

Contents

PREFACE

xvii

PART I

Introductions

1

Chapter 1

An introduction to The Arts Therapies: ten snapshots from the book

2

PART II

The arts therapies: definitions and developments

17

Chapter 2

Definitions in flux: contexts and aims

18

Introduction

18

Arriving at definitions

19

Settings and contexts: an overview

23

Different modalities

26

Chapter 3

What is art therapy?

28

Definitions

28

Aims of art therapy

30

Chapter 4

What is music therapy?

39

Definitions

39

Aims of music therapy

42

Chapter 5

What is dramatherapy?

47

Definitions

47

Aims of dramatherapy

50

Chapter 6

What is dance movement therapy?

55

Definitions

55

Aims of dance movement therapy

57

Chapter 7

Between the arts therapies

59

Introduction: differences and similarities

59

How different is different? How similar is similar?

63

Arts therapies and arts in health

65

	Professional identity	67
	Conclusion: from definition to exploration	69
PART III	Backgrounds, histories and encounters: from the first happening to the shadow of logic	71
Chapter 8	From the first happening	72
	Introduction: different histories	72
	Focus on Research: music therapy and Nigeria	77
	Interview with Charles O. Aluede	77
	The first happening and Black Mountain College	83
	Theatre Piece No. 1	85
	Conclusion	87
Chapter 9	'Everything is ripe'	89
	Introduction: many places	89
	Conference of the Society for Music Therapy and Remedial Music, 1960	91
	Transitions	96
	Professions	100
	Interview with Ka Kit Lai, Amber Chan Hiu Wing, Adeline Chan Ling Hin and Fontane Yiu	104
	Conclusion	106
Chapter 10	Art and science: the rise of the medical model and the shadow of logic	108
	Introduction: opposites attracting?	108
	Kinds of dialogue	109
	Shadow of logic?	115
	Conclusion: revolution or collusion?	117
PART IV	Agents of transformation: arts, therapy, play	119
Chapter 11	The arts in the arts therapies	120
	Introduction: arts and therapy	120
	Situating the arts in the arts therapies	121
	Starting out	124
	Therapeutic improvisation	127
	Creation of an arts space	129
	Case examples	133
	Focus on Research: dialogue with new arts languages and cultures	137
	Interview with Nancy C. Choe	137
	Forms for feeling: improvisation and culture	139
	The art form and the triangle	141
	Experience of the client and meaning	146
	Expressive forms of the arts	150
	Does the art form matter?	155
	Conclusion	156

Chapter 12	The sensuous encounter: the arts therapies and the unconscious	158
	Introduction: the unconscious – definitions and encounters	158
	Analytic perspective	161
	Artists and the unconscious	164
	The dynamic unconscious	170
	How do the arts therapies position the unconscious?	171
	Arts therapies practice and the unconscious	172
	A particular messenger: uncloaking, excavation and the unconscious	172
	Arts process and non-verbal experience	174
	Emotional encounter	177
	Dynamic relationship	180
	Play space and the unconscious	181
	A dictionary of the unconscious?	183
	Focus on Research: art therapy	188
	Interview with Josée Leclerc	188
	Conclusion	191
Chapter 13	Playing, development and change	194
	Introduction: definitions and theories of play	194
	What is play?	196
	The arts therapies and play	200
	The play space	204
	Playing and playfulness	207
	The play shift	208
	Play and development	212
	Conclusion	213
Chapter 14	From the triangular relationship to the active witness: core processes in the arts therapies	215
	Introduction	215
	Artistic projection	216
	The triangular relationship	219
	Perspective and distance	221
	Embodiment	223
	Non-verbal experience	226
	Play and the playful space	228
	The participating artist-therapist	229
	Active witnessing	230
	Conclusion	235
PART V
	Client–therapist relationship: paradigms, dialogues and discoveries	239
Chapter 15	Client and arts therapist: dialogues and diversity	240
	Introduction	240
	Cultures and contexts	242

Client–therapist transaction	244
Roles of the arts therapist	247
Therapist and client	247
Arts therapy relationships: dialogue and discovery	250
Arts therapists and clients	250
Dialogue with analytic psychotherapy	250
Elizabeth: aims of the dance movement therapy	250
Elizabeth: method and the client–therapist relationship	251
Case example analysis	252
A psychoanalytic framework and the arts therapies: critiques and limitations	254
Dialogue with a developmental approach to therapy	255
Sophie: method and the client–therapist relationship	255
Sophie: aims of the music therapy	255
Case example analysis	258
Developmental approach and the arts therapies: critiques and limitations	259
Dialogue with a mindfulness approach to therapy	260
Focus on Research: the Inhabited Studio	261
Interview with Debra Kalmanowitz and Rainbow Ho	261
The Inhabited Studio: method and the client–therapist relationship	261
Amiin: aims of the therapy	262
Case example analysis	264
Mindfulness and the arts therapies: critiques and limitations	265
Dialogue with different therapeutic paradigms compared	266
Why the diversity?	267
An arts therapies approach versus approaches related to other disciplines	268
Chapter 16 Client and arts therapist: traditions and discoveries	270
Introduction	270
Role of the arts therapist: therapist and client, artist and artist together	270
Traditions, assumptions, discoveries	274
Focus on Research: dance/movement therapy, resilience and recovery	277
Interview with David Alan Harris	277

	Focus on Research: long-term music therapy with young adults with severe learning difficulties	285
	Interview with Mercedes Pavlicevic	285
	Conclusion	290
Chapter 17	Efficacy: what works in the art gallery? What works in the clinic?	292
	Introduction	292
	What works in the art gallery? What works in the clinic?	297
	Approaches, contexts and efficacy	300
	What is looked at and who is looking?	304
	The arts therapies and efficacy: flying with two wings?	306
	The arts therapies: a range of encounters	308
	Ways of working: considering the effects of the arts therapies	309
	Example 1: Client voice and an ecosystemic approach: Focus on Research	309
	Interview with Kim Dunphy and Tessa Hens	309
	Example 2: Art therapy review of pictures	316
	Example 3: Randomised control trial	320
	Example 4: Collaboration between disciplines: Focus on Research	323
	Interview with Daniel Mateos-Moreno and Lidia Atencia-Doña	323
	A 'researching eye'?	328
	Conclusion	329
Chapter 18	Concluding remarks	331
	BIBLIOGRAPHY	335
	AUTHOR INDEX	361
	SUBJECT INDEX	365