

Contents

General Editor's Preface	vii
Preface	ix
Table of Cases involving the Hague Child Abduction Convention	xvii
Table of Non-Hague Child Abduction Convention Cases	xxxii
1. Introduction	1
I. Origins	2
II. Nature of the Problem	3
III. Structure and Methodology	4
2. Sociological Review and Analysis of International Child Abductions	7
I. The Abductor	7
II. Motivations	11
III. The Child	11
IV. Conclusions	13
3. The Evolution of an International Convention: the Hague Model	16
I. The Preparation and Drafting of the Hague Child Abduction Convention	16
II. The Strengths and Weaknesses of the Hague Model	23
4. Aims of the Convention	28
I. The Interests of Children are Paramount in Custody Matters	29
II. Wrongfully Removed or Retained Children are to be Returned Forthwith	31
III. Subsidiary Aims	33
5. Removal and Retention	36
I. Removal and Retention: Meaning	37
1. Can there be a Wrongful Retention where Custody Rights are Attributed after the Child's Departure?	40
2. The Commencement of a Wrongful Retention	40
3. Anticipated Non-return	41
4. Child-inspired Removals or Retentions	42
5. Re-abductions	43
6. Rights of Custody	45
I. The Applicable Law: (Renvoi)	46
II. The Sources of Custody Rights Under the Convention	48
1. Custody Rights Arising Ex Lege	48

2. Custody Rights Existing by Reason of a Judicial or Administrative Decision	51
(a) Interim Decisions	51
(b) Chasing Orders	52
3. Custody Rights Existing by Reason of an Agreement Having Legal Effect	57
III. The Breach of Custody Rights	61
1. Article 15	63
IV. Who Can Exercise Custody Rights?	66
V. Who May Bring a Convention Application? Article 8	70
VI. The Semi-Autonomous Nature of Rights of Custody Under the Convention	74
1. Joint Rights of Custody	75
2. Is the Right to Determine the Child's Place of Residence a Custody Right?	75
3. When do Rights to Care for the Child Become Rights Under the Convention?	82
VII. The Actual Exercise of Rights of Custody	83
VIII. Conclusions	86
7. Habitual Residence	88
I. History and Theory	88
1. Is Intention Enough?	90
2. Multiple Habitual Residences?	91
II. Habitual Residence and Children	91
III. Involuntary Habitual Residence	93
IV. Loss of Habitual Residence	96
V. Acquisition of Habitual Residence	101
1. Settled Intention	102
2. Appreciable Period of Time	106
VI. Concurrent Habitual Residences	110
VII. Conclusions	112
8. Article 13(1)(a): Has the Dispossessed Parent Consented to or Subsequently Acquiesced in the Removal or Retention?	114
I. Introduction	114
II. Acquiescence	115
1. Active or Passive	115
2. Knowledge of Convention Rights?	118
3. Conduct Consistent with an Acceptance of the Status Quo	119
4. Express Words	123
5. Acquiescence Arising Out of Inaction	125
6. Exercise of the Discretion to Return	127
III. Consent	127
1. Exercise of the Discretion to Return	131
IV. Conclusions	131

9. The Protection of Children Where a Return May Result in Harm: Article 13(1)(b), Undertakings and Article 20	135
I. Introduction	135
II. Article 13(1)(b)	138
1. Grave Risk	141
2. Physical Harm	142
3. Psychological Harm	143
(a) Separation From the Abductor	145
(b) Material Disadvantage	149
(c) Harm Within the Status Quo Ante	150
4. Intolerable Situation	151
(a) Material and Financial Hardship	152
(b) Problems Related to the Legal System in the Requesting State	154
5. Exercise of the Discretion to Return	155
6. Conclusions	155
III. Undertakings	156
(a) Form	158
(b) Legal Basis	159
1. The Imposition of Undertakings	161
2. Voluntary Undertakings	163
(a) A Concession	163
(b) A Response to a Real and Definable Risk	164
3. Enforcement	166
4. Safe-Harbour Orders	167
5. Judicial Co-operation	168
6. Protective Transitory Measures	168
7. Conclusions	169
IV. Article 20	172
10. The Right of a Child to Object to a Return: Article 13(2)	177
I. Introduction	177
II. A Child Objects	180
1. Ascertainment of the Child's Views	181
2. The Procedure Employed	183
3. Separate Representation	185
4. What Constitutes a Valid Objection?	187
III. Age and Maturity	191
IV. Exercise of the Discretion to Return	193
1. Undue Parental Influence	197
2. The Combination of Article 13(2) With Other Exceptions	198
3. Treatment of Teenagers	199
V. Conclusions	201

11. Article 12(2): The Child is Now Settled in its New Environment	203
I. Twelve Months Have Elapsed	205
II. The Child is Now Settled in its New Environment	206
III. Exercise of the Discretion to Return	208
IV. Conclusions	209
12. Rights of Access	210
I. Article 21 in Practice	211
II. Conclusions	214
13. Relationship of the Hague Convention with Other International Instruments	216
I. Introduction	216
II. Brussels II	217
III. The Hague Convention on the Protection of Children	218
IV. The Council of Europe Convention	221
V. Conclusions	224
14. Interpretation	226
I. The Interpretation of Private International Law Conventions: An Overview	226
II. The Scheme and Drafting of the Convention	228
III. Methods of Interpretation	229
IV. Aids to Interpretation	232
1. Article 1 and Preamble	232
2. Travaux Préparatoires	233
3. Foreign Case Law	235
4. French Language Text	236
5. Academic Writings	237
6. Other International Instruments	237
V. Conclusions: Achieving Uniform Interpretation	238
15. The Child Abduction Convention in Practice	241
I. International Co-operation	242
1. Central Authorities	243
2. Voluntary Returns	246
3. Legal Aid	247
4. Permanent Bureau of the Hague Conference	248
II. Implementation of the Convention	248
1. United Kingdom: England	249
2. United Kingdom: Scotland	250
3. United States	251
4. France	255
III. Convention Proceedings	256
IV. Conclusions	259

16. Conclusions on the Convention: Suggestions for Reform	261
Appendix I: Hague Convention on the Civil Aspects of International Child Abduction (English Text)	269
Appendix II: Convention sur les Aspects Civils de l'Enlèvement International de l'Enfant (French Text)	279
Appendix III: Table of Ratifications and Accessions	289
Appendix IV: Hague Convention Statistics	301
Selection of Annual Statistics	303
Bibliography	305
Index	325