

Contents

The Contributors	xi
Acknowledgments	xv
Introduction—The Vietnam War: Vietnamese and American Perspectives Jayne Werner and Luu Doan Huynh	xvii
Part One: The Vietnamese Revolution and Political/Military Strategy
1. An Improbable Opportunity: America and the Democratic Republic of Vietnam's 1947 Initiative Mark Bradley	3
2. Waging Revolutionary War: The Evolution of Hanoi's Strategy in the South, 1959–1965 William Duiker	24
3. Tet: The 1968 General Offensive and General Uprising General Tran Van Tra	37
4. Hanoi's Strategy in the Second Indochina War David W.P. Elliott	66
5. Love, War, and Revolution: Reflections on the Memoirs of Nguyen Thi Dinh Kristin Pelzer	95

Part Two: The War from the American Side

6. U.S. Military Strategy and the Vietnam War
George R. Vickers 113
7. History's Heaviest Bombing
James P. Harrison 130
8. The Strange "Dissent" of Robert S. McNamara
George C. Herring 140
9. "How Do You Know If You're Winning?": Perception and Reality in America's Military Performance in Vietnam, 1965–1970
Ronald H. Spector 152
10. Direct and Indirect Effects of the Movement against the Vietnam War
Paul Joseph 165

Part Three: The War in the South and Cambodia

11. Civil-Military Relations in South Vietnam and the American Advisory Effort
Jeffrey Clarke 187
12. The Seven-Point Proposal of the PRG (July 1, 1971) and the U.S. Reaction
Luu Doan Huynh 198
13. Post-Paris Agreement Struggles and the Fall of Saigon
Ngo Vinh Long 203
14. The Impact on Cambodia of the U.S. Intervention in Vietnam
Ben Kiernan 216

Part Four: Retrospective and Postwar Issues

15. The War That Should Not Have Been
General Tran Van Tra 233
16. The American War in Vietnamese Memory
Luu Doan Huynh 243

17.	The Vietnam War in American Memory Marilyn B. Young	248
18.	The Antiwar Movement after the War David Hunt	258
19.	China and Vietnam: Looking for a New Version of an Old Relationship Keith W. Taylor	271
	Index	287

Marilyn B. Young is a doctoral candidate in the Department of History at Harvard University and an associate of the Center for International Affairs at Harvard. Her dissertation, "Making Cold War Vietnam and the United States, 1941-1954," explores Vietnam war and American national perceptions and their impact on policy in an analysis of the origins of the Cold War in Vietnam.

Jeffrey J. Clarke is Chief Historian at the U.S. Army Center of Military History in Washington, D.C., and assistant professor at the University of Maryland-Baltimore County. He has traveled to both north and south Vietnam and has authored several works on military history including Adapt and Survive: The Final Years, 1961-73.

William A. Drake is professor of East Asian history at The University of Hong Kong. A former Foreign Service officer, he is the author of numerous articles and books on modern China and Vietnam, including The Communists Road to Power in Vietnam (1961) and Vietnam Since the Fall of Saigon (1981).

David W.F. Elliott is H. Robert Jones professor of government and international relations at Pomona College. He is a graduate of Yale University and received a Ph.D. from Cornell University. During the period 1963 to 1973 Elliott spent his time in Vietnam with the United States Army, the South Vietnamese army, and as a graduate student. He is the editor of The Third Indochina Conflict (1982) and is currently at work on a study of the war in the Mekong Delta, 1964-1973.

Keith W. Taylor is professor of history at Pomona College, CA 91767. A former U.S. Army officer, he is the author of numerous articles on Vietnam and China and is the co-author of China's Foreign Policy: Strategy for Independence and The Long March to Power (University of Chicago Press, 1981).