

Contents

List of illustrations

Acknowledgments

1 Introduction

- Modernity and postmodernity
- Citizenship
- Embodiment

2 Freedom

- Kishida Toshiko and the Torch of Freedom
- 'On wives and concubines'
- Kusunose Kita and women's political rights
- Gendering the Meiji state
- Women's education
- Christian women's organisations
- Patriotic women
- Women in the early socialist movement
- Feminism and individualism

3 The New Women

- 'I am a New Woman'
- Sexuality and survival
- 'From a Woman in Prison'
- The maternal body
- Mothers, children and the state
- The New Women's Association
- 'Suffrage is the key'
- Purity, corruption and political space

4 The Red Wave

- The body of the worker
- The state and women's labour
- Liberalism, socialism and feminism
- Socialist women's organisations
- Yamakawa Kikue and 'women's special demands'
- Proletarian parties and women's leagues
- Imperialism and colonialism

page xii

xiii

1

2

4

10

15

15

16

19

21

25

29

30

32

35

45

45

49

51

52

55

58

60

63

73

73

75

77

79

81

84

87

|  |            |
|--|------------|
| Communist women                              | 89         |
| Writing the revolution                       | 90         |
| Gendering the anarchist–bolshevist debates   | 91         |
| 5 The Homefront                       | 99  |
| The homefront and the battlefield            | 99         |
| Manchuria, internationalism and nationalism  | 99         |
| From the kitchen to the streets              | 103        |
| Feminists and the wartime state              | 104        |
| Total national mobilisation                  | 106        |
| Sentiment, sexuality and the state           | 109        |
| Production and reproduction                  | 111        |
| 15 August 1945                               | 113        |
| 6 Citizens                            | 120 |
| Out of the darkness                          | 120        |
| Speaking for Japanese women                  | 122        |
| The Female Diet Members' Club                | 123        |
| Equal under the law                          | 127        |
| Women and unions                             | 131        |
| Debating domestic labour                     | 132        |
| Mothers, peace and democracy                 | 134        |
| The sexual subtext                           | 136        |
| 7 Liberation                          | 144 |
| Liberation from the toilet                   | 144        |
| Women and the New Left                       | 145        |
| Agora  | 150        |
| From Women to Women                          | 152        |
| Femintern Press                              | 152        |
| Fighting Women                               | 155        |
| Liberating the body                          | 157        |
| Woman and Eros                               | 159        |
| Wonderful Women                              | 159        |
| The new Bluestockings                        | 160        |
| Women's studies                              | 162        |
| Fighting for reproductive control            | 164        |
| 8 Action                              | 174 |
| 'I'm the one who cooks them!'                | 174        |
| The International Women's Year Action Group  | 175        |
| International Women's Decade                 | 178        |
| Campaigns for equal opportunity              | 179        |
| Rhetorics of protection, rhetorics of rights | 180        |
| Implementing equal opportunity               | 184        |
| Work, welfare and social policy              | 186        |
| Equal opportunity in education               | 190        |
| Nationality and gender                       | 191        |
| Reproduction revisited                       | 192        |

|   |            |
|---|------------|
| Feminism and the media                  | 193        |
| The 'Madonna' boom                      | 195        |
| 9 Difference                     | 202 |
| Beijing and beyond                      | 202        |
| The Asian Women's Association           | 202        |
| Tourism, migration and human rights     | 204        |
| Women's refuges                         | 207        |
| Representing differences                | 209        |
| Embodied differences                    | 212        |
| Sisters in Okinawa                      | 216        |
| Militarised memories                    | 217        |
| Degrees of diaspora                     | 220        |
| Feminism in a transnational frame       | 221        |
| 10 Conclusion: Embodied Citizens | 232 |
| Glossary                         | 236        |
| Select bibliography              | 259        |
| Index                            | 279        |