Contents

	List of figures	X
	List of tables	xi
	Preface	xii
1	Framing the research	1
	1.1 Introduction 1
	1.2 Research context and questions 3	A S
	1.3 Structure of the book 4
2	Towards a post-growth society and economy	7
	2.1 Analysis of societal conditions: modernisation theory 7
	2.2 The ecological basis: climate change and further planetary boundaries 11
	2.3 The economic growth trap: a system theoretical approach 15
	2.4 Approaches for redefining economy and society 24
3	Governing commons	63
	3.1 Commons – a special type of goods 64
	3.2 Countering the 'tragedy of the commons' 65	47. 3
	3.3 Principles of the governance of commons following Ostrom 66	los.
	3.4 Critique of Ostrom's theory 69 3.5 Policy implications 71
4	Methodological approach	77
	4.1 Embedding the research into an interdisciplinary multi-stakeholder project 77

ST. TELEDON Indicate between the William Services

LOL samo net zaoudz mascy to someralez all'il su'il

Li della Comercia de America della Brita, intrancia della Cina della Cina della Comercia della Comercia della

All deingmon labigatore-chor set to be been proposed at left. I. d.

ment, but to but and another force force to college and another with all the green

THE PROPERTY OF STREET AND ASSESSED OF THE PARTY OF THE P

1		0
te	nten	(.01	11	V11
,	ILLE II	1011	11	VII

4.3 Research strategy 79 5 Urban spaces—green spaces, and observed socio-ecological transition 10 5.1 The relevance of cities for the socio-ecological transition 100 5.2 The relevance of green spaces for cities 101 5.3 The state of the local socio-ecological transition and of the green spaces resource system — decreasing availability of urban green spaces 102 6 Social innovation and urban spaces of civil society action 109 6.1 Social innovation 109 6.2 The corrective power of civil society 112 6.3 Spaces of civil society action 129 7 Reappropriating urban green spaces and urban food production 1. 7.1 Power, democracy, and public space 158 7.2 Disappearance and loss of public space/privatisation 159 7.3 (Re) appropriation of public space — defending urban green spaces: self-organisation in reaction to the reduction of urban green spaces for building and infrastructure development 159 7.4 Urban food production 163 8 Actors' motivations 180 8.1 A theoretical model 180 8.2 Motivations to commit oneself to sustainability issues 185 8.3 Motivations for producing food in the city 192 9 Proposing an innovative policy framework as resulting from identified barriers and conducive conditions for citizen participation, self-organisation, and the socio-ecological		4.2 Applying Ostrom's theory to urban resource systems – the WWWforEurope project ROCSET 78
transition 5.1 The relevance of cities for the socio-ecological transition 100 5.2 The relevance of green spaces for cities 101 5.3 The state of the local socio-ecological transition and of the green spaces resource system – decreasing availability of urban green spaces 102 6 Social innovation and urban spaces of civil society action 6.1 Social innovation 109 6.2 The corrective power of civil society 112 6.3 Spaces of civil society action 129 7 Reappropriating urban green spaces and urban food production 7.1 Power, democracy, and public space 158 7.2 Disappearance and loss of public space/privatisation 159 7.3 (Re)appropriation of public space — defending urban green spaces: self-organisation in reaction to the reduction of urban green spaces for building and infrastructure development 159 7.4 Urban food production 163 8 Actors' motivations 8.1 A theoretical model 180 8.2 Motivations to commit oneself to sustainability issues 185 8.3 Motivations for producing food in the city 192 9 Proposing an innovative policy framework as resulting from identified barriers and conducive conditions for citizen participation, self-organisation, and the socio-ecological transition 9.1 Local decision-making autonomy 204 9.2 Financial means 208 9.3 Legal framework 213 9.4 Functioning of the local authority 218
 5.2 The relevance of green spaces for cities 101 5.3 The state of the local socio-ecological transition and of the green spaces resource system – decreasing availability of urban green spaces 102 6 Social innovation and urban spaces of civil society action 6.1 Social innovation 109 6.2 The corrective power of civil society 112 6.3 Spaces of civil society action 129 7 Reappropriating urban green spaces and urban food production 7.1 Power, democracy, and public space 158 7.2 Disappearance and loss of public space/privatisation 159 7.3 (Re)appropriation of public space – defending urban green spaces: self-organisation in reaction to the reduction of urban green spaces for building and infrastructure development 159 7.4 Urban food production 163 8 Actors' motivations 8.1 A theoretical model 180 8.2 Motivations to commit oneself to sustainability issues 185 8.3 Motivations for producing food in the city 192 9 Proposing an innovative policy framework as resulting from identified barriers and conducive conditions for citizen participation, self-organisation, and the socio-ecological transition 9.1 Local decision-making autonomy 204 9.2 Financial means 208 9.3 Legal framework 213 9.4 Functioning of the local authority 218 	5		100
