

CONTENTS

| | |
|--|-----------|
| Acknowledgements | x |
| Introduction: travelling across the terrain | 1 |
| TERESA GRAINGER | |
| The pressure on the curriculum | 2 |
| The backwash of high stakes assessment | 3 |
| The pressure to profile teaching not learning | 3 |
| The challenge to professionalism | 4 |
| Part I: mapping the landscape of literacy | 5 |
| Part II: exploring literacy and learning | 6 |
| Part III: exploring oral texts | 8 |
| Part IV: exploring visual texts | 10 |
| Part V: exploring written texts | 12 |
| PART I | |
| Mapping the landscape of literacy | 17 |
| 1 The history and future of literacy | 19 |
| PETER HANNON | |
| Introduction | 19 |
| Five millennia of written language | 19 |
| Literacy and intellectual history | 21 |
| The spread of literacy within societies | 23 |
| The future of literacy | 24 |
| Changes in our lifetimes | 24 |
| Does literacy have a future? | 25 |
| The future of writing | 27 |
| The future of reading | 28 |
| Implications for understanding literacy today | 30 |
| 2 Living literacies in homes and communities | 33 |
| EVE GREGORY AND ANN WILLIAMS | |
| Introduction | 33 |
| Reading at home | 34 |
| Formal learning in informal contexts | 41 |
| Booksharing at home | 48 |
| A new paradigm of early literacy? | 51 |

| | | |
|-------------|--|-----|
| 3 | Globalisation, literacy, curriculum practice | 52 |
| | ALLAN LUKE AND VICTORIA CARRINGTON | |
| | Introduction | 52 |
| | The industrial school meets new times | 54 |
| | Literacy teaching and learning in the new white diaspora | 58 |
| | Critical literacy as a technology for remediating globalisation | 60 |
| | Conclusions | 64 |
| PART II | | |
| | Exploring literacy and learning | 67 |
| 4 | 'You made it like a crocodile': a theory of children's meaning-making | 69 |
| | GUNTHER KRESS | |
| | Developing a framework | 69 |
| | Interest | 69 |
| | Motivated signs | 71 |
| | Transformation and transformative action | 73 |
| | Multimodality | 74 |
| | Representation and communication | 76 |
| | Reading | 77 |
| | Resources for making meaning | 79 |
| | Imagination, cognition and affect | 81 |
| 5 | Where are the childhoods in childhood literacy? An exploration in outer (school) space | 84 |
| | ANNE HAAS DYSON | |
| | Introduction | 84 |
| | Slip-sliding words and spinning children: re-imagining developmental trajectories | 86 |
| | Symbolic agency in childhood spaces | 87 |
| | Literacy learning and social location | 87 |
| | The trajectories of evolving practices | 88 |
| | Entering children's spheres: the project data set | 89 |
| | Children in composing spaces: plotting journeys into school literacy | 90 |
| | Enacting the official space unit | 91 |
| | Toward childhoods and literacies | 103 |
| 6 | Learning as puzzle solving | 107 |
| | PETER GEEKIE, BRIAN CAMBOURNE AND PHIL FITZSIMMONS | |
| | Introduction | 107 |
| | Principle one: learning is often a mutual accomplishment | 109 |
| | Principle two: children often learn through guided participation | 109 |
| | Principle three: children profit from the support of more competent people | 110 |

| | |
|--|-----|
| Principle four: effective instruction is contingent instruction | 111 |
| Principle five: it is not interaction itself but the quality of the interaction that contributes to better learning | 112 |
| Principle six: language is the means through which self-regulation of learning behaviour develops | 112 |
| Principle seven: learning depends upon the negotiation of meaning | 113 |
| Conclusions | 115 |

