

CONTENTS

List of figures	xii
List of tables	xiv
List of mini-cases	xv
List of theory boxes	xix
Introduction	xxi

PART I

Customer experience marketing: back to origins 1

- 1 Four key changes in consumer behavior: digital, empowerment, emotion, and postmodernism 3

Digital transformation and its impact on consumption 3

Drivers of digital transformation 4

Digital transformation challenges and opportunities for brands? 9

The making of the empowered consumer 15

What is consumer empowerment? 15

What are the pillars of consumer empowerment? 16

How is the empowered consumer driving new brand opportunities? 21

The key role of emotion in the consumer brand experience 23

Defining the notion of “consumer emotion” and its typologies 23

The role of employees as emotional motivators 26

Emotional branding through the consumer experience 27

Postmodernism and the transition to experiential consumption	27
From modernism to postmodernism	28
The rise of the postmodern consumer society	31
2 Theoretical underpinnings for customer experience marketing: origins, customer journey, and experience touchpoints		42
Customer experience: from philosophy to marketing	43
The concept of “experience”: what am I talking about?	43
What is customer experience?	47
Theoretical underpinnings for customer experience	59
Experience touchpoints through customer journey	66
3 A framework for conceptualizing customer experience marketing: drivers, markers, and outcomes		68
Drivers of customer experience marketing	69
Idiocentric drivers of customer experience	69
Allocentric drivers of customer experience	85
Markers of customer experience marketing	100
Customer experience is holistic	100
Customer experience is cumulative	102
Customer experience is subjective and personal	103
Customer experience is an assemblage	104
Customer experience is contrasting	105
Outcomes of customer experience marketing	107
Value	107
Transformation	108
Competency	109
Memorability	109
PART II
The new experiential marketing mix (7Es)		111
4 Experience: Experience Territory Matrix (ETM), stages, and EXQUAL tool		113
Experience Territory Matrix (ETM)	114
Enchantment territory	119
Re-enchantment territory	121

Disenchantment territory	121
Enchantment-gap territory	122
Stages of customer experience	123
EXQUAL tool	125
5 Exchange: co-creation and collaborative marketing	130
Co-creation as value-in-exchange in customer experience	130
Customers as employees	132
From service-dominant logic to experience-dominant logic	134
Collaborative marketing: the art of putting consumers to work	138
6 Extension: experience continuum and intra/extra-domestic experiences	143
Experience continuum	144
Intra- and extra-domestic experiences	150
7 Emphasis: brand culture emphasis and storytelling	153
Brand culture emphasis	154
From brand content to brand culture	154
The theory of brand culture	156
Storytelling	161
Transforming a brand's positioning into storytelling	164
The hero's journey	165
8 Empathy capital: empathy concept, empathy experience, and empathy capital formation	167
The empathy concept	167
What does empathy mean?	168
Empathy: origins and evolution	169
Empathy and areas of confusion	171
The forms of empathy	173
Empathy in customer experience	174
Definition	174
Empathy experience functioning	175
Components of empathic customer experience	175
Empathy in the experiential marketing mix	176
Empathy capital formation	179
Empathy map	179
McLaren's empathy model	180

9	Emotional touchpoints: from customer touchpoints to emotional touchpoints and emotional touchpoints toolkit	183
	From customer touchpoints to emotional touchpoints	184
	Emotional touchpoints toolkit	188
10	Emic/etic process: emic/etic perspective and sociocultural customer journey	193
	Emic and etic perspectives in the experiential marketing mix	194
	Emic and etic perspectives: origins and definitions	194
	Emic and etic perspectives in consumer research	195
	Emic and etic perspectives through CCT lenses	200
	Sociocultural mapping of customer journey: emic/etic perspective	201
PART III
	Future challenges in customer experience design	205
11	Phygital customer experience: definition, characteristics, types, and key success factors	207
	What does phygital customer experience mean?	208
	Characteristics of phygital experiences	210
	Typologies of phygital experiences	215
	Connected experience	215
	Web experience	217
	Virtual and augmented reality experience	218
	Socio-digital experience	219
	Re-creative digital experience	220
	Cyborg experience	221
	Tools to design phygital experiences	221
	Web 3.0	221
	Interactive and collaborative tools	222
	The flow tool	223
	Key success factors	224
	The use of virtual agents for immersion and interaction	225
	The importance of efficiency	226
12	Storyliving, the future of customer experience design: from story to action and storyliving strategies	228
	From story to action	229
	Storyliving strategies	230

13 Customer experience research methods: experiential and e-experiential research methods	235
Experiential research methods	236
Projective techniques	237
Qualitative Diary Research (QDR)	242
Ethnography	244
Interactive and subjective personal introspection	248
E-experiential research methods	253
Netnography	253
Mobile self-ethnography	255
 Conclusion	 258
References	259
Index	273