

Contents

- Preface xi
List of Illustrations xiii
List of Abbreviations xxii
- 1 Art and Humanism in the Renaissance 1
1 Ficino and the Visual Arts 3
2 Historical Context 14
3 Conclusion 27
- PART 1
Oculus Imaginationis
- 2 'Such stuff as dreams are made on': A Brief History of the Imagination 31
1 Classical Theories 33
2 Aristotle, Aristotelianism and the Stoics 36
3 Galen of Pergamon and Galenism 39
4 Plato and the Platonist Tradition 45
5 Hermetism 52
6 Medieval Theories: Arab Thinkers 60
7 Medieval Theories: The Latin West 62
8 Conclusion 69
- 3 Phantasia through Ficino's Lense: Focus, Refraction and Diffusion 73
1 De Divino furore and Related Texts 78
2 De amore 83
3 Theologia Platonica, Book XIII 87
4 Melancholy and furor: De vita sana (1480) 95
5 Ficino's Commentary on Priscian of Lydia 98
6 De vita II and III (1489) 102
7 Commentary on Plato's Dialogue Parmenides (1492–1494) 117
8 Imitation, Opposition and Reception 119
9 Conclusion 127

PART 2Visus*4 Botticelli's Primavera Interpreted 131

- 1 Ficino and Art from the Renaissance Onward 131
- 2 Botticelli's Primavera and The Birth of Venus 133
- 3 Interpretations of the Primavera 136
- 4 Warburg 136
- 5 Gombrich 138
- 6 Wind 141
- 7 Dempsey 145
- 8 Snow-Smith 156
- 9 Ames-Lewis 164
- 10 The Six Powers of the Soul 174
- 11 Excursus: Ficino and Images 184
- 12 Conclusion 198

5 Ficino's Fantasy and Michelangelo's Dream 203

- 1 Melancholic Genius and Its Vices 203
- 2 Michelangelo, the Melancholic 207
- 3 Michelangelo and Tommaso dei Cavalieri 212
- 4 Michelangelo's Platonism 215
- 5 Il sogno or The Dream 221
- 6 Ganymede, Tityus and Phaeton 239
- 7 A Children's Bacchanal 248
- 8 Archers 254
- 9 Conclusion 266

6 Alberti, Bartoli, Comanini: Imagination in Early-Modern Art Theory 269

- 1 Art Theory and Its Emancipation of Painting 269
- 2 Routes for the Transfer of Ficino's Ideas 270
- 3 References to Ficino's Portraits in Art Theory 277
- 4 References to Ficino's Ideas in Art Theory 281
- 5 'Thus wrote Trismegistus to Asclepius': References to Hermes Trismegistus 287
- 6 Plato's Chariot: The Artistic Risks and Promises of the Imagination 294
- 7 Fantasie, the Bizarre and Grotesque 307
- 8 Furor as Part of the Artistic Process 309

9	Melancholy as a Psychosomatic Side-Effect of the Artistic Process	313
10	Conclusion	319
7	Ficino and the Imagination: Conclusion and Summary	324
	Bibliography	333
	Index	364

In the writing of this book I have been greatly inspired by the work of many people. In the process of writing the book I have drawn inspiration from many people, but above all will be forever grateful for drawing my words of thanks to the most important guides. The first incarnation of this book was a PhD dissertation in Dutch, which has been translated, updated and rewritten several times. This final incarnation reflects my view on the subject developed over a period of many years. I am immensely grateful to my esteemed PhD supervisor Wouter van Egmond for the academic freedom he gave me, and especially Eric Jan Sluijter, who was crucial in helping me navigate the rough and arduous path of my academic career. And van de Watering trained me as an art historian and encouraged me to go further on the road of research. Valery Rees graciously allowed me to consult the depths of his encyclopedic knowledge, and he opened the way for me to present the results of my research internationally. She saved me from many difficulties.

The research for this book was funded by the Foundation for the Chair of History of Hermetic Philosophy, which also contributed substantially to the translation. I am especially grateful to Roelie Rasten. The Dutch Research Foundation (NWO), the Istituto Italiano per gli studi Filosofici, the Nethelinghe Foundation, Catharina van Tussenbroek and the Stichting Le Kolk Stichtelands facilitated a year of research at the Warburg Institute Library, the British Library, the Courtauld Institute and the Royal Collection at Windsor Castle. The ETS Press, Leiden, contributed to the funding for the translation he did my former employer, the Royal Netherlands Institute in Rome (RIN). I wish to thank Gert-Jan Buitens for helping me secure the funding and Dorothea Stoete for making it possible for me to work in Rome, where I spent some of the most important years of my career so far. Finally, I thank my editor and colleague, the Director of Humanistic Studies in Groningen, and especially Anja Middelkoop, for helping me to write this book published.

I would like to thank the various institutes generously opened their doors to me: the Dutch University Institute for History in Florence, the Biblioteca Filologica Nazionale in Padua, the Biblioteca Medicea Laurenziana, the Istituto Nazionale di Filosofia in Florence, the Westfälisches Institut, the Biblioteca