Contents

Pre	face			xiii
		breviati	ions	XV
1	Introduction to the EU enforcement system and the goals of the Damages Directive
	A	_	1
	A	I	The enforcement powers of the European	1
		1	Commission	1
		II	The enforcement powers of NCAs	8
		Ш	Private enforcement of EU Commission law	11
	В	The in	nterplay of public and private enforcement	13
	C	Resea	arch objectives	17
	D	Metho	odology	20
		I	Deterrence	21
		П	Compensation	23
		III	The problem of over-enforcement	26
	E	Struct	ture of the book	28
PART I		DIR	E IMPLEMENTATION OF THE DAMAGES ECTIVE: A NEW LEVEL PLAYING FIELD EUROPE?
2	The	implem	entation of the Damages Directive: harmonised
4			npetition damages litigation in Europe?	31
	A		ground: the path towards harmonised rules in	9
		Europ	be for actions for damages for competition law
		infrin	gements	32
		I amo	The right of any individual to claim damages for a breach of competition rules after Courage and Manfredi	33
		П	The Commission's initiatives to harmonise	33
		11	private enforcement in Europe	41
		III	The Commission's initiatives for a collective	Chi in regime for competition damages	44

	В	The rules of the Damages Directive and the implementation into national laws
		I	The legal basis	50
		II	The scope of the Directive	52
		III	Disclosure of evidence	57
		IV	Disclosure of evidence contained in the authority's file	65
		V	Effect of national competition authorities' decisions	69
		VI	Limitation periods	75
		VII	Joint and several liability	79
		VIII	Passing-on	88
		IX	Quantification and presumption of harm	92
		X	Consensual dispute resolution/settlements	96
		XI	Temporal scope	99
	C	A nev	v level playing field for competition damages
		action	s in Europe?	105
	D	Concl	usion	106
PA	RTII	INF	NTRIBUTION AMONG JOINT RINGERS OF COMPETITION LAW IN HT OF THE DAMAGES DIRECTIVE
3			n the US: the no-contribution rule and its ity in Europe	109
	A	Introduction 10
	В			109
		I	The current legal regime in the US	109
		II	Historical development of the no-contribution rule in the US	113
		III	Criticism of the no-contribution rule in the US	115
		IV	Potential justifications for the no-contribution rule	127
	C			135
	C		ntribution is not an option in Europe?	133
	D	Concl	usion	13/
4			ribution right: the allocation of liability among ers of EU competition law based on relative
	respo	nsibilit		139
	A	Introd	uction	139
	В	The all	llocation of liability according to the Damages ive	140

Contents

C	Relative responsibility and the criteria for determining contribution
	I	Turnover/sales value	145
	II	Market shares	146
	III	The role in the infringement	148
	IV	Allocation per capita	149
	V	Allocation based on gains from the infringement	150
	VI	The economic approach: Shapley value	152
D	Methods for the quantification of the infringer's responsibility for the infringement
	I	Criticism of relative responsibility	161
	II	Responsibility in terms of justice	165
	III	Theories of causation in fact	167
	IV	The underlying dogma of the causation theories	175
	V	The conditions for allocation based on
	2250	responsibility in competition cases	176
	VI	Digression: similar dogma based on the economic theories on uncertainty over causation	180
	VII	Proposal for relative responsibility based on the overcharge, role in the cartel, and market shares	183
E		sment of the deterrent effect of the different ods for the allocation of liability	183
	I	The model scenario	184
	II	Allocation per capita	187
	III	Allocation by sales value	187
	IV	Allocation based on gains from the infringement	188
	V	Allocation rules based on market data (market shares/Shapley value)	189
	VI	Relative responsibility based on	283
		a combination of illicit gain, market shares, and the role in the cartel	189
	VII	The need for harmonisation of the allocation of liability among joint competition infringers	190
F	Concl		192
		cation of the role in the cartel for the relative by of joint infringers of EU competition law	194
A		luction	194
В	The ro	ole in the (cartel) infringement	195
C		djustment of fines based on the role in the infringement	197

