

Contents

---

---

Introduction by JANN S. WENNER

xi

Preface by ROBERT LOVE

xv

"Toking Down with the MC5" by ERIC EHRMANN: A Detroit quintet set out to fuse rock and radical politics. A student journalist from Cleveland went to observe the experiment.

1

RS 25/JANUARY 4TH, 1969

"The Rolling Stones on Tour" by ROBERT GREENFIELD: Oh, to be young, fancy-free and working in the London bureau of ROLLING STONE when Mick Jagger agrees to let you travel with the band.

12

RS 80/APRIL 15TH, 1971

"Up the Mountain" by ROBERT PALMER: Brian Jones and William Burroughs told tales of the ancient trance music played by the Master Musicians of Jajouka. Our reporter got caught up in the spell.

25

RS 93/OCTOBER 14TH, 1971

"Fear and Loathing in Las Vegas" by HUNTER S. THOMPSON: A savage return to the heart of the American Dream . . . A lost memo from the Wrong Desk . . . Warm and dry at the Bates Motel . . . The meaning of my Art.

40

RS 95/NOVEMBER 11TH, 1971

"Naked Lunch Box" by ROBIN GREEN: David Cassidy, the Number 1 teen idol of the early Seventies, had his heart set on a cover story. So we gave it to him. 61
RS 108/MAY 11TH, 1972

"Post-Orbital Remorse" by TOM WOLFE: They were cagey souls, all right, but the reporter hung in until they took him up into the capsule and laid out the secrets of the brotherhood. But first there was that rack-jobbers' convention. 72
RS 125/JANUARY 4TH, 1973

"Ask a Marine" by DAVID HARRIS: The assignment brought them together: the writer who had been jailed for defying the draft and the war hero who would never walk again. 91
RS 139/JULY 19TH, 1973

"The Wild Side of Paradise" by MICHAEL THOMAS: An Australian journalist—and former child radio star—found himself in Jamaica just as reggae was starting to catch a fire. 106
RS 139/JULY 19TH, 1973

"King of the Goons" by JOE ESZTERHAS: How a Hell's Angels shoot-out led a Midwestern newspaperman to the cosmic giggle and the pleasures of getting naked, watching whales and filing 37,000 words on Evel Knievel. 116
RS 173/NOVEMBER 7TH, 1974

"The Search for the Secret Pyramid" by KEN KESEY: We knew the Merry Prankster could dig up something in Egypt, but Keez needed a guide for this trip. Enter Charlie Perry, a.k.a. Smokestack el Ropo. 137
RS 180/FEBRUARY 13TH, 1975

"Malignant Giant" by HOWARD KOHN: Karen Silkwood's death exposed corruption in the nuclear-power industry. Our reporter broke the story, and for six years he fought to make sure she wasn't forgotten. 150
RS 183/MARCH 27TH, 1975

"Tania's World" by HOWARD KOHN AND DAVID WEIR: Everybody in America, including the FBI, was looking for kidnapped heiress Patty Hearst. It took a couple of former college radicals to get the inside story of her life underground. 171
RS 198/OCTOBER 23RD, 1975

"Her Horses Got Wings, They Can Fly" by DAVE MARSH: She was a factory girl, a coal stove visionary and the self-proclaimed scion of Rimbaud and the Ronettes. Well, that's what Patti Smith wanted the world to think back then. 192
RS 203/JANUARY 1ST, 1976

"The Method of His Madness" by CHRIS HODENFIELD: What did it take to face down the Great Brando at the height of his Marlonosity? A large dose of hipness or just plain balls? 204
RS 213/MAY 20TH, 1976

"Notes on a Native Son" by JOE KLEIN: Arlo Guthrie talked about his legendary father, his crazy childhood, God and doubt to a visitor who arrived at his door through a twist of fate. 215
 RS 234/MARCH 10TH, 1977

"Dolly Parton" by CHET FLIPPO: It was a classic triangle: the reporter, the star and the weight lifter. Wait, we forgot to mention the photographer. 226
 RS 246/AUGUST 25TH, 1977

"Blue Hawaii" by GREIL MARCUS: Woodstock, Altamont and the murder of John Lennon—breaking news stories that hit us on deadline resulted in some of our best work. After Elvis's death, one critic, far from home, had to try to understand. 240
 RS 248/SEPTEMBER 22ND, 1977

"Son of Samurai" by CHARLES M. YOUNG: Our writer taught John Belushi about punk rock and the denial of death. Belushi taught our writer not to take shit from anyone. 249
 RS 271/AUGUST 10TH, 1978

