

5–8 Introduction to the new edition

9–11 Foreword by Stefan Sagmeister

12–16 Introduction to the original edition

17–26 Chapter 1 Attributes needed by the modern designer A discussion about the key attributes required by the contemporary graphic designer. Or how to prevent your work being mangled by irate clients.

27–36 Chapter 2 Professional skills Investigation of the key ‘hard’ and ‘soft’ skills required by the modern designer. Or the non-designing part of being a graphic designer.

37–48 Chapter 3 How to find a job A guide to finding the right job. Or what employers are really looking for when they interview a designer.

49–62 Chapter 4 Freelance or setting up a studio Comparison of working as a freelance graphic designer and setting up a studio with others. Or pros and cons of solo life vs. communal life.

63–72 Chapter 5 Running a studio Examination of the main business and creative aspects of running a design studio. Or how to be a progressive employer.

73–86 Chapter 6 Finding new work and self-promotion Identification of the best ways to attract good work. Or why worrying about where the next job is coming from never goes away.

87–96 Chapter 7 Clients Why there is no such thing as a bad client, only bad client handling. Or why we always blame our clients for our own failings.

97–110 Chapter 8 What is graphic design today? How global trends in design and culture are materially affecting the lives of graphic designers. Or why graphic design is no longer just about form, shape and colour.

111–124 Chapter 9 The creative process Analysis of creativity at a time when most graphic design is about sameness and following formulae. Or why creativity means taking risks.

125–166 Interviews: Jonathan Barnbrook (UK) on graphic design and ethics / Ben Drury (UK) on graphic design and design for music / Sara De Bondt (UK) on graphic design and gender / Stephen Doyle (USA) on graphic design and hiring and employing designers / Paul Sahre (USA) on graphic design and illustration / Dmitri Siegel (USA) on graphic design and web design / Sophie Thomas (UK) on graphic design and sustainability / Magnus Voll Mathiassen (Norway) on graphic design and starting a studio
