

Contents

A Note from the French Publisher	ix
Acknowledgments	xi
A Note about the Translation	xiii
Introductory Essay: The Plausibility of the Universal and Homogenous State Robert Howse and Bryan-Paul Frost	1
Preliminary Remarks (§ 1–3) Alexandre Kojève	29
 Part One: Droit As Such (§ 4–33)	33
1 Definition of Droit (§ 5–19)	35
2 The Reality of Droit : Droit , Society, State (§ 20–25)	117
3 The Specificity and Autonomy of Droit : The Juridical Activity in its Relations with Other Human Activities and the Idea of Justice (§ 26–32)	171
 Part Two: The Origin and Evolution of Droit (§ 34–46)	205
1 The Source of Droit : The Anthropogenic Desire for Recognition as the Source of the Idea of Justice (§ 35–38)	209
2 The Birth of Droit : The Antithetical Justices of the Master and Slave (§ 39–43)	233
A. The Justice of Equality and Aristocratic Droit (§ 40–41)	238
B. The Justice of Equivalence and Bourgeois Droit (§ 42–43)	251
3 The Evolution of Droit : The Synthetic Justice of the Citizen (the Justice of Equity) (§ 44–46)	263

Part Three: The Legal System (§ 47–70)	277
1 Classification of Juridical Phenomena (§ 48–52)	279
2 Basic Study of Some Types of Juridical Phenomena (§ 53–70)	313
A. International Droit , Domestic Droit , and the Plurality of National Juridical Systems (§ 54–57)	313
B. Public Droit (§ 58–60)	327
C. Penal Droit (§ 61–63)	349
D. Private Droit (§ 64–70)	392
a. The Droit of Familial Society (§ 65–66)	398
b. The Droit of Economic Society (§ 67–70)	427

Index	481
-------	-----

About the Author and Translators	491
----------------------------------	-----