

Contents

| | |
|---|-----|
| List of Illustrations | vii |
| Acknowledgments | xi |
| Introduction | 1 |
| Reading the Environment in Popular Cinema | |
| 1. Ecology and Spectacle in Oil Wells of Baku: Close View : The First Eco-Disaster Film? | 19 |
| 2. Environmental Politics: Pare Lorentz's The River and the Tennessee Valley Authority | 37 |
| 3. Reconstructing Underground Urban Space in Dark Days | 57 |
| 4. Ecology, Place, and Home in Dark City : Is It Our Nature to Live in the Dark? | 73 |
| 5. Environmental Nostalgia and The Tragic Eco-Hero: The Case of Soylent Green and the 1970s Eco-Disaster Film | 91 |
| 6. The Comic Eco-Hero: Spoofing Eco-Disaster in Eight Legged Freaks | 109 |
| 7. Eco-Terrorism in Film: Pale Rider and the Revenge Cycle | 127 |
| 8. Car Culture and the Transformation of the American Landscape in The Fast and the Furious | 143 |

| | |
|--|-----|
| 9. Film Ecology: Simulated Construction and Destruction in Hooper | 165 |
| 10. Apocalypse as a "Return to Normality" in 28 Days Later and 28 Weeks Later | 181 |
| Conclusion | |
| Al Gore's An Inconvenient Truth and its Skeptics: A Case of Environmental Nostalgia | 195 |
| Filmography | 207 |
| Works Cited | 215 |
| Index | 223 |