

Contents

Acknowledgements	viii
Introduction	1
Why write a book about vision in language education?	1
Why focus on both learners and teachers in the same book?	3
What is the point of mixing the terms ‘vision’ and ‘motivation’?	3
What is this book intended to offer?	4
Who are we and how have we come to write this book?	5
Part I Theoretical overview	7
1 The role of vision in motivating human behaviour	8
1.1 What is ‘vision’ and why does it matter?	9
1.2 Vision, motivation and the self	11
1.3 Mental imagery	14
1.4 Language learning motivation and future L2 self-guides	20
1.5 Motivation and vision in language teachers’ development	22
1.6 Summary	28
Part II Motivating language learners through vision	31
2 Creating the language learner’s vision	34
What do we mean by ‘constructing’ a vision?	34
Why is ‘agency’ important?	35
Towards designing a ‘visionary’ programme	36

Contents

2.1	Understanding students' current identity concerns and lived experiences	38
2.2	Providing regular tasters of desired future states	45
2.3	Applying guided imagery	48
2.4	Applying guided narratives	57
2.5	Ensuring ample exposure to role models	62
3	Strengthening the vision through imagery enhancement	65
3.1	Training imagery skills	66
3.2	Building creative visual and narrative tasks into the teaching routine	72
3.3	Encouraging students to keep learning journals	77
3.4	Harnessing the power of virtual worlds	78
3.5	Strengthening the whole group's vision	82
4	Substantiating the vision by making it plausible	90
4.1	Cultivating realistic beliefs about language learning	90
4.2	Creating channels for constructive reality self-checks	92
4.3	Eliminating obstacles and barriers	97
5	Transforming the vision into action	99
5.1	Providing students with models of self-relevant roadmaps	101
5.2	Mapping out pathways to success through visualisation	103
5.3	Providing students with individual guidance	105
6	Keeping the vision alive	107
6.1	Including regular reminders and 'priming stimuli' in the teaching content	107
6.2	Engaging learners' transportable identities	109
6.3	Helping to re-envisage 'broken' visions	112

7	Counterbalancing the vision by considering failure	114
7.1	Offering regular reminders of the negative consequences of not succeeding	115
7.2	Foregrounding the ought-to self	116
7.3	Integrating images of feared selves into visualisations?	118
	Part III Motivation and vision for language teachers	123
8	(Re-)igniting the flame of teacher vision	125
8.1	Understanding who we are for insights into who we want to become	125
8.2	Engaging with the 'whys': values, moral purposes and teaching philosophies	130
8.3	Generating images of ideal language teacher selves	136
8.4	Sparking creative tension	138
9	Guarding the flame of teacher vision	145
9.1	Staying connected to the original vision in the face of detrimental ought-to self-images	145
9.2	Building resilience through vision boosters and safety zones	147
9.3	Processing our fears and turning adversity into allies	150
9.4	Sustaining hope	154
	Conclusion	157
	References	163
	Index	176