

Table of Contents

Chapter 1:
Introduction and preliminary matters 21

I The Problem: Application of mandatory rules in the conflict setting 21

II Historical background: From Savigny and the ‘liberal state’ to the modern welfare state of the 20th century 22

III Party autonomy and mandatory rules 26

IV Recent legislative approaches 27

V Definition of different kinds of mandatory rules 30

1 Mandatory rules in a domestic sense or international sense 31

2 The country of origin 32

3 Private law or public law 32

4 Application as law or consideration as fact 33

VI Determination and limitation of the scope of examination 33

1 A comparative study 33

2 The choice of countries 35

3 The contexts of application of mandatory rules in the private international law of contracts 41

VII Structure of this study 42

Chapter 2:Party autonomy and mandatory rules 45*I Party autonomy and its limitations by the application of mandatory rules under the Rome Convention 46*1 Art 3 (3) of the Rome Convention: Purely domestic contracts 47

a International contracts versus purely domestic contracts 48

b Requirements for purely domestic contracts 49

c Mandatory rules in the sense of art 3 (3) of the Rome Convention 50

d Art 3 (3) Rome Convention as a multilateral conflict rule 51

2 Limitation of the parties' choice in order to protect the weaker contracting party 51

a Background and purpose of articles 5 and 6 of the Rome Convention 51

b Art 5 (2) of the Rome Convention 54

(1) Conditions of art 5 (2) of the Rome Convention 55

(2) Mandatory rules in the sense of art 5 (2) of the Rome Convention 56

(3) The relationship between the chosen law and the mandatory rules of the law of the consumer's country of habitual residence 57

c Art 6 (1) of the Rome Convention 59

(1) Contracts subject to art 6 of the Rome Convention 59

(2) Mandatory rules in the sense of art 6 (1) of the Rome Convention 60

(3) The relationship between the chosen law and the mandatory rules of the otherwise applicable law according to paragraph (2) 62

d Application of articles 5 and 6 of the Rome Convention by analogy 63

e Relationship of articles 5 and 6 to article 7 of the Rome Convention 64

f Concluding remarks 66

Table of Contents

II	Restriction of party autonomy under the Swiss IPRG	11
1	Domestic contracts	67
2	Consumer contracts	68
3	Employment contracts	68
III	The Swiss solution of restricting party autonomy versus the favour principle of the Rome Convention	69
IV	Internationally mandatory rules	71
V	Evasion of law (fraus legis)	72
1	The doctrine of fraus legis	72
2	Evasion of law as limitation of party autonomy?	74
3	Evasion of law under the Rome Convention	77
4	Conclusion and remarks	78
VI	Proposal for South African private international law of contracts on the limitation of party autonomy	79
1	Party autonomy and its limitations under present South African private international law of contracts	80
2	Proposal	84
Chapter 3:		89
Internationally mandatory rules
I	The application of internationally mandatory rules: Three issues	94
II	Characterising, identifying and distinguishing internationally mandatory rules	95
1	The formal criterion: Internationally mandatory rules as unilateral conflict rules	97
2	The material criterion: The purpose of the rule	99
a	Time of enactment of the rule	99

b	The distinction between public law and private law	99
c	Interests and purposes pursued by the rule	101
d	Concluding remarks	102
Chapter 4:
Internationally mandatory rules of the lex fori		105
I	Methodological approaches	105
1	Positive function of ordre public	106
2	' Special connection ', ' lois d'application immédiate ', 'overriding statutes'	108
3	Critical remarks	111
II	Art 7 (2) of the Rome Convention, art 18 of the Swiss IPRG	112
1	Domestic contact	113
2	Internationally mandatory rules	114
3	Legal consequences	116
III	Examples of internationally mandatory rules of English, German and Swiss law	116
1	Rules serving the state's economic and political goals	116
a	Foreign exchange control and currency regulations	117
b	Competition and Anti-Trust Law	118
c	Import and Export Restrictions and Embargoes	120
d	Protection of landed property	122
2	Protection of the weaker contracting party	122
a	Excursus: Dispute about characterising of protective private laws as internationally mandatory rules	124
b	Examples	128
(1)	Employment protection	129
(2)	Consumer protection	131
(3)	Protection for tenants	133

