

Contents

Notes on contributors	v
Acknowledgements	vii
Preface	viii

Part I Making amends with the past

1 Learning from the past to shape the future: uncovering social work's histories of complicity and resistance Vasilios Ioakimidis and Aaron Wyllie	3
--	---

Part II Legacies of colonialism and racism in social work

2 Canadian social work and the Sixties Scoop: reflections on the past, lessons for today Filipe Duarte and Patrick Selmi	31
3 Reconciling systemic abuse of children and young women with social work's commitment to a human rights, transformative practice Carolyn Noble	41
4 The oppressive history of 'child welfare' systems and the need for abolition Alan J. Dettlaff and Victoria Copeland	54
5 Colonial and apartheid South Africa: social work complicity and resistance Linda Harms-Smith and Yasmin Turton	73

Part III Social work's contested ideologies

6 Social services in Nazi Germany and the role of social workers between complicity and rare resistance Carola Kuhlmann	97
7 Social assistance in Franco's fascist Spain (1939–75): a history of social control, family segregation and stolen babies María Inés Martínez Herrero	109
8 Social work in times of political violence: dictatorships and acts of resistance from the Southern Cone Gianinna Muñoz-Arce and Melisa Campana-Alabarce	121
9 Trade union mobilisation, resistance and political action of social workers in Portugal Pedro Gabriel Silva and Alcina Martins	134
10 The radical roots of popular social work in Palestine Michael Lavalette	148

Part IV Social work's complicity with institutionalisation and detention
11	Institutionalisation and oppression within the mental health system in England: social work complicity and resistance Rich Moth	165
12	A refugee crisis or a crisis of anti-immigrant politics? Hostile refugee reception, the pandemic and new solidarities in Cyprus Nicos Trimikliniotis and Vassilis Tsianos	183
13	Institutionalisation of certain children and mothers in Ireland: reflections on the 'troubled history' of child welfare social work Caroline McGregor	204
Part V Survivor perspectives and contemporary reflections
14	Facing the legacy of social work: coming to terms with complicity in systemic inequality and social injustice Bob Pease	219
15	'We want social workers to hear our story': learning from parents whose children were taken away Guy Shennan	233
16	Decolonisation and critical social work pedagogies Caroline Bald and Akudo Amadiegwu	244
17	Adoption social work practice in Ireland: critical reflections on present-day injustices Claire McGettrick	261
Index		278