

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Preface 7

Introduction

The Visegrad Group Elections of 2005–2006:
Trends in Party Systems and Coalition Behavior 9
Grigorij Mesežnikov

Visegrad Elections: Domestic Impact

The 2006 Parliamentary Elections and the Stability of Democracy in Slovakia 19
Soňa Szomolányi

Slovakia Votes: Public Opinion and Electoral Behavior 39
Zora Bútorová, Olga Gyárfášová and Vladimír Krivý

The 2006 Parliamentary Elections in the Czech Republic:
Continuity and Change 67
Ivan Gabal

Poland after the 2005 Elections:
Domestic Discontent or EU Backlash? 81
Jacek Kucharczyk and Joanna Fomina

Hungary after the 2006 Elections: Still Waiting for a Solution? 99
László Kéri

The Radical Right in Hungary before and after the 2006 Elections 109
Pál Tamás

Populism in “Old” and “New” Europe

Populism in “Old” and “New” Europe: Trends and Implications 125

Kai-Olaf Lang

Populism and the Logic of Party Rotation in Postcommunist Europe 141

Kevin D. Krause

The Populist Backlash in East-Central Europe 161

Jacques Rupnik

Populist Appeals in Slovak Politics before 2006 Elections 171

Peter Učeň

The Impact of Visegrad Developments on Europe and Beyond

Slovakia’s Foreign Policy after 2006 Elections:
Priorities, Capacities, and Challenges 189

Martin Bútora

International Security and the Limits of Populism in the Visegrad Group Countries 219

Robin Shepherd

Western Balkans and the Visegrad Group:
Toward a New Partnership? 231

Tomáš Strážay

Contributors 243