Chapter 5:Foreign internationally mandatory rules 135

I	Approaches of academic writers	137
1	'Schuldstatutstheorie' or 'Proper law doctrine'	137
2	'International administrative law', 'Public Conflict of Laws'	140
3	'Special Connection Theory' or 'Theory of Special Point of Contact'	142
a	'Conflict of Economic Laws' (Wirtschaftskollisionsrecht)	143
b	Does the special connection imply a return to unilateralism?	144
c	Origins of the Special Connection Theory	145
d	Further developments	147
e	Double functionality of contracts	148
f	Elements of a conflict rule for a special connection	150
g	Internationally mandatory rule	150
h	Close connection	152
i	Control of the content, 'shared values'	153
j	Legal consequences - Means and scope of application	155
k	Subsidiary consideration as fact in the substantive law	157
4	'Combination theory'	157
5	Consideration only on the level of substantive law	159
6	Summary	160
a	Internationally mandatory rules of the foreign proper law	160
b	Third country's internationally mandatory rules	161
7	Critical analysis of the different approaches and final remarks	162
a	Principle of unity of the conflict of laws relating to contracts versus the special connection	162
b	Does taking account of (third countries') internationally mandatory rules as 'facts' replace choice of law considerations?	164
c	The ultimate control of the forum	166

d	Principle of territoriality or non-applicability of foreign public law	167
e	The advantage of the solution of the Special Connection Theory	169
f	Does the special connection imply a departure from the traditional allocation technique?	170
g	Other objections to a 'special connection process'	172
h	International comity, decisional harmony	174
i	Combination Theory	175
II	German and Swiss case law solutions	177
1	The general rule: Application of mandatory rules of the proper law of the contract	178
a	'Proper law doctrine' of the Supreme Court of the German Reich	179
b	Principle of ' non-applicability of foreign public law ', ' International Administrative Law ' or ' Public Conflict of Laws ' of the Federal Supreme Court	180
c	Exceptions to the principle of ' non-applicability of foreign public law '	183
	(1) The foreign public law serves predominantly private interests	183
	(2) The foreign state has the power to enforce its law	184
d	Swiss case law solutions	185
e	Concluding remarks	187
2	Internationally mandatory rules of a third country	189
a	Non-applicability of third countries' public law – Public Conflict of Laws	190
b	Public Law rules serving private interests and internationally mandatory private law rules of a third country	191
c	Consideration as factum within the substantive rules of the lex causae	192
d	Infringement of foreign prohibition as violation of German boni mores	192
	(1) Smuggling contracts and import restrictions	193

(2) The Federal Supreme Court	194
(3) Borax and Borsäure case - the foreign rule also serves German interests	195
(4) Nigerian mask case - the foreign rule serves interests shared in common by all civilised nations	196
(5) Generally valid moral principles	197
(6) Inapplicability of German boni mores	197
e Consideration within the operative facts of § 823 BGB	200
f Impossibility of performance or frustration of contract	201
g Swiss case law	204
(1) Refusal of application of third countries' mandatory laws	204
(2) Consideration as fact within the substantive law of the lex causae	206
h Conclusion	209
3 Critical remarks	210
a Duality of solutions	211
b Public Conflict of Laws , principle of territoriality	212
c Different kinds of public law rules	214
d Consideration as fact within the applicable substantive law	215
(1) Are foreign rules facts? The need for choice of law considerations	215
(2) The need for a conflict rule	218
(3) The enlargement of substantive law rules	219
(4) The ultimate control of the forum state	219
e Conclusion	220
III The English common law approach	221
1 The general rule: Application of mandatory rules of the lex causae	221
a Private and public law	222
b Exceptions to the general rule; non-enforcement of foreign penal, revenue and other public laws	226
c Concluding remarks	232

