

Contents

Preface	ix
Acknowledgements	x
List of abbreviations	xi
Table of cases	xiv
Table of legislation	xviii
1 Introduction	1
Background 1
Paucity of actions for damages for competition infringements	1
The need for collective redress in competition law enforcement	3
Reflection on the term ‘collective redress’	4
Issues relating to the design of a collective redress action	6
Judicial v non-judicial means of collective redress	6
Elements of collective redress actions	9
Methodology	12
Structure	14
2 The notion of and need for collective redress actions	17
Introduction	17
The concept and function of collective redress procedures	17
A short summary of evolution and policy rationale	17
The purpose of the procedure	20
Setting the scene for EU collective redress actions	24
The recognition and exercise of the right to damages	24
The need for collective redress actions for consumers	28
The role of collective redress actions	34
Concluding remarks	36

3	Commission initiatives on collective redress actions	38
	Introduction	38
	Two distinct initiatives in competition and consumer law	38
	Commission efforts in competition law	38
	Commission efforts in consumer law	43
	Combining the two: a horizontal approach toward collective redress actions	44
	Overview of the reasons leading to horizontal approach	44
	The proposals under the horizontal approach	46
	Impact of the horizontal approach on collective redress	49
	Distinctive approach toward collective redress actions	51
	Potential shortcomings of the horizontal approach	51
	The case for a distinctive competition law approach	55
	Concluding remarks	60
4	Objectives of collective redress actions in EU competition enforcement	62
	Introduction	62
	Determining the objectives and their significance	62
	Objectives of actions for damages	66
	The approach of the EU courts	66
	The approach of the Commission	67
	Compensation and deterrence objectives for collective redress actions	71
	The unique competition law enforcement goal and its implications for collective redress actions	71
	Objectives of collective redress actions	74
	Collective redress actions for consumers: do the objectives pursued differ?	77
	Concluding remarks	78
5	Consumer damages claims in EU competition cases	81
	Introduction	81
	Damages caused by competition infringements	81
	The types of competition infringements	81
	The types of harm resulting from competition infringements	84
	Potential damages of competition infringements	86
	The overcharge as a measure of damages in consumer cases	89
	Overcharge in collusion cases	89
	Overcharge in abuse of dominance cases	93

	The ways in which consumers are harmed	98
	Direct consumers	98
	Indirect consumers	99
	Deadweight loss consumers	105
	Umbrella consumers	107
	Concluding remarks	109
6	Grouping collective claims: Opt-in v opt-out	112
	Introduction	112
	Establishing the group membership	112
	Opt-in actions	112
	Mandatory actions	116
	Opt-out actions	116
	The proposed approach	126
	Grouping the claims	137
	The ways in which the group is defined	137
	Two necessary elements of group definition	140
	Towards an adequate group definition: what matters?	142
	The proposed approach: grouping consumer claims	146
	Concluding remarks	148
7	Designing collective redress actions: Representative party and funding rules	151
	Introduction	151
	Determining the representative party	151
	Lead plaintiff	151
	Ideological claimant	153
	Funding	156
	Liability for costs	156
	Possible options for funding	159
	Contingency fees as one of the options	163
	The proposed approach	165
	Concluding remarks	168
8	Calculation and distribution of damages in collective actions for consumers	170
	Introduction	170
	Possible ways of awarding damages to a group	170
	Aggregate v individual damages assessment	170

Aggregate damages assessment and the compensation objective	172
Calculation of damages to consumers	174
Allocation of damages	179
Distribution of damages to group members	179
Possible alternatives for undistributed damages and the proposed approach	182
Concluding remarks	187
9 Conclusions	189
Concluding remarks	189
Bibliography	198
Index	224