

things great and small) and occasionally in Athyhill, Co. Antrim (thanks to Denis and Monica, a respective of a son-in-law's strange career choices, as one small hope). I am also thanked for those institutions that have allowed me to take my first steps in teaching, including Cardiff University and Trinity College Dublin.

Many other teachers, colleagues and church communities have taught and inspired me through the writing, from its beginnings to a遙ess to its main progress in Durham and beyond. Among those who have contributed more or less directly

Acknowledgements

Contents

Introduction	1
1 Groundwork: 'The Natural Ethic'	13
2 Topography: Resurrection and Moral Order – 'The Objective Reality'	35
3 Contour: Resurrection and Moral Order – 'The Subjective Reality' and 'The Form of the Moral Life'	99
4 Territory: Desire of the Nations and Ways of Judgment	163
5 Remapping: Ethics as Theology	191
Conclusion	227
Postscript: The end of ethics	233
Appendix: Cartography with O'Donovan and friends	235
Bibliography	243
General index	267
Index of scripture references	273