

Contents

---

---

|                                          |       |
|------------------------------------------|-------|
| Preface to the Second Edition . . . . .  | vii   |
| Foreword to the First Edition . . . . .  | ix    |
| Foreword to the Second Edition . . . . . | xi    |
| About the Authors . . . . .              | xiii  |
| Abbreviations . . . . .                  | xxiii |

Chapter 1

---

|                                                                                                 |    |
|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----|
| Due Process and Arbitration . . . . .                                                           | 1  |
| 1.1 The Origin of Due Process Requirements in Arbitration. . . . .                              | 1  |
| 1.2 How Should Due Process Requirements in ArbitrationBe Defined? . . . . .                 | 3  |
| 1.3 The Floating Nature of the Law of Due Process—Analogyto Lex Mercatoria . . . . . | 5  |
| 1.4 The Method of Defining Due Process and Lex Proceduraliain Arbitration . . . . .  | 8  |
| 1.5 Due Process as a Principle of Law . . . . .                                                 | 12 |

Chapter 2

---

|                                                                                                            |    |
|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----|
| The New York Convention as A Starting Point . . . . .                                                      | 15 |
| 2.1 Introduction . . . . .                                                                                 | 15 |
| 2.2 Public Policy (" Ordre Public ") as a Ground to RefuseRecognition and Enforcement . . . . . | 17 |
| 2.2.1 A Vague Category . . . . .                                                                           | 17 |
| 2.2.2 Procedural Aspects: Just a Right, Not a Duty;Actions Ex Officio and Sua Sponte . . . . .         | 18 |
| 2.2.3 What Constitutes Public Policy? . . . . .                                                            | 20 |
| 2.2.4 ILA on Fundamental Principles . . . . .                                                              | 22 |

|       |                                                                                                |    |
|-------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----|
| 2.2.5 | ILA on Public Policy Rules . . . . .                                                           | 24 |
| 2.3   | Arbitrability of the Subject Matter. . . . .                                                   | 24 |
| 2.4   | Arbitration Agreement (“Mandate in Concreto ”) and the Convention . . . . .             | 25 |
| 2.4.1 | Agreement as the Basis of the Procedure . . . . .                                              | 25 |
| 2.4.2 | Breach of the Procedural Agreement as a Ground to Refuse Recognition and Enforcement . . . . . | 26 |
| 2.4.3 | Ultra Petita —Matters Beyond the Scope. . . . .                                         | 28 |
| 2.4.4 | Waiver Doctrine and the Breach of the Procedural Agreement . . . . .                           | 32 |
| 2.5.  | Incapacity and Invalidity . . . . .                                                            | 35 |
| 2.5.1 | Incapacity of the Party and Invalidity of the Agreement . . . . .                              | 35 |
| 2.5.2 | Incapacity of a Person . . . . .                                                               | 35 |
| 2.5.3 | Invalidity of the Arbitration Agreement . . . . .                                              | 36 |
| 2.6.  | Ability to Present One’s Case . . . . .                                                        | 37 |
| 2.6.1 | Ability to Present One’s Case as a Fundamental General Requirement. . . . .                    | 37 |
| 2.6.2 | Ability to Present One’s Case According to the Agreement and the Law of the Seat. . . . .      | 39 |
| 2.7   | Award has to be Final (“Condition Subsequent”) . . . . .                                       | 40 |
| 2.8   | Conclusions on the Analysis of Article V of the Convention . . . . .                           | 41 |

Chapter 3

|                                                                     |                                                                                                |           |
|---------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------|
| Arbitration Agreement as the Basis of Jurisdiction . . . . . |                                                                                                | 43 |
| 3.1                                                                 | Agreement on Basis of Jurisdiction—Mandate in Concreto Based on Mandate in Abstracto . . . . . | 43        |
| 3.2                                                                 | Existence of an Arbitration Agreement . . . . .                                                | 46        |
| 3.2.1                                                               | The Written Form . . . . .                                                                     | 46        |
| 3.2.2                                                               | Competence to Determine Competence . . . . .                                                   | 48        |
| 3.2.3                                                               | The Validity of the Agreement. . . . .                                                         | 51        |
| 3.3.                                                                | On Interpretation of the Arbitration Agreement . . . . .                                       | 52        |
| 3.3.1                                                               | Methods of Interpretation . . . . .                                                            | 52        |
| 3.3.2                                                               | Assignment and Transfer. . . . .                                                               | 55        |
| 3.3.3                                                               | Time Limit for the Award . . . . .                                                             | 56        |

