

Contents

CHAPTER I	E-commerce, the Business Organisation and the Legislator
I	Introduction	3
2	E-commerce	4
2.1	Defining e-commerce	4
2.2	E-commerce techniques	6
2.3	Enabling services	8
2.4	Different types of e-commerce	9
3	E-commerce and the business organisation	11
3.1	E-commerce business models	11
3.2	Opportunities for business organisations	13
3.3	Barriers for e-commerce	14
4	E-commerce and the legislator	15
4.1	Problems posed to law	15
4.2	Regulatory initiatives with regard to e-commerce	17
5	Outline	19
CHAPTER 2	The E-commerce Directive
I	General	25
2	Scope of applicability	26
2.1	Information society services	26
2.2	Exemptions	32
3	The country of origin principle	34
3.1	General	34
3.2	Coordinated field	34
3.3	Exemptions	37
3.4	Derogation procedure	38
3.5	Country of establishment	39
3.6	Country of origin principles in other secondary legislation	42
3.7	Consequences of the country of origin principle	42
3.8	The country of origin principle and primary European legislation	44
3.8.1	Mutual recognition	44
3.8.2	The problem of reverse discrimination	47
3.8.3	The country of origin principle and minimum harmonisation	47
3.8.4	DocMorris	48
3.9	The country of origin principle and private international law	49
3.10	Conclusion	51
4	General information duties	52
5	E-advertising	55

5.1	Introduction	55
5.2	Commercial communications	56
5.3	Transparency requirements	57
5.4	Mutual recognition of commercial communications	59
6	E-mail marketing	60
6.1	Introduction	60
6.2	General rules	61
7	E-contracting	63
7.1	Introduction	63
7.2	E-contracting must be possible	65
7.3	Information duties	65
7.4	Codes of conduct	67
7.5	Contract terms	68
7.6	Contract formation	70
7.6.1	General rules	70
7.6.2	Moment of contract formation	71
7.7	Miscellaneous	73
7.7.1	Agreeing otherwise in B2B relations	73
7.7.2	The position of an electronic marketplace	73
7.7.3	Individual communication	74
7.7.4	Automated contracting and the use of agents	75
7.7.5	Overview	75
CHAPTER 3	The Distant Selling Directive
1	General	79
2	Scope of applicability	80
2.1	Distant consumer contracts	80
2.2	Exemptions	82
3	Pre-contractual information duties	83
4	Post-contractual information duties	86
4.1	Information confirmation	86
4.2	Exemptions	87
4.3	Durable medium	88
5	Right of withdrawal	89
5.1	Cooling-off period	89
5.2	The exercise of the right of withdrawal	90
5.3	Exemptions	91
5.4	Soft products	92
5.5	Overview	93
6	Additional rights	93
CHAPTER 4	The Privacy Directive
1	General	97

2	Scope of applicability	98
2.1	Processing of personal data	98
2.2	Exemptions	103
3	Legitimate data processing	103
4	Requirements for proper data processing	106
5	Information duties	107
6	Rights of the data subject	108
7	Privacy policy	110
CHAPTER 5	The Directive on Privacy and Electronic Communications
I	General	113
2	Scope of applicability	114
2.1	Electronic communication services	114
2.2	Subscribers and users	115
3	E-mail marketing	116
3.1	General rules	116
3.2	Opt-in e-mail marketing	117
3.2.1	Prohibition for spam	117
3.2.2	Prior consent	118
3.3	Soft opt-in e-mail marketing	120
3.3.1	An exception to the opt-in regime	120
3.3.2	Similar products	121
3.3.3	Existing customer base	122
3.3.4	Concluding remarks	122
4	Cookies and comparable programs	123
4.1	Introduction	123
4.2	The legal position of cookies and comparable programs	124
CHAPTER 6	The Directive on Electronic Signatures
I	General	129
2	Scope of applicability	131
3	Electronic signatures	132
3.1	General	132
3.2	Digital signatures	133
3.3	Certificates and PKI	134
4	Relevant definitions	135
4.1	The legal definition of electronic signatures	135
4.2	Other relevant definitions	137
5	The legal status of electronic signatures	138
5.1	Level 1: The signature is to be treated equally to the handwritten signature	138
5.2	Level 2: The electronic signature cannot be denied legal effectiveness	140
5.3	Critical remarks	141

CHAPTER 7	The Brussels Regulation
1	General	145
2	Scope of applicability	146
2.1	General	146
2.2	Exemptions	147
3	General rule	147
4	Alternative rules of jurisdiction	148
4.1	General	148
4.2	Contracts	149
4.3	Tort	150
4.4	Operations of a branch, agency or other establishment	150
5	Special rules of jurisdiction	151
5.1	Introduction	151
5.2	Consumer contracts	152
5.2.1	General	152
5.2.2	Pursuing or directing commercial activities	153
5.2.3	Localising the e-commerce activities	155
5.2.4	Branch, agency or other establishment	156
5.3	Prorogation	156
CHAPTER 8	The Rome Convention
1	General	161
2	Scope of applicability	161
2.1	General	161
2.2	Exemptions	162
3	Law applicable to international contracts	163
3.1	Freedom of choice	163
3.2	Absence of a choice	164
3.2.1	Most closely connected	164
3.2.2	The characteristic performance	164
3.2.3	Habitual residence	165
4	Consumer contracts	165
4.1	Introduction	165
4.2	Protected status of the consumer	166
4.3	Specific invitation	166
4.4	Other concerns	168
5	Tortuous behaviour	168
CHAPTER 9	Conclusions
1	Introduction	173
2	Technology neutral	173
3	Contract law neutral	174
4	Country of origin principle	175

CONTENTS

5	B2C e-commerce	176
6	E-mail marketing	176
7	Electronic signatures	177
8	Patchwork	177
	Bibliography	179
	Abbreviations	195
	Glossary	197
	Annex A	209
	Index	213