2 Wooden constructions	9
2.1 Wooden construction – in general	9
2.1.1 Wooden construction in Slovakia	9
2.1.2 Advantages of wooden constructions	11
2.1.3 Protection of wooden constructions	12
2.1.4 Moisture protection	13
2.1.5 Fire protection	14
2.2 Basic structural types of wooden constructions	15
2.2.1 Panel structure (sandwich panels)	15
2.2.2 Cell structures	17
2.2.3 Frame structure	17
2.2.4 Skeletal structure	19
2.2.5 Half-timbered structure	20
2.2.6 Pillar structures	21
2.2.7 Log structures	22
3 Reduction of the energy performance of a building	24
3.1 Rules of low-energy building construction	24
3.2 Categories of low-energy buildings	29
4 Building envelope - requirements	31
4.1 Building envelope of frame wooden construction	31
4.2 Requirements for thermal protection of a building	31
4.3 Suitable materials for diffuse open structure of wooden constructions	35
5 Moisture in a wooden construction and the processing methods	36

5.1	Moisture and temperature spread in the building envelope.....	36
5.2	Water in the construction	37
5.3	Principles of thermal-technical evaluation of building envelopes.....	38
5.3.1	Heat transfer coefficient	38
5.3.2	Condensation of water vapor in the building envelope	39
5.4	Annual moisture balance.....	41
5.5	Measurement of wood moisture content.....	41
5.6	Methods of program assessment of thermal-moisture behaviour	42
5.6.1	Program Wufi.....	42
5.7	Methods of building envelope measurements by resistance sensors	45
6	Pilot site study.....	46
6.1	Low-energy building in Dubňany	46
6.2	Structural design of building envelopes.....	46
6.3.	Characteristics of used materials	48
6.4	Location of sensors and various compositions of building envelope structures	53
6.5	The results of executed measurements in the wooden construction	54
6.6	The evaluation of executed measurements by resistance sensors.....	56
6.7	The evaluation via program calculation.....	57
