

Contents

Acknowledgements

ix

1	Identities: subjectivity and selfhood in a digital world	1
1.1	Introduction	1
1.2	Making sense of identity	6
1.3	Early Internet and the idea of identity online	15
1.4	The changing digital world	18
1.5	Angles of identity	21
	Key points	24
2	Interactivities: performativity, social media and online participation	26
2.1	Introduction	26
2.2	Participatory digital creativity	27
2.3	Identity performativity and social media profiles	38
2.4	Complexifying identity on social media	45
2.5	Conclusion	49
	Key points	50
3	Bodies: digital corporeality and identity	53
3.1	Introduction	53
3.2	Defining the body	54
3.3	Representing bodies on the digital screen	58
3.4	Body–technology relationalities	64
3.5	Conclusion	75
	Key points	76
4	Simulacras: the evolution of the deepfake	78
4.1	Introduction	78
4.2	Deepfake as a topic of concern	79
4.3	Deepfake as a technology of identity (fraud)	81
4.4	Deepfake as a cultural technology	85
4.5	Identity and simulacra	90
4.6	Regulating the deepfake	92
4.7	Conclusion	94
	Key points	94

5	Geographies: globalisation and re-nationalisation of digital communication	98
5.1	Introduction	98
5.2	Digital communication as a globalising technology	99
5.3	Beyond the local/global dichotomy	102
5.4	Globalisation and identity	104
5.5	Global and digital space	106
5.6	The re-nationalisation of digital communication	108
5.7	National identity and regulation?	109
5.8	Conclusion	112
	Key points	112
6	Hostilities: trolling, hate speech and exclusion in digital settings	115
6.1	Introduction	115
6.2	What is digital hostility?	116
6.3	Digital hostility as a cultural issue for the 2020s	120
6.4	Digital divides: misogyny and racism online	122
6.5	Identity and digital hostility	123
6.6	Mass shaming and the digital mob	126
6.7	Identity and cancelled subjectivity	129
6.8	Conclusion	132
	Key points	132
7	Agencies: algorithms, choices and artificial decision-making	138
7.1	Introduction	138
7.2	The Social Dilemma	140
7.3	Algorithms, everyday life and everyday inequalities	146
7.4	Available and unavailable knowledges	149
7.5	Algorithms, identity and agency	150
7.6	Conclusion	151
	Key points	152
8	Authenticities: TikTok and the perception of authentic identities	155
8.1	Introduction	155
8.2	TikTok in a culture of platform renewal	156
8.3	Authenticity and representation	159
8.4	TikTok authenticity and the inconvenience of other people	164
8.5	Conclusion	166
	Key points	167
9	Futures: the self in development	170
9.1	Introduction	170
9.2	Digital communication and identity	170
9.3	The metaverse and beyond	172
	Index	175