"Aerosmith's Train Keeps a Rollin'" by DAISANN McLANE: Words were cheap and the bands gave a reporter great access back in the high-rollin' rock subculture of the late Seventies. A report from the private jet. 260
 RS 285/FEBRUARY 22ND, 1979

"The Dog Is Us" by MARCELLE CLEMENTS: You're in your dorm room. You're stoned. A dog walks in. Wow. You can't stop watching him. He's incredibly ridiculous. You start laughing. Now it's years later: you get high again, and it's no fun. What happened? 268
 RS 377/SEPTEMBER 2ND, 1982

"Michael Jackson" by GERRI HIRSHEY: It was that rarest of pop music moments: Michael Jackson, home alone and ready to talk to a reporter for hours. There was one condition, though: you had to feel muscles. 279
 RS 389/FEBRUARY 17TH, 1983

"The Strange and Mysterious Death of Mrs. Jerry Lee Lewis" by RICHARD BEN CRAMER: "You scared of me?" Lewis once asked his wife's sister. "You should be. Why do you think they call me the Killer?" 293
 RS 416/MARCH 1ST, 1984

"Sole Survivor" by KURT LODER: In the midst of one of the great comebacks in pop music history, Tina Turner broke her silence about her abusive marriage. 306
 RS 432/OCTOBER 11TH, 1984

"Kids in the Dark" by DAVID BRESKIN: After the drug-inspired murder of a teenager and the suicide of one of the killers, how do you get their terrified friends to break the silence? 316
 RS 435/NOVEMBER 22ND, 1984

" The Plague Years " by DAVID BLACK: Even before we knew what to call it, AIDS had the power to change forever a generation's way of thinking about sex and life and death.	330
RS 446/APRIL 25TH, 1985
" Death of a Cheerleader " by RANDALL SULLIVAN: In the Eighties, winning was everything. Especially in Orinda, California, where a kid would do anything to avoid being called a loser.	349
RS 452/453/JULY 18TH-AUGUST 1ST, 1985
" Fear of Frying " by TIM CAHILL: Many and extreme were the reasons for a man to volunteer to hike across Death Valley. John Wayne Gacy was but one of them.	367
RS 457/SEPTEMBER 26TH, 1985
" 400 Years in a Convent, 50 Years in a Whorehouse " by P.J. O'ROURKE: Philippines President Ferdinand Marcos was in trouble, so we sent our correspondent straight to Manila. He got the scoop from whores, thugs and the city jailer.	380
RS 471/APRIL 10TH, 1986
" Back in Black " by DAVID FRICKE: In the late eighties, a group of young Black musicians fought for their right to rock. And the critic was on hand for the next big thing.	391
RS 509/SEPTEMBER 24TH, 1987
" False Messiah " by LAWRENCE WRIGHT: When Jimmy Swaggart was caught with a prostitute, it was just another lost battle in his lifelong struggle to save his soul.	400
RS 530/531/JULY 14TH-28TH, 1988
" Nowhere to Run " by ELLEN HOPKINS: Renee Linton took all the right steps to save herself from an abusive, battering husband. Our story traced the failure of the system that left her to die.	414
RS 550/APRIL 20TH, 1989
" The Devil and John Holmes " by MIKE SAGER: John Holmes was a porn star. Eddie Nash was a drug lord. Their association ended in one of the most brutal mass murders in the history of Los Angeles.	428
RS 554/JUNE 15TH, 1989
" Paradise Lost " by TOM HORTON: The Exxon oil spill in Alaska was a crime against the environment, but it may have caused greater damage to the human spirit.	444
RS 567/568/DECEMBER 14TH-28TH, 1989
" Johnny Clegg's War on Apartheid " by SAMUEL G. FREEDMAN: South Africa's best-known musician has dedicated his life to crossing the lines separating white and black.	459
RS 574/MARCH 22ND, 1990

" Warren Beatty " by BILL ZEHME: When you're interviewing the last movie star, it's not what he says that matters but how he doesn't say it.	472
RS 579/MAY 31ST, 1990
" Anarchy in the U.S.S.R.? " by ANTHONY DECURTIS: Gorbachev had lost control. The Soviet economy was brain dead, the Party primed to self-destruct. An eye-witness account of real life in Russia in the waning days of communism.	484
RS 582/583/JULY 12TH-26TH, 1990
" The Lonesome Drifter " by WILLIAM GREIDER: The real Washington scandal of the Eighties? Ronald Reagan didn't care about leading the country. So why did we love him like we did?	496
RS 495/MARCH 12TH, 1987
Contributors	505