	I	Mitigating circumstances		198
	II	Aggravating circumstances		211
	III			215
D	Adju
	the infringement			215
E	The a	attractiveness of settlements		218
F	Appl	ication of adjustment for the role in the cartel		220
G	Conc	lusion		221
RTIII
A mis	ssed of	pportunity to reconcile compensation of victims
		vincentives		224
A	Intro	duction		224
В
	to len			227
	I			228
	II	Member States' case law on access to leniency documents		229
	III	Further complications following from the Transparency Regulation		230
C	The Directive's new rules on compensation of victims, access to evidence and immunity recipients'			232
	I	Compensation of victims versus effectiveness of the leniency programme		232
	II	Binding effect of national competition
		authorities' decisions		233
	III	Presumption of harm		234
	IV	Disclosure of evidence		234
	V	Joint and several liability and liability cap for immunity recipients		236
	VI	The trade-off between compensation of victims and leniency incentives		238
D	A gar			239
	I	The legal situation prior to the Directive		241
	II	The impact of the Directive		243
E	-			246
	E F G RT III A mis and le A B	III D Adjuthe in E The a F Appl G Conc RT III THI ON A missed of and lenienc A Intro B Previous to lend I III III III III III III III I	II Aggravating circumstances III Summary of the analysis D Adjusting the allocation of civil liability for the role in the infringement E The attractiveness of settlements F Application of adjustment for the role in the cartel G Conclusion RT III THE IMPACT OF THE DAMAGES DIRECTIVE ON THE EU LENIENCY PROGRAMME A missed opportunity to reconcile compensation of victims and leniency incentives A Introduction B Previous EU law and Member States' laws on access to leniency documents I The case law of the European Courts II Member States' case law on access to leniency documents III Further complications following from the Transparency Regulation C The Directive's new rules on compensation of victims, access to evidence and immunity recipients' limited liability I Compensation of victims versus effectiveness of the leniency programme II Binding effect of national competition authorities' decisions III Presumption of harm IV Disclosure of evidence V Joint and several liability and liability cap for immunity recipients VI The trade-off between compensation of victims and leniency incentives D A game theoretical analysis of the Directive I The legal situation prior to the Directive II The impact of the Directive	II Aggravating circumstances III Summary of the analysis D Adjusting the allocation of civil liability for the role in the infringement E The attractiveness of settlements F Application of adjustment for the role in the cartel G Conclusion RT III THE IMPACT OF THE DAMAGES DIRECTIVE ON THE EU LENIENCY PROGRAMME A missed opportunity to reconcile compensation of victims and leniency incentives A Introduction B Previous EU law and Member States' laws on access to leniency documents I The case law of the European Courts II Member States' case law on access to leniency documents III Further complications following from the Transparency Regulation C The Directive's new rules on compensation of victims, access to evidence and immunity recipients' limited liability I Compensation of victims versus effectiveness of the leniency programme II Binding effect of national competition authorities' decisions III Presumption of harm IV Disclosure of evidence V Joint and several liability and liability cap for immunity recipients VI The trade-off between compensation of victims and leniency incentives D A game theoretical analysis of the Directive I The legal situation prior to the Directive II The impact of the Directive I The impact of the Directive I The impact of the Directive

Contents

			from the perspectives of deterrence and
			compensatory justice	247
		II	A game theoretical argument supporting proportionate damages	249
	F	Poter	ntial objections against proportionate damages	255
		I	The rise of damages actions since the implementation of the Directive and the impact on the EU leniency programme	260
		II	Proportionate damages if all firms have received fine reductions or a non-cooperating firm has disappeared from the market	262
		III	Efficiency and a potential corrective justice objection	266
		IV	Moral, fairness, and retribution objections	268
		V	A potential over-deterrence objection	270
	G	Conc	lusion	271
7		* *	oach to the calculation of competition fines to nes and damages	274
	A		duction	274
	В		ent method of calculating fines	276
		I	Background of the Fines Guidelines	276
		II	The methodology of the 2006 Fines Guidelines	278
		III	Deterrence under the current fining regime	280
	C	A nev	w approach for the calculation of fines	283
		I	The need for a new approach to the calculation of fines	283
		II	Integrating damages into the calculation of fines	285
	D	Practical implications of the new approach		287
		I	The damages of entitled claimants to be included in the calculation of fines	288
		II	The relevant time period for the estimation of civil liability	290
		III	Burden and standard of proof for the harm caused by the infringement	292
		IV	Blocking an amount for the estimated damages	293

		V Including a presumption of harm in the methodology	294
		VI Causation	303
		VII Methods to quantify the harm	310
		VIII Determining the amount of fines (F)	311
		IX Summary of the changes to the current method of calculating fines	314
	E	Optimal level of fines – determining the 'entry fee'	315
		I Compensation theory and the new approach	315
		II Deterrence theory and the new approach	318
		III Probability of detection	319
		IV Adjusting the 'entry fee'	320
	F	Advantages of the new approach	321
	G	The principle of proportionality and equal treatment	323
	H	Examples: Synthetic Rubber and Bananas	327
	I	Conclusion	330
8	Cone	luding remarks	332
	A	Contribution claims	332
	В	Leniency incentives	334
	C	Fines and damages	335
	D	Further research	336
Ann	ex 1		338
Ann	ex 2		353
Annex 3			362
Annex 4			364
711111	CA T		204
Inde	ex		366