D. Dynamic Welfare Analysis of Market Power	1.117

(1) Innovation and Welfare	1.117
(2) Different Views	1.119
(3) Some Empirical Results	1.122
(4) The 'New Economy'	1.123
(5) Some Concluding Remarks	1.129
E. Market Definition	1.130
(1) Product Market Definition	1.135
(a) Demand-side Substitution	1.137
(b) The SSNIP Test	1.143
(c) Elasticity Concepts and the Diversion Ratio	1.149
(d) Supply-side Substitution	1.155
(2) The Relevant Geographic Market	1.164
(a) Demand-side Substitution	1.165
(b) Supply-side Substitution	1.167
(3) Specific Issues in the Context of Market Definition	1.170
(a) Chains of Substitution	1.171
(b) Price Discrimination	1.173
(c) Captive Production	1.176
(4) Further Considerations	1.179
(a) Market Definition in Practice	1.179
(b) Defining the Market: Not an End in Itself	1.183
F. Market Power and Dominance	1.185
(1) Market Power	1.186
(a) Concept	1.186
(b) Identification of (Static) Market Power	1.195
(2) Dominance	1.204
(a) Single Dominance	1.205
(b) Collective Dominance	1.211
(3) Enhancing Market Power	1.214
(a) Merger with a Competitor: Unilateral versus Coordinated Effects	1.216
(b) Exclusionary Strategies	1.229
G. Empirical Methods for Market Definition and the Assessment of Market Power	1.238
(1) Analysis of Prices and Price Movements	1.242
(2) Analysis of Price Elasticities of Demand	1.254
(3) Critical Loss Analysis	1.277
(4) Price Concentration Analysis	1.283
(5) Event Analysis	1.289
(6) Analysis of Bidding Data	1.293
(7) Merger Simulation	1.304
 2 The Enforcement System under Regulation 1/2003
A. The Legal Exception System	2.01
(1) Introduction	2.01
(2) The Aims of the System Change	2.04
(a) Increased Application of Articles 81 and 82 at Member State Level	2.05
(b) Commission Focus on Enforcement	2.09
