

CONTENTS

Preface v

chapter 1

Introducing Medical Anthropology 1

The Social Fabric of Health and the Core of Medical Anthropology 2

Three Classical (and Continuing) Projects in Medical Anthropology 6

“The Case of the Cannibals’ Curse” 7

“Birthing in One, Two, Four, Ten, All Societies” 8

Understanding Asian Medicines 10

The Research Basis of Medical Anthropology 12

Vignette: A Week in the Life of a Fieldwork Project: The Quest for Therapy in Lower Congo 13

chapter 2

The Origins and Theories of Medical Anthropology 21

The Rise of Medical Anthropology 22

Medical Anthropology: A Brief History of Theory 25

The Sociocultural Perspective, 1950s–1970s 26

The Biocultural Perspective, 1950s–Present 32

Applied “Development” and “Clinical” Anthropology 34

The Comparative Study of Health Systems and Medical Care, 1970s–1980s 35

Cultural Mediation in the Biocultural Perspective, 1970s–1980s 38

The Cultural Construction of Biomedicine and Nature, 1980s–Present 40

Critical Medical Anthropology, Embodiment and Phenomenology,
1980s–Present 42

Discerning Signs: Steps Toward a Unified Epistemology for Medical Anthropology 45

Vignette: Communicating Vessels or the Oneness of Inside and Outside the Body 47

chapter 3

The Fabric of Health 51

"Catching Cold" and "Being Cool" 52

The Classical Medical Traditions 54

Europe and Asia 54

Vignette: Are "Postpartum Roasting" and "Avoiding Bisa Fish" in Malaysian Medical Practice Healthful for the Birthing Mother? 57

The Americas 60

Sub-Saharan Africa 62

Vignette: Discovering Obusinge in the Health Zone of Boga, Northeast Congo 65

Health in Biomedicine: A Philosophical Puzzle 67

Primary Health Care and Reproductive Health 72

Vignette: Studying the Health Enigma of Favorable Birth Outcomes in Rio Arriba, New Mexico, in the Light of Unfavorable Indicators 75

The Ecology of Health and the Social Reproduction of Health 77

chapter 4

Population and Disease: The Changing Indicators of Health 83

The Modern Rise of Population 84

Disease Profiles in Historical and Evolutionary Perspective 87

Hunting and Gathering 88

The Transition to Food Cultivation: Increases of Diseases and Fertility 89

Empires, Cities, Long-Distance Trade, and the Appearance of the Big

Epidemics 90

The Industrial Revolution 95

The "Demographic Transition" and the "Health Transition" 98

Social Suffering, Wars, Poverty, and Disease in the Modern World 103

Vignette: Signs of Fertility Decline in the Cameroon Grassfields, and the Impact of Maternal Education upon the Health of Infants and Children under Five 104

On Determinism, Prediction, and the Openness of History 107

Vignette: The Meaning of Cholera in the Aftermath of Civil War and Genocide 108

Vignette: Births on the Baltic, or Overcoming Collapsed Fertility and Rising Mortality Rates of the Post-Soviet Era 111

chapter 5

The Lifecourse: Birthing, Living, and Dying 115

The Lifecourse Perspective 116

Lifecourse as Subjective Experience and Objective Reality 118

Points of Recognition Along the Lifecourse 119

Vignette: From the Third Person to the First 120

Vignette: The Lifecourse of Cornelius and Helena Voth of Central Kansas 125

Time, Identity, and the Ritualization of Passage	127
Vignette: Representations of Time and Being	130
Alternative Gendered Lifecourses	132

chapter 6

Personhood, Liminality, and Identity 137

Personhood and the Social Body	138
Conception and Personhood	140
Ethical Challenges Surrounding Personhood	141
Personhood in the Sick Role	143
Trauma, Chronicity, and New Identity	145

chapter 7

The Transforming Signs of Sickness and Healing 149

Signification in Sickness	151
The "Biography of Medicines," the "Placebo Effect," and "Voodoo Death"	154
The Biography of Medicines	154
The Placebo Effect	157
Voodoo Death	158
Vignette: The Placebo Effect in Ulcer Medication and Coronary Bypass Surgery	159
Vignette: Driving a Wedge of Anger into Mister MaKongo	161
Theories of Healing in Anthropology	162
Narratives of Sickness and Healing	167
Vignette: "Doing ngoma ," Call and Response Song-Dance	172
The "Art of Healing" and the Construction of Clinical Reality	173
The Transformations of the Signs of Sickness and Healing	176

chapter 8

Medical Knowledge 187

Ways of Knowing, Types of Knowledge	188
The Shape of Medical Knowledge	192
Identifying Cause and Cure	192
Scale, Scope, and Focus	193
Situation of the Person	194
The Power of Classification in Knowledge Creation	195
Vignette: Blending Popular and Academic Medical Knowledge in Ouidah
Television	196
Vignette: The History and Power of Medical Classification, Seen in Claude Hamonet's
Classification of 'Handicaps'	202
The Construction, Control, and Transference of Medical Knowledge	206
Vignette: Transmitting Medical Knowledge at Harvard Medical School	207

chapter 9

Power and Organization in Medicine 211

Sources of Coherence in Medical Traditions 213

Vignette: South Asian (Indian) Medical Pluralism 216

Resource Control and Decision Making 217

Vignette: Therapy Management in Kongo Society 219

Forms of Control and Legitimacy in Medicine 220

The Incorporation of Medicine 223

Professionalization and the State 228

Medicine, the State, and the Market 230

Medical Pluralism, or the Limits of Coherence 233

Vignette: Hmong Medical Culture in Kansas City 237

chapter 10

Shaping the Fabric of Health 243

Understanding New (and Not So New) Diseases 245

Vignette: The Epidemic of Non-Insulin-Dependent Diabetes among the Southern Cheyenne, and Its Control: An Example of Action Anthropology 248

Planning Health Care Delivery 249

Applying Anthropology Clinically 251

Vignette: The Oregon Health Plan 252

Vignette: Preserving Public Health in the Ebola Zone 255

Lessening Violence in Society without Medicalizing It 259

Writing Medical Ethnography 263

Bibliography 267

Glossary 287

Index 297