|       |                                                                                            |    |
|-------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----|
| 3.3.4 | Time Limit in the Arbitration Clause as a Statute of Limitation . . . . .                  | 58 |
| 3.3.5 | Guarantor's or Indemnitor's Right to Invoke an Arbitration Agreement. . . . .              | 60 |
| 3.4   | Unconscionability or Unreasonability. . . . .                                              | 62 |
| 3.5   | The Enforceability of an Arbitration Agreement and Due Process . . . . .                   | 66 |
| 3.5.1 | Agreement Defining Due Process?. . . . .                                                   | 66 |
| 3.5.2 | Good Faith of the Parties . . . . .                                                        | 68 |
| 3.5.3 | Possible Action in Case of Disloyalty. . . . .                                             | 69 |
| 3.5.4 | Non-Respect of the Agreement by the Arbitral Tribunal as Violation of Due Process. . . . . | 70 |
| 3.5.5 | Manifest Disregard of Agreement and Substantive Law as Violation of Due Process . . . . .  | 73 |
| 3.5.6 | Disregard of Facts as Violation of Due Process. . . . .                                    | 76 |
| 3.5.7 | "Carte Blanche" Prayer for Relief and Due Process . . . . .                                | 77 |
| 3.6   | Arbitration Agreement and Due Process—Summary . . . . .                                    | 78 |

Chapter 4

|                                                                   |                                                                                                             |           |
|-------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------|
| Aspects of Jurisdiction other than the Agreement . . . . . |                                                                                                             | 81 |
| 4.1                                                               | Due Process and Jurisdiction—Problems Related to Aspects Other than the Agreement . . . . .                 | 81        |
| 4.2                                                               | Parties to the Proceedings . . . . .                                                                        | 81        |
| 4.3                                                               | Arbitrability. . . . .                                                                                      | 83        |
| 4.4                                                               | Res Judicata . . . . .                                                                                      | 85        |
| 4.4.1                                                             | Defining Res Judicata . . . . .                                                                             | 85        |
| 4.4.2                                                             | "Effects" of Enforcement Dimensions . . . . .                                                               | 89        |
| 4.5                                                               | Lis Pendens. . . . .                                                                                        | 90        |
| 4.5.1                                                             | Lis Pendens Doctrine in Arbitration . . . . .                                                               | 90        |
| 4.5.2                                                             | When Are the Proceedings Parallel? Test of Identity or Similarity and the Enforcement Effects Test. . . . . | 91        |
| 4.5.3                                                             | The Effect of Parallel Proceedings . . . . .                                                                | 92        |
| 4.6                                                               | Forum Non Conveniens . . . . .                                                                       | 95        |
| 4.6.1                                                             | Doctrine of Forum Non Conveniens . . . . .                                                           | 95        |

|       |                                                                                               |     |
|-------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| 4.6.2 | Special Considerations in Arbitration . . . . .                                               | 97  |
| 4.7   | Conditions Imposed by the Applicable Rules . . . . .                                          | 98  |
| 4.7.1 | Security for Fees and Costs of the Arbitral Tribunaland Institution . . . . .             | 98  |
| 4.7.2 | Security for Attorneys' Fees and Legal Costs of the Parties . . . . .                         | 99  |
| 4.7.3 | Security for Loss or Damage . . . . .                                                         | 100 |
| 4.7.4 | Security for the Claims or for the Enforcementof the Award . . . . .                      | 101 |
| 4.8   | Conditions Imposed by the Panel within its Autonomy . . . . .                                 | 101 |
| 4.9   | Conditions Imposed by the Agreement of the Parties:Duty to Mediate or Negotiate . . . . . | 102 |
| 4.10  | Summary . . . . .                                                                             | 104 |

Chapter 5

|                                                                                    |            |
|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------|
| The Panel and Due Process. . . . .                                          | 107 |
| 5.1 The Arbitration Panel in the Dispute Resolution Context . . . . .              | 107        |
| 5.2 The Composition of the Panel. . . . .                                          | 108        |
| 5.3 Challenging the Arbitrators . . . . .                                          | 109        |
| 5.4 Impartiality and Independence . . . . .                                        | 111        |
| 5.4.1 The Requirement of Impartial andIndependent Arbitrators. . . . .         | 111        |
| 5.4.2 The Meaning of Independency andImpartiality in Arbitration . . . . .     | 113        |
| 5.4.3 Same but Different? The Standard ofImpartiality in Arbitration . . . . . | 115        |
| 5.4.4 What Constitutes Bias? . . . . .                                             | 118        |
| 5.4.5 Duty to Disclose . . . . .                                                   | 120        |
| 5.4.6 IBA Guidelines—Green, Orange, Red, andNonwaivable Red Lists . . . . .    | 122        |
| 5.4.7 Requirement of Impartial Conduct. . . . .                                    | 126        |
| 5.5 Waiver . . . . .                                                               | 127        |
| 5.6 Communication with the Parties. . . . .                                        | 128        |
| 5.7 Role of the Secretary . . . . .                                                | 130        |
| 5.8 Fees and Costs . . . . .                                                       | 130        |
| 5.9 Liability . . . . .                                                            | 132        |

|                                |     |
|--------------------------------|-----|
| 5.10 Confidentiality . . . . . | 136 |
| 5.11 Summary . . . . .         | 138 |