6.1 Social innovation 109 6.2 The corrective power of civil society 112 6.3 Spaces of civil society action 129 7 Reappropriating urban green spaces and urban food production 7.1 Power, democracy, and public space 158 7.2 Disappearance and loss of public space/privatisation 159 7.3 (Re)appropriation of public space – defending urban green spaces: self-organisation in reaction to the reduction of urban green spaces for building and infrastructure development 159 7.4 Urban food production 163 8 Actors' motivations 8.1 A theoretical model 180 8.2 Motivations to commit oneself to sustainability issues 185 8.3 Motivations for producing food in the city 192 9 Proposing an innovative policy framework as resulting from identified barriers and conducive conditions for citizen participation, self-organisation, and the socio-ecological transition 9.1 Local decision-making autonomy 204 9.2 Financial means 208 9.3 Legal framework 213 9.4 Functioning of the local authority 218		 5.2 The relevance of green spaces for cities 101 5.3 The state of the local socio-ecological transition and of the green spaces resource system – decreasing availability of urban green
6.2 The corrective power of civil society 112 6.3 Spaces of civil society action 129 7 Reappropriating urban green spaces and urban food production 7.1 Power, democracy, and public space 158 7.2 Disappearance and loss of public space/privatisation 159 7.3 (Re)appropriation of public space – defending urban green spaces: self-organisation in reaction to the reduction of urban green spaces for building and infrastructure development 159 7.4 Urban food production 163 8 Actors' motivations 8.1 A theoretical model 180 8.2 Motivations to commit oneself to sustainability issues 185 8.3 Motivations for producing food in the city 192 9 Proposing an innovative policy framework as resulting from identified barriers and conducive conditions for citizen participation, self-organisation, and the socio-ecological transition 9.1 Local decision-making autonomy 204 9.2 Financial means 208 9.3 Legal framework 213 9.4 Functioning of the local authority 218	6	Social innovation and urban spaces of civil society action	109
6.3 Spaces of civil society action 129 Reappropriating urban green spaces and urban food production 7.1 Power, democracy, and public space 158 7.2 Disappearance and loss of public space/privatisation 159 7.3 (Re)appropriation of public space – defending urban green spaces: self-organisation in reaction to the reduction of urban green spaces for building and infrastructure development 159 7.4 Urban food production 163 8 Actors' motivations 8.1 A theoretical model 180 8.2 Motivations to commit oneself to sustainability issues 185 8.3 Motivations for producing food in the city 192 9 Proposing an innovative policy framework as resulting from identified barriers and conducive conditions for citizen participation, self-organisation, and the socio-ecological transition 9.1 Local decision-making autonomy 204 9.2 Financial means 208 9.3 Legal framework 213 9.4 Functioning of the local authority 218		6.1 Social innovation 109
Reappropriating urban green spaces and urban food production 7.1 Power, democracy, and public space 158 7.2 Disappearance and loss of public space/privatisation 159 7.3 (Re)appropriation of public space – defending urban green spaces: self-organisation in reaction to the reduction of urban green spaces for building and infrastructure development 159 7.4 Urban food production 163 8 Actors' motivations 8.1 A theoretical model 180 8.2 Motivations to commit oneself to sustainability issues 185 8.3 Motivations for producing food in the city 192 9 Proposing an innovative policy framework as resulting from identified barriers and conducive conditions for citizen participation, self-organisation, and the socio-ecological transition 9.1 Local decision-making autonomy 204 9.2 Financial means 208 9.3 Legal framework 213 9.4 Functioning of the local authority 218
