

Table of contents

Preface	v
List of Abbreviations	xv
Table of cases	xix
1. Final Report on the Impact of International Human Rights Law on General International Law	1
1. Introduction	1
2. The Structure of International Obligations	4
2.1 Obligations erga omnes	5
2.2 Jus cogens	6
3. The Formation of Customary International Law	7
4. Treaty Law	8
4.1 Treaty interpretation	9
4.2 Treaty reservations	10
4.3 State succession in respect of treaties	12
5. International Law and Domestic Law	13
6. Immunity	14
7. Diplomatic Protection	15
8. The Right to Consular Notification	17
9. State Responsibility	18
9.1 Attribution	18
9.2 Positive obligations	19
9.3 Crimes of state	20
10. Conclusions	21
2. Impact on the Law of Treaties	23
1. Introduction	23
2. A Textual (Positivist) Approach to the Vienna Convention	23
3. A Dogmatic Approach to the Vienna Convention	25
4. Human Rights Treaties as one of many Special Regimes	27
5. Human Rights Norms as a Global Constitution	29
6. Reconciling the Vienna Convention and Human Rights Treaties	31
7. Concluding Discussion	34

3. Impact on General Principles of Treaty Interpretation	37
1. Introduction	37
2. General Doctrines of Treaty Interpretation	39
3. Special Doctrines of Human Rights Interpretation	42
3.1 Practical and effective rights	42
3.2 Law-making treaty	43
3.3 Objective obligations	44
3.4 Dynamic interpretation	47
3.5 A wider European perspective	50
4. The Subsidiary Review under the ECHR	52
4.1 Interpretation and review in general international law	53
4.2 Interpretation and review under the ECHR	54
4.3 The nature of subsidiary review	55
5. Conclusions	60
4. Impact on the Law on Treaty Reservations	63
1. Introduction	63
2. Ratification and the Obligation to Implement Treaty Obligations	65
3. Validity of Reservations under Human Rights Treaties	66
4. The 'Object and Purpose' of Human Rights Treaties	68
5. Reservations Affecting Implementation of the Treaty in its Entirety	71
5.1 Reservations to the provision 'to give effect'	72
5.2 Reservations according superior status to domestic law	73
5.3 Vague and generally worded reservations	75
6. Reservations to Norms that have Acquired Special Status	78
6.1 Reservations affecting jus cogens norms	78
6.2 Reservations to non-derogable norms	79
7. Reservations Affecting the Monitoring Role of International Organs	80
8. Determination of the Validity of Reservations	84
8.1 The competence to examine reservations and formulate recommendations	84
8.2 The competence to determine validity and the consequences thereof	87
9. Assessing Impact	92
9.1 General approach towards reservations	93
9.2 Interpretation of the object and purpose rule	94
9.3 The competence of the monitoring bodies	95
10. Final Remarks	96

5. Impact on State Succession in Respect of Treaties	99
1. Introduction	99
2. Practice under the European Convention on Human Rights	102
3. Practice under the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights	104
4. The Attitude of the International Court of Justice	106
5. Concluding Observations	107
6. Impact on the Process of the Formation of Customary International Law	111
1. Introduction	111
2. The Nicaragua Method of Ascertaining Customary International Law	112
3. Ascertaining Customary International Humanitarian Law	115
4. The 'Modern Positivist' Approach	118
4.1 Methodology and value preferences	118
4.2 Positivism, naturalism, and their discontents	119
4.3 General principles of law and 'modern' positivism	120
4.4 ICJ support for 'modern positivism'	123
4.5 Putting modern positivism to the test	124
5. Impact on General International Law	127
7. Impact on the Structure of International Obligations	133
1. Introduction	133
2. The Classical Model	133
3. The Impact of Obligations Erga Omnes	135
3.1 Human rights and obligations erga omnes	136
3.2 Obligations erga omnes in practice	139
4. Identification of Peremptory Norms	143
5. The Impact of Peremptory Norms	146
6. Conclusion	149
8. Impact on the Immunity of States and their Officials	151
1. The Resilience of the Traditional Rules	151
2. A 'Human Rights Exception' to the Traditional Rules?	154
3. The Perspective of the Forum	156
3.1 International courts	156
3.2 National courts	157
4. Methodology	160
4.1 The traditional approach	162
4.2 The 'hierarchical' approach	163

4.3 The intermediate approach	167
5. Conclusion	169
 9. Impact on the Right to Consular Notification	 171
1. Introduction	171
2. Setting the Stage	175
3. Chronology of the Jurisprudence	177
ICJ: The Breard case (Paraguay v. United States)
3 April 1998–4 November 1998	177
ICJ: The issuance of provisional measures ( LaGrand Case,
Germany v. United States) 3 March 1999	179
Inter-American Court of Human Rights: Advisory Opinion No. 16 ,
9 December 1997–1 October 1999	180
ICJ: The LaGrand Case—merits—27 June 2001	187
ICJ: The issuance of provisional measures ( Avena case,
Mexico v. United States) 5 February 2003	192
ICJ: The Avena case—merits—31 March 2004	196
4. Impact on Litigation within the United States	199
Breard v. Greene (523 US 371) (1998) ( per curiam )	199
Torres v. Mullin (540 US 1035) (2003)	200
Sanchez-Llamas v. Oregon and Bustillo v.
Johnson (548 US 331) (2006)	202
The Medellín case, oral argument—10 October 2007	203
The US Supreme Court decision in Medellín (552 US) (2008)	207
5. Epilogue	208
 10. Impact on the Law of Diplomatic Protection	 211
1. The Traditional Concept of Diplomatic Protection	211
2. The New Role of the Individual in International Law	212
3. Individual Rights in the Law on Treatment of Aliens: the
Judgments LaGrand and Avena and the Opinion OC-16/99	215
4. The Impact of Individual Rights on the Law
of Diplomatic Protection	218
4.1 Minimal changes in the law of diplomatic protection	220
4.2 More meaningful changes in the law of diplomatic protection	221
4.3 Radical changes in the law of diplomatic protection?	222
5. The Relationship between Human Rights Law and the Law on
Treatment of Aliens	222
6. The Impact of Human Rights Law on the Law
of Diplomatic Protection	224
6.1 A human right of the individual to diplomatic protection?	224
6.2 Diplomatic protection and actions invoking responsibility for human rights violations	227
6.3 Which coordination between the two categories of actions?	230
7. Conclusion	233

11. Impact on State Responsibility	235
1. Introduction	235
2. State Responsibility v. Human Rights	236
3. Attribution to a State	238
3.1 General attribution	239
3.2 State control	240
4. International Obligations of a State	246
4.1 Positive obligations in international human rights law	246
4.2 Positive obligations in state responsibility	249
5. State Responsibility and the Individual	252
6. Conclusions	253
Index	255