Contents

viii contents .

6. Protecuing Civilians from the M123-

	Contents
	Willingness to accept risk Additional explanations for the spacessful outcome
	Conclusion
	eface et of figures	ix
	at of figures at of tables	xii xiii
Lis	i oj tuotes	XIII
1.	Protection by military force in UN peace operations	1
	The book in a nutshell	6
	Defining success in UN military protection operations	8
	Unpacking UN military protection operations	13
	Understanding the perpetrators to tailor effective operations	20
	So what? Outline of the book	25 26
		20
2.	Understanding the utility of force to protect civilians	MIK.
	from violence	28
	Four causal condition candidates	32
	Causal mechanisms and hypotheses Further deliberations on the matching theory	35 48
	Summary of causal condition candidates	59
2	s motioned for decide, but of the bullion bullions but the bullion	2017
3.	Exploring characteristics and outcomes of UN military	61
	protection operations Characteristics of LINI military protection operations	62
	Characteristics of UN military protection operations Summary of descriptive statistics	82
	Estimating outcomes of UN military protection operations	02
	(1999–2017)	84
4.	Analyzing empirical patterns of UN military protection operations	89
	Operationalization of causal condition candidates	89
	Bivariate cross-tabulations	94
	Summary of cross-tabulations	100
	Multivariate linear probability analysis	101
5.	Discovering causal pathways to successful protection outcomes	104
	Qualitative Comparative Analysis	105
	The outcome	107
	Causal condition candidates	110
	Necessary conditions for successful outcomes Causal recipes toward successful outcomes	125 127

viii CONTENTS

1

1.00

6.	Protecting Civilians from the M23	130
	Matching the M23	133
	Pre-empting the M23	144
	Troop-to-perpetrator ratios	145
	Willingness to accept risk	147
	Additional explanations for the successful outcome	148
	Conclusion	152
7.	Overwhelmed by the White Army	154
	Failing to match the White Army	156
	The absence of relevant responses to Murle revenge attacks	164
	Pre-emption Pre-emption	166
	Troop-to-perpetrator ratios	166
	Willingness to accept risk	168
	Additional explanations for the unsuccessful outcome	170
	Conclusion	172
8.	Increasing the utility of force to protect	174
	Summary of main findings	175
	Implications for theory, policy, and practice of UN military	and the state of t
	protection operations	178
Appendix		10/
	ferences	208
Inc	lex	222

Samunary el descriptey statistics.

Summary of cross-tabulations

maylana vililiziadong useriil etainantiulvi

5. Discovering dansal pathways to successful protection outcomes

.8