

CONTENTS

Chapter 1: Working as a reflective practitioner	1
★ What, how and why in child development	1
★ Key issues in trying to explain child development	9
Chapter 2: Explaining child development: weighing up nature and nurture	17
★ Biological-maturation theories	17
★ Environmental-learning theories	26
Chapter 3: Explaining child development: from cognitive-developmental to socio-cultural perspectives	35
★ Cognitive-developmental theories	35
★ Socio-cultural theories	43
Chapter 4: Research as a source of information and ideas	59
★ Different ways to study children	59
★ Planning and interpretation in research	65
★ Linking research with practice	73
Chapter 5: Social and emotional development – the foundation	85
★ The importance of attachment	85
★ Emotional literacy	95
★ Dispositions – where feeling meets thinking	103
Chapter 6: The importance of physical skills and movement	115
★ Physical development and children's experience	115
★ Learning through the senses	122
★ The importance of outdoor learning	130
Chapter 7: Understanding and supporting children's communication	139
★ How do children learn spoken language?	139
★ Early social interaction	145
★ Developmentally appropriate early literacy	155
Chapter 8: Thinking and learning	166
★ Very young thinkers	166
★ The sounds of the children thinking	169
★ Working within the zone of proximal development	178

Chapter 9: How do children learn to behave?	195
★ Temperament and behaviour	195
★ Learning from experience	199
★ Pro-social behaviour	206
Chapter 10: Children as part of a social and cultural community	223
★ Childhood experienced in a time and place	223
★ Early education and childcare in context	228
★ Children within families and a community	242
Using further resources	252
★ Magazines	252
★ Using the internet	252
★ Useful organisations	255
★ Books	257
★ Videos	268
Name index	270
Subject index	272