

CONTENTS

Acknowledgements	v
List of Abbreviations	ix
List of Cases	xi

Chapter 1. Introduction: On the Differentiation and Fragmentation of Contemporary Law. 1

1.1. Forms of Fragmentation in the Law	11
1.2. Fragmentation and Normative Conflicts	16
1.3. The Self-Containedness of the Legal Regulation.	22
1.4. The Aims of this Book and an Overview of its Chapters	29

Chapter 2. Arguments Based on the Unity of Law 33

2.1. The Unity and Coherence of the Law	36
2.1.1. Coherent Law and its Foundation	38
2.1.2. Levels of Coherence of Law	45
2.2. Argument Based on the Elimination of Contradictions	51
2.3. Argument Based on Consistency	57
2.4. Conforming Interpretation	63
2.5. The Dynamics of Coherent Law	70
2.6. Summary.	79

Chapter 3. The Principle of Proportionality and the Coherence of the Constitutional Order. 83

3.1. The Principle of Proportionality in Academic Discourse	87
3.2. Universality and Variable Intensity of Review within the Proportionality Test.	92
3.2.1. The Principle of Proportionality as a Universal Criterion for Constitutional Review	94
3.2.2. The Variable Intensity of Review Illustrated by a Case Law Example at the Czech Constitutional Court.	98
3.2.3. Proportionality in Law-Making.	104

3.3. The Principle of Proportionality as a Neutral Principle in Constitutional Law 112

3.4. The Rationality and Limited Objectivity of Legal Argumentation ... 115

3.5. Summary..... 120

Chapter 4. Pluralism as a Source of Differentiation and the Unity of Law..... 121

4.1. Two Approaches to Legal Pluralism 122

4.2. The Integrating Potential of Legal Pluralism 126

4.3. Normative Pluralism and its Sources of Integration..... 141

4.4. Summary..... 147

Chapter 5. Normative Coherentism..... 151

5.1. Foundations of the Requirement for the Normative Coherentism
of Law 153

5.1.1. The Axiological Nature of Law..... 154

5.1.2. Complexity Theory and the Reasonableness of Law..... 156

5.1.3. Legal Pluralism and the Foundation of the Law 158

5.2. Normative Coherentism and Law-Making 160

5.3. Normative Coherentism and the Interpretation and Application
of Law 166

5.4. Summary..... 171

Chapter 6. Conclusion: On the Necessity of Defragmentation
Processes in Law 173

Bibliography..... 189

Index..... 213