Contents

Introduction 1
Two Distinctive Features 5
Outline 11

I. THE FOIL: ANTI-PERFECTIONIST LIBERALISM

1. Comprehensive Liberalism 19
   1.1 Two Kinds of Liberal Theory 20
   1.2 Kantian Liberalism 23
   1.3 Millian Liberalism 26
   1.4 Dworkin's Challenge Model of Ethics 30
2. Political Liberalism 34
   2.1 The Fact of Reasonable Disagreement 36
   2.2 Public Justification 40
   2.3 A Thin Normative Rationale 47
      2.3.1 Respect 49
      2.3.2 Stability 53
      2.3.3 The Reactive Attitudes 56

II. PERFECTIONIST JUSTICE

3. A Perfectionist Conception of Society 63
   3.1 The Rawlsian Conception of Society 64
   3.2 Why the Rawlsian Conception of Society? 68
   3.3 An Alternative Conception of Society 73
   3.4 The Perfectionist Conception as Cultural Interpretation 77
   3.5 The Perfectionist Conception in Reflective Equilibrium 86
4. Perfectionist Principles of Justice 89
   4.1 Rawls's Original Position: The Set-Up 90
   4.2 Rawls's Original Position: The Selection of Principles 94
   4.3 A Perfectionist Original Position: The Set-Up 97
   4.4 A Perfectionist Original Position: The Selection of Principles 110

4.5 Are Judgements About Human Flourishing Especially Controversial? 116
4.6 Is the Perfectionist Original Position Redundant? 120

5. A Provisional Conception of Human Flourishing 126
5.1 Three Conceptions Unfit for Political Purposes 131
5.2 The Enjoyment of Moral, Intellectual and Artistic Excellence 133
5.3 Are the Three Excellences Too Abstract? 138
5.4 Provisionality 141
5.5 Arbitrariness 147
5.6 Are Enjoyment and Excellence Strictly Necessary? 151

6. Perfectionist Law and Public Policy 156
6.1 Preliminaries 158
6.2 Moral Excellence 160
6.3 Intellectual Excellence 164
6.4 Artistic Excellence 168
6.5 Indistinguishability: Doesn't Liberal Justice Already Give Perfection Its Due? 170
6.6 Extensional Differences 175
6.6.1 Rawls's Arguments from Unanimous Consent and Equality 177
6.6.2 Dworkin's Argument from Intergenerational Fairness 180
6.6.3 Wall's Argument from Equality and Fairness 182
6.6.4 Kramer's Argument from Warranted Self-Respect 184
6.7 Intensional Differences 189

III. OBJECTIONS

7. Public Justification 197
7.1 A Road Not Taken 199
7.2 Perfectionist Public Reason 205
7.3 Is the Marriage of Perfectionism and Constructivism Well-Motivated? 213
7.4 Which Definition of Reasonableness is More Plausible? 218
7.5 Admissible Interpretations of the Excellences 225
7.6 A More Sectarian Definition of Reasonableness? 233
7.6.1 The Anti-Sectarian Desideratum 234
7.6.2 The Spirit of Public Reason Liberalism 236
7.6.3 Stability 238
7.6.4 Respect 240
7.6.5 Redundancy 241
7.7 An Overly Sectarian Definition of Reasonableness? 243

8. Freedom 247
8.1 The Place of Freedom Within Perfectionist Justice 248
8.2 Four Freedom-Based Objections Defused 250
8.3 Libertarian Full Self-Ownership 256
8.3.1 Three Implausible Implications 258
8.3.2 Two Libertarian Responses 262
8.4 Pragmatic Concerns 267

9. Paternalism 273
9.1 Why Is Perfectionist State Action Necessary? 274
9.2 A Non-Paternalistic Justification for Perfectionist State Action? 278
9.3 Why Paternalism (in the Quongian Sense) Is Not Objectionable 280

10. The Village Busybody 294
10.1 What Is the Quidnunc Mentality? 295
10.2 How the Quidnunc Mentality Objection Begs the Question 300
10.3 A Substantive Argument Against Perfectionist Duties? 305
10.4 Indistinguishability Rides Again 310
10.5 Addendum 312

Conclusion 317
Justicitis? 319

References 323
Index 338