

Contents

Foreword and acknowledgements	1
Chapter 1	3
The archaeology of medieval towns in Japan and Europe: an introduction
Brian Ayers and Simon Kaner
Chapter 2	13
Japanese medieval trading towns: Sakai and Tosaminato
Richard Pearson
Chapter 3	27
Ichijōdani: the archaeology of a Japanese medieval castle town
Ono Masatoshi
Chapter 4	42
The establishment and transformation of Japan's medieval capital, Kamakura
Oka Yōichirō
Chapter 5	55
The development of Hakata as a medieval port town
Ōba Kōji
Chapter 6	61
The formation of medieval castle towns: a comparative archaeology of encastlement in Japan and Europe
Senda Yoshihiro
Chapter 7	72
Five medieval European towns: Bruges, Göttingen, Norwich, Ribe and Rouen - a pictorial introduction
Chapter 8	84
Medieval urbanism and culture in the cities of the Baltic – with a comparison between Lübeck, Germany and Sakai, Japan
Manfred Gläser
Chapter 9	107
Permanent urban frameworks ('armature') and economic networks in Northern France c.700 – c.1100
Henri Galinié
Chapter 10	115
Medieval ceramic production in the Aegean, 1100-1600 AD: some considerations in an east-west perspective
Joanita Vroom
Chapter 11	125
Afterword
Richard Pearson
Glossary	129
List of contributors	133
Index	135