

Contents

1	Introduction – The Relationship of Labour Market Marginalisation and Social Exclusion	15
1.1	Scientific Evidence and Main Expectations about the Effects of Labour Market Marginalisation on Social Integration	16
1.2	Conceptual Framework and Analytical Approach	19
1.3	The Setup of the Empirical Analysis.....	20
1.4	Three Dimensions of the Labour Market and Social Exclusion Relationship	22
1.5	Overview of the Book	24
2	Conceptualising Labour Market Marginalisation and Social Integration	25
2.1	Determinants of Social Exclusion	26
2.1.1	Multidimensionality of Social Exclusion.....	27
2.1.2	Two Spheres of Sociability.....	29
2.2	Making Sense of the Multi-Layered Functions of Employment	30
2.2.1	Materialist Perspectives on Labour Market Disadvantage.....	32
2.2.2	Social Identity Perspectives on Labour Market Disadvantage	35
2.2.3	The Context's Influence on Individual Labour Market Experiences.....	41
2.2.4	Interrelation of Financial Distress and Identity Struggles.....	44
2.3	Dynamics of Labour Market Marginalisation	45
2.3.1	The Cumulative Tendency of Disadvantage	48
2.3.2	Social Class, Vulnerability, and the Distribution of Labour Market Risks.....	51
2.4	Summary	54
3	Data and Methods	55
3.1	A Combined Longitudinal and Multi-level Data Set	55
3.2	Sample.....	57
3.3	Data Challenges – Non-Response and Missing Values	58
3.4	Operationalisation of Core Concepts	59

3.4.1	Measuring Social Integration.....	59
3.4.2	Explaining the Labour Market Marginalisation and Social Exclusion Link.....	60
3.4.3	Contextualising Individual Labour Market Experiences	61
3.5	Methodological Considerations – Modelling Longitudinal and Hierarchical Data	62
4	Accumulation of Labour Market Disadvantage – Individual, Household, and Regional Factors	67
4.1	Path Dependency – The Cumulative Process of Disadvantage	69
4.1.1	Explaining Cumulative Tendencies of Disadvantage – the Impact of Resources and Social Roles	70
4.1.2	Gender, Partnership and Household Composition – How Social Roles Reinforce Labour Market Positions	72
4.1.3	Context Factors – the Impact of Regional Labour Markets, Wealth, Demography, and Institutional Settings	73
4.2	Analytical Strategy and Operationalisation.....	75
4.3	The Impact of Employment Histories, Favourable and Harmful Contexts	79
4.3.1	Accumulation of (Dis-) Advantage – the Intensification of Effects.....	80
4.3.2	Social Roles Determine Female Vulnerability to Labour Market Marginalisation	89
4.3.3	Regional Labour Markets, Fertility Rates, and Childcare Availability Have a Greater Impact on Female than Male Labour Market Outcomes	94
4.4	Concluding Remarks on the Accumulation of Labour Market Marginalisation	103
5	Labour Market Marginalisation and Social Embeddedness: Unravelling the Conditions for Deteriorating Personal Relations.....	107
5.1	Taking Multidimensional Linkages of Labour Market Disadvantage and Social Relations into Account.....	109
5.1.1	Gendered Effects of Labour Market Marginalisation	110
5.1.2	Age Dependent Vulnerability to Negative Labour Market Experiences.....	113

5.1.3	Linked Lives – Labour Market Marginalisation in the Household Context	116
5.1.4	Assessing the Spatial Dimension of Individual Labour Market Experiences	117
5.1.5	Summary.....	120
5.2	Analytical Strategy and Operationalisation.....	121
5.3	Exploring the Four Social-Structural Dimensions of Inequality	126
5.3.1	Gendered Patterns of Labour Market Disadvantage	127
5.3.2	Labour Market Disadvantage at Different Life Stages	129
5.3.3	The Unexpected Weak Effect of Household Composition for Labour Market Disadvantage	132
5.3.4	Contextualizing Individual Labour Market Experiences – Assessing the Impact of Regional Labour Markets, Prosperity, and Fertility	136
5.3.5	Examining Attitudinal Dimensions of Social Identity	141
5.4	Concluding Remarks on the Effects of Labour Market Marginalisation on Personal Relations.....	146
6	Labour Market Marginalisation and Public Engagement: Unravelling the Conditions for Withdrawal from Civic Participation	151
6.1	Defining Civic Participation as Social, Religious, and Political Engagement.....	154
6.2	Structural and Socio-Cultural Explanations of the Labour Market and Civic Participation Relationship.....	157
6.2.1	Structural Accounts of the Labour Market and Participation Relationship	158
6.2.2	Identifying Explanations beyond Material Resources – the Impact of Social Roles and Identity	162
6.2.3	Opportunity Structures and Normative Settings – Impact Factors at the Regional Level	166
6.2.4	Summary.....	169
6.3	Analytical Strategy and Operationalisation.....	171
6.4	Resources, Social Roles, and the Socio-Economic Context.....	177
6.4.1	The Accumulation of (Dis-) Advantage Intensifies the Effects of Labour Market Experiences	178
6.4.2	The Insignificance of Financial Mechanisms	183

6.4.3	Work Norms and Family Values Strengthen Resilience to Labour Market Marginalisation	186
6.4.4	Left Behind – Individual Marginalisation in Disadvantaged Regions	192
6.4.5	Double Advantage – Stable Careers in Contexts with Strong Participation Norms	198
6.5	Concluding Remarks on the Effects of Labour Market Marginalisation on Civic Engagement	203
7	Conclusion	209
7.1	Three Analytical Layers Shape the Relationship of Labour Market Marginalisation and Social Integration	209
7.1.1	Double (Dis-) Advantage – Social and Economic Positions and Local Contexts Affect Individual Work Trajectories	211
7.1.2	A Threat to Personal Relationships – The Vulnerability of People Whose Identity Depends on Paid Labour	212
7.1.3	Social Identity, Available Time, and Family Values Shape the Effects of Labour Market and Civic Participation	213
7.2	Putting the Results in Perspective – Common Threads, Limitations, and Future Research Avenues	214
7.2.1	The Weak Explanatory Impact of Financial Strain	215
7.2.2	The Importance of Social Roles and Identity	215
7.2.3	The Impact of Local Contexts for Individual Experiences of Social Integration	216
7.2.4	The Multifaceted Role of Labour Market Participation for Social Integration	217
8	References	221
9	Appendix	239
9.1	Chapter 04	239
9.2	Chapter 05	245
9.3	Chapter 06	254
10	Index	265