2	Application of third countries' internationally mandatory rules	232
a	English public policy, 'international comity' solution	233
	(1) Foster v Driscoll	234
	(2) Regazzoni v K C Sethia	235
	(3) Other cases	236
	(4) Inapplicability of English public policy despite the violation of foreign law	237
	(5) Application of English public policy where foreign public policy is violated, not a foreign statute	239
	(6) Summary	240
b	Academic discussion of the rule of public policy and critical remarks	241
	(1) The scope of this rule of public policy	242
	(2) Public policy in English law	242
	(3) The juristic basis of the public policy rule	243
	(4) The public policy-comity rule as special conflict rule?	244
	(5) The vagueness of the public policy rule	245
c	The lex loci solutionis ; Ralli Bros v Compania Naviera Sota y Aznar	246
d	The juristic basis of the lex loci solutionis rule	249
	(1) Conflict of laws approach	249
	(2) Substantive law approach	250
	(3) Dicta in English case law	252
e	Concluding remarks	254
	(1) The problematic situation	255
	(2) The necessity of choice of law considerations	255
f	Illegality under legal systems other than the lex loci solutionis , in particular the lex loci contractus and the law of the parties domicile or nationality	257
	(1) Kleinwort Sons & Co v Ungarische Baumwolle Industrie AG	257
	(2) The lex loci contractus	259

(3) Rossano v Manufacturers' Life Insurance Co	260
3 Concluding critical remarks	260
a The need for choice of law considerations	261
b Internationally mandatory rules stemming from a law other than the lex loci solutionis	262
c Internationally mandatory rules of the proper law	264
IV Foreign internationally mandatory rules under the Rome Convention and the Swiss IPRG - approaches of the legislature	267
1 Article 7 (1) of the Rome Convention, article 19 of the Swiss IPRG	268
a The law of another country	270
b With which the situation has a close connection	271
c Internationally mandatory rule	271
d Article 19: Legitimate and overriding interests of a party	273
e Discretion of the court	275
(1) Evaluation of the nature and purpose and regard to consequences	275
(2) To give effect / to take into account	277
2 Academic debates and criticism	279
3 Reservation to article 7 (1)	282
4 Internationally mandatory rules of the proper law	283
a The Rome Convention	283
b Article 13 of the Swiss IPRG	284
5 Impact on the law in Germany, England and Switzerland	285
a Germany	285
(1) Closing of the loophole	285
(2) Scope of reference of the normal conflict rules	287
b England	288
(1) Does the public policy-comity rule survive the Rome Convention?	288

(2) Does the lex loci solutionis rule survive the Rome Convention?	290
c Switzerland	292
(1) Art 19: A special connection of third countries' internationally mandatory rules	292
(2) Influence of article 13 sentence 2 of the Swiss IPRG	294
6 Concluding critical remarks: Was the reservation in respect of article 7 (1) of the Rome Convention justified?	297
a Unity of the law applicable to contracts and the confidence of the parties in the application of only one legal system	298
b Party autonomy is unduly restricted	299
c Uncertainty in law	300
d Move towards Unilateralism	301
e International comity and decisional harmony	303
f The structurally preferable solution	304
g Conclusion	305

Chapter 6:

Proposal for the application of internationally mandatory rules with a view to South African private international law of contracts	307
--	------------

I Legal situation in South African private international law	307
1 Application of the internationally mandatory rules of the lex fori	307
2 Application of (internationally) mandatory rules of the lex causae	309
3 Internationally mandatory rules of a third legal system	311
a Public policy of the forum state	311
b Reasonable claim of application	314
c South African cases on this issue	315
4 Conclusion	316

II	Proposed Approach	317
1	The common denominator	318
a	Internationally mandatory rules of the forum	318
b	Internationally mandatory rules of the proper law	319
c	Internationally mandatory rules of a third country	320
2	The structurally preferable solution: A special connection of internationally mandatory rules	322
a	Internationally mandatory rules of the lex fori	324
	(1) Special connection of internationally mandatory rules	324
	(2) Identification of internationally mandatory rules	325
b	Internationally mandatory rules of a third country	327
	(1) The structurally preferable solution	328
	(2) A special connection in conformity with conflict of laws	330
	(3) General guidelines for special conflict rules	331
	(4) Subsidiary consideration of the factual effects on the private Relationship	335
c	Internationally mandatory rules of the proper law	336
	Bibliography	339
	Table of cases	357
	Abbreviations of Journals and Reports	363