PART III

Exploring oral texts 119

7 Development through dialogue 121

NEIL MERCER

| | |
|--|-----|
| Introduction | 121 |
| A socio-cultural perspective on development | 122 |
| Guidance through dialogue | 123 |
| Providing a 'scaffolding' for learning | 126 |
| Creating an intermental development zone | 127 |
| Learning together | 128 |
| Educating children in collective thinking | 132 |
| Encouraging exploratory talk | 133 |
| Identifying exploratory talk | 133 |
| The role of the teacher | 134 |
| Conclusions | 135 |

8 Group work: learning through talk 138

ROY CORDEN

| | |
|--|-----|
| Group work and learning | 139 |
| Achievement in group work | 139 |
| Group work in a literacy hour | 141 |
| Making group work work | 142 |
| Planning and structuring group work | 143 |
| Establishing the ground rules for group work | 144 |
| Roles in groups | 145 |
| Stages in group discussion | 146 |
| Group tasks | 146 |
| Social and cognitive demands of group work | 148 |
| Kinds of group | 150 |
| Gender differences | 151 |
| Computers and group work | 151 |
| Developing metadiscoursal skills | 152 |
| Small group work within a constructivist framework for learning | 154 |

9 Discourse, conversation and creativity 160

RON CARTER

| | |
|--|-----|
| Introduction | 160 |
| Basic material: the arbitrariness of the sign | 162 |
| Language awareness: opening a door to literary competence | 172 |
| Conclusions | 172 |

- 10 Drama, literacies and difference 175
HELEN NICHOLSON
Introduction 175
Dramatic literacies 176
Drama, differentiation and learning styles 179
Communities of learners 180

PART IV

Exploring visual texts 183

- 11 Seeing, thinking and knowing 185
EVELYN ARIZPE AND MORAG STYLES
The appeal of pictures 185
Reading picturebooks – an intellectual activity 186
Reading picturebooks – the affective dimension 187
Drawing in response to picturebooks 187
Revisiting picturebooks 188
Oracy, language and learning 189
Cultural factors 190
Our findings and the National Literacy Strategy 195
Memory, creativity and thinking 196
- 12 A word about pictures 199
DAVID LEWIS
Introduction 199
Some key features of the visual image 200
A grammar of visual design 210
Conclusions 215
- 13 Television and film 217
JACKIE MARSH AND ELAINE MILLARD
Children's television consumption 217
Reading print and televisual narratives 219
Comparing book and film 222
Media literacy 227
Reading of images 228
Television talk 230
Reading, writing and the moving image 232
- 14 Playing the text 236
MARGARET MACKEY
Playing the text 236
Some implications of playfulness in the processing of texts 241
Theories of play and art 242
Re-workings and re-playings 243
An ecology of attention 245
Conditions and constraints of the study 247
Conclusions 248

PART V

Exploring written texts 253

15 Reading rights and responsibilities 255

EVE BEARNE AND GABRIELLE CLIFF HODGES

What rights and whose responsibilities? 255*Reading experience and experiences* 257*Gender and reading* 259*Responsibility and response* 260*Insights, planning and assessment* 264*Conclusions* 265

16 The reader in the writer 267

MYRA BARRS

Introduction 267*The relationship between the writer and the reader* 267*Shaping writing* 269*The research project* 271*Conclusions* 276

17 What does research tell us about how we should be developing written composition? 277

MARY BAILEY

Introduction 277*The National Literacy Strategy in England: policy and practice* 278*Competing discourses in writing research* 281*The professional development of teachers* 285*Conclusions: some principles for developing writing – and teachers of writing* 285

18 Can teachers empower pupils as writers? 289

CAROLE KING

Home literacy: why do pupils choose to write? 289*Current models of school literacy: why do pupils write?* 293*How does explicit knowledge about writing inform practice at Key Stage 1?* 294*How does explicit knowledge about writing inform practice at Key Stage 2?* 296*Writing in the expressive mode: using think books* 298*Writing in the spectator role: sharing stories and poems* 298*Creating a writing community: Emma and Rosie in conversation* 299*Articulating themselves as writers* 301*Conclusions* 303

Postscript: the journey continues 305

TERESA GRAINGER

Annotated booklist 307