

Contents

Prologue — V

Part I: The field of semiotics

Chapter 1

Introduction: What is semiotics? — 3

Chapter 2

A brief history of semiotics — 8

- 1 The beginnings of modern semiotics — 8
- 2 European semiotics — 9
 - 2.1 Russian formalism — 9
 - 2.2 Semiotic theory and Marxism — 10
 - 2.3 Vladimir Propp — 11
 - 2.4 The Prague Linguistic Circle — 11
 - 2.5 The Linguistic Circle of Copenhagen — 12
 - 2.6 The Tartu–Moscow School — 12
 - 2.7 French structuralism and semiotics — 13
 - 2.8 Cognitive semiotics — 15
 - 2.9 Poststructuralism and postmodernism — 17
- 3 Semiotics in the USA — 19

Part II: The semiotics of langue

Chapter 3

The basic concepts of langue — 25

- 1 The four linguistics — 25
- 2 Langue and parole — 28
- 3 The communication circuit and the definition of the sign — 31
- 4 The principles of langue — 32
 - 4.1 The first principle: Conventionality — 32
 - 4.1.1 The conventional relation between signified and signifier — 32
 - 4.1.2 The conventional relation between the signifier and the external world — 34
 - 4.1.3 The conventional relation between the signified and the external world — 37
 - 4.2 The second principle: Linearity — 38

- 5 The rules of langue — 39
- 6 Langue as a system of relations and elements — 42
- 6.1 The relation between the syntagmatic and paradigmatic axes — 42
- 6.2 Distinctive features and phonemes — 42
- 6.3 Morphemes — 44
- 6.4 Semes, sememes and lexemes — 46
- 7 The concepts of difference and value in langue — 48
- 8 Form and substance — 53
- 9 The non-semiotic triangle — 59
- 10 The signified as a cultural unit — 68
- 11 Denotation, connotation and metalanguage — 72
- 11.1 The theory — 72
- 11.2 Examples of connotation — 77
- 12 From langue to speech: Sociolinguistics and Greimasian semiotics — 81

Part III: The semiotics of parole (textual semiotics)

Chapter 4

Syntagmatic analysis: Narrative theory — 93

- 1 Narratology — 93
- 1.1 The generative trajectory — 93
- 1.2 Fundamental syntax — 97
- 1.3 Fundamental semantics — 101
- 1.4 Surface narrative syntax — 103
- 1.4.1 The narrative programme — 103
- 1.4.2 The modalities — 107
- 1.4.3 The narrative schema — 108
- 1.5 Narrative semantics — 113
- 1.6 Discursive syntax — 115
- 1.7 Discursive semantics — 118
- 2 An example of narrative analysis: The life of Saint Alexius — 122
- 2.1 The life of Saint Alexius: Summary — 123
- 2.2 Narrative syntax — 125

Chapter 5Paradigmatic analysis: Isotopies, qualitative approach — 130

- 1 The theory of isotopies — 130
- 1.1 The definition of isotopy — 130
- 1.2 Nuclear semes and classemes — 134
- 1.3 Operating with isotopies on the two semiotic planes — 134
- 1.4 The hierarchical levels of analysis of isotopies — 138
- 1.5 The relation between simple isotopies — 142
- 1.6 The composite isotopies — 147
- 1.7 Relations between composite isotopies — 150
- 1.8 The empirical textual network and the hierarchy of isotopies — 152
- 1.9 The extended concept of isotopy — 160
- 2 Qualitative analysis of isotopies: Examples — 163
- 2.1 Isotopies in prose: The life of Saint Alexius — 163
- 2.1.1 Identifying the isotopies: Figurativisation — 164
- 2.1.2 The internal structure of the isotopies: The codes — 165
- 2.1.3 Relations between codes: Thematisation — 169
- 2.1.4 The semiotic square — 172
- 2.2 Isotopies in poetry — 175
- 2.3 The use of isotopies for the analysis of ideology — 183

Chapter 6Paradigmatic analysis: Isotopies, quantitative approach — 190

- 1 Theoretical background — 190
- 1.1 The quantitative approach in semiotics — 190
- 1.2 Techniques for the quantitative analysis of isotopies — 192
- 1.3 The utility of graphs for other operations — 197
- 2 Examples of quantitative analysis of isotopies — 201
- 2.1 The discourse on space — 201
- 2.2 The spatial discourses on the city of Thessaloniki — 215
- 2.3 The semiotic square revisited — 228

Chapter 7Late and post-Greimasian theory — 234

- 1 The second Dictionary — 234
- 2 Greimas and the semiotics of passions — 236
- 3 Fontanille and the semiotics of passions — 240
- 4 Some critical thoughts — 244

Part IV: The semiotics of communication

Chapter 8

A global model of communication — 253

- 1 The field of communication — 253
- 2 Fourteen models of communication — 254
 - 2.1 Model 1: Saussure's circuit of parole — 254
 - 2.2 Model 2: The positions of communication — 256
 - 2.3 Model 3: The active semiotic labour of the dialogists and their interaction — 263
 - 2.4 Model 4: Communication through objects — 267
 - 2.5 Model 5: The channel of communication and signification — 270
 - 2.6 Model 6: Jakobson's functions of language and the message — 273
 - 2.7 Model 7: The intra-textual contexts of the text — 282
 - 2.8 Model 8: The extra-textual contexts of the text: Intertextuality — 285
 - 2.9 Model 9: Simple, accompanying and complex semiotic systems — 298
 - 2.10 Model 10: Text and (micro-)situation — 300
 - 2.11 Model 11: A and B as competent cultural subjects — 304
 - 2.12 Model 12: Pragmatics: A and B as overtly acting subjects — 307
 - 2.13 Model 13: Communication micro-networks and their structures — 313
 - 2.14 Model 14: From sociosemiotics to social semiotics: A and B as material social subjects in a macro-situation — 316

Chapter 9

Social semiotics — 321

- 1 School of Paris vs sociology — 321
- 2 Semiotics and sociology — 323
- 3 Social semiotics as a legitimate field of semiotics — 331

References — 337

Index — 345