 7.1 Power, democracy, and public space 158 7.2 Disappearance and loss of public space/privatisation 159 7.3 (Re) appropriation of public space – defending urban green spaces: self-organisation in reaction to the reduction of urban green spaces for building and infrastructure development 159 7.4 Urban food production 163 8 Actors' motivations 8.1 A theoretical model 180 8.2 Motivations to commit oneself to sustainability issues 185 8.3 Motivations for producing food in the city 192 9 Proposing an innovative policy framework as resulting from identified barriers and conducive conditions for citizen participation, self-organisation, and the socio-ecological transition 9.1 Local decision-making autonomy 204 9.2 Financial means 208 9.3 Legal framework 213 9.4 Functioning of the local authority 218 		6.3 Spaces of civil society action 129
 7.2 Disappearance and loss of public space/privatisation 159 7.3 (Re)appropriation of public space – defending urban green spaces: self-organisation in reaction to the reduction of urban green spaces for building and infrastructure development 159 7.4 Urban food production 163 8 Actors' motivations 8.1 A theoretical model 180 8.2 Motivations to commit oneself to sustainability issues 185 8.3 Motivations for producing food in the city 192 9 Proposing an innovative policy framework as resulting from identified barriers and conducive conditions for citizen participation, self-organisation, and the socio-ecological transition 9.1 Local decision-making autonomy 204 9.2 Financial means 208 9.3 Legal framework 213 9.4 Functioning of the local authority 218 	7	Reappropriating urban green spaces and urban food production	158
8.1 A theoretical model 180 8.2 Motivations to commit oneself to sustainability issues 185 8.3 Motivations for producing food in the city 192 Proposing an innovative policy framework as resulting from identified barriers and conducive conditions for citizen participation, self-organisation, and the socio-ecological transition 9.1 Local decision-making autonomy 204 9.2 Financial means 208 9.3 Legal framework 213 9.4 Functioning of the local authority 218		 7.2 Disappearance and loss of public space/privatisation 159 7.3 (Re)appropriation of public space – defending urban green spaces: self-organisation in reaction to the reduction of urban green spaces for building and infrastructure development 159
8.1 A theoretical model 180 8.2 Motivations to commit oneself to sustainability issues 185 8.3 Motivations for producing food in the city 192 Proposing an innovative policy framework as resulting from identified barriers and conducive conditions for citizen participation, self-organisation, and the socio-ecological transition 9.1 Local decision-making autonomy 204 9.2 Financial means 208 9.3 Legal framework 213 9.4 Functioning of the local authority 218	8	Actors' motivations	180
identified barriers and conducive conditions for citizen participation, self-organisation, and the socio-ecological transition 9.1 Local decision-making autonomy 204 9.2 Financial means 208 9.3 Legal framework 213 9.4 Functioning of the local authority 218		8.1 A theoretical model 180 8.2 Motivations to commit oneself to sustainability issues 185
 9.2 Financial means 208 9.3 Legal framework 213 9.4 Functioning of the local authority 218 	9	identified barriers and conducive conditions for citizen participation, self-organisation, and the socio-ecological	203
		 9.2 Financial means 208 9.3 Legal framework 213 9.4 Functioning of the local authority 218

Asiata francials/ Et la auty. - La

5.1 Relation between the research variables.

and Crimer participation and self-consinisation -

A south and the state of the second s

the state of the second second who sall al beat animaben, not sowheld to be.

itentiform arrespondent and a stort participation of the property and story and the st

10 Steps to post-growth European cities

245

10.1 Civil society's role in the governance of urban green spaces in European cities 24510.2 Conclusion 248

international desiration of the company of the comp

In the read of the Contract of the market of an engineer at contract backing both in the first of the contract of the contract to table a conference and the experimental policy of the appropriate for the formal and the first of Pendonial differences in accepts showing concrete leaders in restriction and as it is not interested and the field of the property of the contract of the c

- (1) equipment this decrease the boy levier amignes and och anomavagom.

And the mishpin of machinemical implicationals interesting to violetave to A. - 1.8

(I) among quilidectionable of bowlers in administrational references and and entrei viilidatieteise zii biizigeri hmeend es roturiteri interese? - 2.8

ai berlegane artumped tot meinerinen becenning myelved in and tentring to their not enother their anticomes and attention in a standard language. It is a

· . The second distance is a clear plant of the second of

The same of the second control of the same built and the same of the second of the second of the second of the

10.2 Conclusion 240

Index

181

981

254