Chapter 6

|                                                                                                |            |
|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------|
| Due Process Related to Facts and Evidence . . . . .                                     | 141 |
| 6.1 The Structure of a Legal Decision: Facts and Due Process . . . . .                         | 141        |
| 6.2 Facts in Legal Decision: Relevance, Sufficiency and Truth . . . . .                        | 142        |
| 6.3 On the Burden of Proof . . . . .                                                           | 147        |
| 6.4 Role of Arbitral Panel in Establishing the Facts . . . . .                                 | 149        |
| 6.4.1 Conflicts of Traditions and Culture . . . . .                                            | 149        |
| 6.4.2 Guidance via Consultations . . . . .                                                     | 150        |
| 6.4.3 Direct Intervention by the Panel . . . . .                                               | 151        |
| 6.5 Enforcement of Evidentiary Measures . . . . .                                              | 152        |
| 6.5.1 “Toolbox” of Measures for BringingEvidence into Proceedings. . . . .                 | 152        |
| 6.5.2 “Internal” Orders . . . . .                                                              | 153        |
| 6.5.3 “External” Orders . . . . .                                                              | 154        |
| 6.5.4 Fact-Finding by the Arbitrators . . . . .                                                | 156        |
| 6.5.5 Organizing the Evidentiary Hearings . . . . .                                            | 157        |
| 6.5.6 “Entire Agreement Clauses” and Other Agreementson Admissibility of Evidence. . . . . | 158        |
| 6.6 Questions and Answers . . . . .                                                            | 160        |
| 6.7 Discovery . . . . .                                                                        | 161        |
| 6.8 Witnesses . . . . .                                                                        | 162        |
| 6.8.1 Prior to Hearings. . . . .                                                               | 162        |
| 6.8.2 Language . . . . .                                                                       | 164        |
| 6.8.3 “Nothing but the Truth” . . . . .                                                        | 164        |
| 6.8.4 Hostility, Evasiveness or Psychological orEmotional Ties . . . . .                   | 165        |
| 6.8.5 Questioning . . . . .                                                                    | 166        |
| 6.8.6 Cross-Examination and Special Arrangements . . . . .                                     | 168        |
| 6.8.7 Timing . . . . .                                                                         | 169        |
| 6.8.8 Compensation for Witnesses . . . . .                                                     | 169        |
| 6.9 Experts . . . . .                                                                          | 169        |

|                                                                                                           |            |
|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------|
| 6.10 Other Evidence . . . . .                                                                             | 171        |
| 6.11 Summary . . . . .                                                                                    | 172        |
| Chapter 7                                                                                          |            |
| The Role of the Panel in the Proceedings . . . . .                                                 | 173 |
| 7.1 Managing the Proceedings . . . . .                                                                    | 173        |
| 7.2 The Panel and the Facts of the Case . . . . .                                                         | 174        |
| 7.3 Jura Novit Arbiter and the “Burden of Education”. . . . .                                      | 178        |
| 7.4 Administration of Remedies and Consultations . . . . .                                                | 180        |
| 7.5 Summary . . . . .                                                                                     | 183        |
| Chapter 8                                                                                          |            |
| Fair Arbitration—Opportunity to Present One’s Case . . . . .                                       | 185 |
| 8.1 Fair Arbitration . . . . .                                                                            | 185        |
| 8.2 Equality of Arms and Reasonable Opportunity toPresent One’s Case . . . . .                        | 186        |
| 8.3 Right to a Counsel of One’s Choice. . . . .                                                           | 191        |
| 8.4 Conflict between Timeliness and Opportunityto Present One’s Case . . . . .                        | 192        |
| 8.5 Award . . . . .                                                                                       | 196        |
| 8.6 Summary . . . . .                                                                                     | 199        |
| Chapter 9                                                                                          |            |
| Due Process, Lex Proceduralia, Fair Arbitration—ProceduralFoundation of Arbitration . . . . . | 201 |
| 9.1 The Three Facets: Due Process, Fair Arbitrationand Lex Proceduralia . . . . .              | 201        |
| 9.2 How to Formulate a Due Process Argument . . . . .                                                     | 203        |
| 9.3 Fairness or Finality? Conflicts of Principles and Goals . . . . .                                     | 204        |
| 9.4 Access to Arbitration and Fair Hearing . . . . .                                                      | 206        |
| List of References . . . . .                                                                       | 207 |
| Appendices . . . . .                                                                               | 219 |
| Index . . . . .                                                                                    | 541 |