

Table of Contents

	Page
List of Contributors	ix
Preface	xi
Acknowledgements	xiii
List of Abbreviations	xv
 CHAPTER 1: Introduction and Summary of Main Findings	 1
– Study objectives	1
– A policy in a process of change	2
– Tracking a moving target	3
– Preparing for the accession negotiations through development planning	3
– Establishing effective management structures	4
– Consensus building ...	4
– ... but not “EU dependency”	5
– Integrative development planning	5
– Contacts with the European Commission and the Member States	6
– Reinforcing management capacity	7
– Effective negotiations	9
– Effective lobbying	10
– Conclusions and course of action	10
 CHAPTER 2: Economic and Social Cohesion in the Enlarging European Union	 13
– Introduction	13
– Economic and social cohesion as the glue for European integration	14
– On-going implications of the 1988 reforms of the Structural Funds	16
– The Maastricht Treaty on European Union and Delors II package (1992)	18
– Consolidating the Structural Fund reforms in 1993	19
– Evaluation of the present policy framework	21

– Agenda 2000 and the political context for the negotiations	25
– Proposals for the financial perspective 2000-2006	27
– Assessment of the proposals for the new financial perspective	28
– Berlin compromise on Agenda 2000 and the future EU financing	29
– Agenda 2000 reforms and the future EU cohesion policy	31
– Assessment of the Agenda 2000 reforms in view of the enlargement	44
CHAPTER 3: EU Structural Funds in Practice	49
– Procedure to adopt the Structural Fund Regulations	49
– Implementing the Structural Fund Regulations	52
– Concentration principle	53
– Implementation procedures	62
– Monitoring – what kind of support measures are being conducted?	65
– Evaluation – what are the implications of the support measures?	69
– The role of Member States in the partnership principle	73
– The Member States and the additionality principle	74
– Financial control of Structural Fund expenditures	75
– Rulings of the European Court of Justice with regard to Structural Fund support	82
CHAPTER 4: Experiences of Current Member States in the Implementation of Structural Funds	89
– Case study on Ireland	89
* Introduction	89
* Public administrative system in Ireland	90
* Ireland and the role of EU Structural Funds	92
* Achievements over the programming period 1989-1993	94
* Preparing the 1994-1999 National Development Plan	97
* Community Support Framework 1994-1999	100
* Towards the new programming period	113
* Conclusion	115
– Case study on Germany	118
* Regional policy in Germany	118
* Socio-economic situation of East Germany	123
* Integrating the new German Länder into the Structural Funds	125
* The Common Task and EU Structural Fund support in East Germany	129
* Achievements of the programming period 1991-1993 in Sachsen-Anhalt	129

* The second programming period: 1994-1999	133
* Management structures to implement the CSF	143
* ERDF-dominated OP	146
* ESF-dominated OP	152
* EAGGF Guidance Section-dominated OP	157
* Practical experience with regard to the implementation	159
* The role of the liaison office of Sachsen-Anhalt	162
* Planning the third programming period: 2000-2006	163
* Developing from a German-centred approach to a real European style of managing the Structural Funds?	165
CHAPTER 5: The Cohesion Fund	173
– Introduction	173
– Negotiating the Cohesion Fund	174
– Institutional framework and procedures of the Cohesion Fund	178
– Structural Funds versus the Cohesion Fund	179
CHAPTER 6: Lessons from Past Accessions	183
– Changing contexts of enlargements	183
– Review of relevant provisions in the Acts of Accession of Denmark, Ireland and the United Kingdom (1973)	184
– The first southern enlargement: accession of Greece (1981)	188
– Accession of Portugal and Spain (1986)	189
– Accession of Austria, Finland and Sweden (1995)	194
– What can be learned from past accession negotiations?	195
CHAPTER 7: New Member States and the Structural Funds: Formulating an Effective Negotiating Strategy	199
– Introduction	199
– The concept of negotiations	200
– Understanding the dynamics of negotiations	203
– Components of a credible negotiating position	206
– Eligibility for structural assistance	208
– Arguments to be avoided	211
– Administrative capacity to manage Structural Funds effectively	212
– A modest negotiating strategy	213
– Competition between candidate countries	214
– Summary of negotiating strategy	215
– Action plan	216
– Conclusion	217
Bibliography	219