladder!	190
9.4	Staff Development from an Organisational Perspective	191
9.4.1	Knowledge Transfer	191
9.4.2	Succession Planning	191
9.4.3	Employee Retention	192
9.4.4	Career Planning Options	192
9.4.5	The Question of Return on Investment	193
9.4.6	The Actors	194
9.5	Conclusions and Practical Tips	196
	References	198