

---

Contents

Preface	xi
Table of UK statutes	xiii
Table of statutes – foreign jurisdictions	xvii
Table of European Communities legislation	xxvi
Table of Conventions and Agreements	xxxix
Table of cases	xxxiv
Introduction	1
1 Aims and methodology	1
2 The technical and economic context	3
1 The Internet as a distributed environment	7
1.1 Introduction	7
1.1.1 The functions of the Internet	8
1.1.2 Performance of those functions	8
1.1.3 The players	8
1.1.4 Types of connection	9
1.1.5 A revised perspective of the Internet	10
1.2 Packet switching, copying and the inchoate nature of internet ‘documents’	11
1.3 The co-operative nature of internetworking and the distributed nature of infrastructure ownership	15
1.4 Resource hosting, mirroring and other hidden elements of the internet	18
1.4.1 Resource hosting	19
1.4.2 Mirroring	20
1.4.3 Other hidden elements	20
1.5 The distribution of computing processes and the virtual site	21
1.6 Penetrating the clouds	22

2	From each according to his ability: actors and activities in the Internet world	24
2.1	Principal actors	24
2.2	Infrastructure providers	26
2.3	Intermediaries	27
2.3.1	Transmission hosts	27
2.3.2	Resource hosts	27
2.3.3	Communication services	31
2.3.4	Transaction facilitation services	35
2.4	The distributed enterprise	37
3	An infinity of scarce resources: ownership and use of Internet resources	40
3.1	Exploring the paradox	40
3.2	Domain names	42
3.2.1	Initial allocation of domain names	43
3.2.2	Legal rights in names – an inevitable conflict	45
3.2.3	Resolution of domain name disputes	52
3.2.4	Can the conflict be resolved?	65
3.3	Making use of third party information resources	66
3.3.1	Licences to re-use Web resources	68
3.3.2	Direct copying of the resource	71
3.3.3	Incorporation of the resource through an automated link	74
3.3.4	User-selected linking	76
3.4	From property to propriety	88
4	New actors on a new stage: intermediary liability in the Internet world	89
4.1	Service provider liability	90
4.1.1	Liability for communication failure	90
4.1.2	Other services	92
4.2	Liability based on information content	94
4.2.1	Copyright	96
4.2.2	Obscenity and indecency	106
4.2.3	Defamation	112
4.2.4	Common elements of intermediary liability	121
4.3	Limitations on intermediary liability	122
4.3.1	Intermediary contracts	123
4.3.2	Statutory limitation and immunity	124

---

5	On the Internet, nobody knows you're a dog: identity and identification	140
5.1	The problem of identity	141
5.2	Uses of identification	143
5.2.1	Electronic signatures	144
5.2.2	Information licensing	146
5.2.3	Status information	147
5.3	Certification of identity	147
5.3.1	Issue of ID Certificates	147
5.3.2	Using the certificate to prove identity	150
5.3.3	Certificate checking infrastructure	150
5.4	Accreditation schemes	153
5.4.1	Rationale	153
5.4.2	Effects of accreditation	154
5.4.3	Requirements and supervision	155
5.5	Liability of certification authorities	160
5.5.1	General law	161
5.5.2	Statutory liability	170
5.6	Towards a global system?	171
6	Old wine in new bottles: traditional transactions in the Internet environment	173
6.1	Fundamental concepts revisited	174
6.1.1	Property rights in information	174
6.1.2	Signatures	180
6.1.3	Writing	201
6.2	Contracts revisited	203
6.2.1	Contracting via intermediaries	204
6.2.2	Concluding a contract through electronic agents	210
6.2.3	Implied terms in on-line supplies of information	212
7	The long arm of the law: cross-border law and jurisdiction	217
7.1	Where do internet transactions take place?	218
7.1.1	The 'cyberspace' fallacy	218
7.1.2	Localisation in the physical world	218
7.1.3	Localisation in the Internet world – chasing packets	223
7.2	Jurisdictional and regulatory competence	231
7.2.1	Activities undertaken in the jurisdiction	231
7.2.2	Country of origin regulation	250

7.3	Human rights and transborder communication	256
7.3.1	Free speech	258
7.3.2	Privacy	262
7.3.3	Home country regulation as a solution?	267
8	Legislative and regulatory arbitrage	269
8.1	Decreasing overheads	269
8.1.1	Reducing the impact of taxation	270
8.1.2	Internet banking and finance	279
8.2	Restricted and prohibited activities	284
8.2.1	Charging for admission to the game or lottery	286
8.2.2	Advertising	287
8.2.3	Use of premises	288
8.2.4	Procurement	288
8.2.5	Is gambling arbitrage possible?	288
8.3	The application of Gresham's law?	289
9	Enforceability in the Internet environment	291
9.1	Public order rules	292
9.1.1	Obscenity	293
9.1.2	Advertising controls	295
9.2	Private rights and consumer protection	296
9.3	Self-regulation – sticks and carrots	300
9.3.1	Unlawful content	301
9.3.2	Privacy	302
9.3.3	Consumer protection	303
9.3.4	Alternative dispute resolution	304
9.4	The characteristics of enforceability	306
10	Facing the legislative and regulatory challenge	307
10.1	Developing new legal concepts	309
10.2	Solving problems of global reach – convergence of national law	310
10.3	Insoluble problems	312
	Index	315