

Contents

Preface	i
1. Towards a Sociology of Socialist Transition	1
The Role of Sociology in a Socialist Society	1
The Concept of Transition in Sociological Terms	3
Agrarian Reform (1945-47)	9
Radical Agrarian Reform (1953-57)	11
Balance Sheet of the Reform	18
2. Economic Structure	21
The Village Before the Revolution	21
The Agrarian Reform	23
The Co-operative	23
Active Population and Production	30
Domestic Economy	39
Towards Large-Scale Production	43
Sociological Reflections on the Transition	45
3. Leaders, Personnel and Participation	52
The Election of the Personnel of the Co-operative	52
The Organization of Work	59
4. Collective Organization of Leadership	71
The Organigram of the Commune	71
The Bureaucracy as a Social Process	73
The Social Aspects of Leadership	76
5. Education and Health Services	80
The Educational Services	80
The Health Services	90
6. The Family and its Function	94
Social Practices, Cultural Models and Demographic Structures	96

The Position of Women and their Role in the Family	103
The Organization of Domestic Work	107
Decision-Making in the Family	115
The Transformation of Social Relationships	122
7. Cultural Transformation	131
The Home: Present and Future Forms	133
The Use of Free Time	151
8. Transformation of Religion	162
The Evolution of the Catholic Group during the Period of Transition	163
The Cultural Models of the Catholic Population	181
Conclusions	188
9. The Sociology of Social Transition	193
Relations Between the Infrastructure and the Superstructure	193
The New Dimension of Social Space	196
The Collective Aims	197
Objective Conditions Versus Consensus	198
The Formation of the Consensus	200
A Pedagogy of the Planned Transition	202
Index	205