

Contents

LIST OF FIGURES	ix
LIST OF TABLES	xi
NOTE ON THE SPELLING OF CITY NAMES	xiii
INTRODUCTION	1
CHAPTER ONE
MIDSIZE CITIES IN AUSTRIA-HUNGARY	23
Municipal law in Austria and Hungary and the status of cities	23
Twelve cities of Austria-Hungary: twelve different situations and many similarities	27
Urban growth and city development, 1848–1914	40
CHAPTER TWO
AUSTRO-HUNGARIAN TOWER OF BABEL: THE CITY AND ITS LANGUAGES	63
Defining the languages of the empire	63
Statistical approach to multilingualism	70
Multilingualism and professional mobility	78
Languages in the military	78
The multilingualism of state functionaries, priests, and teachers	80
Literacy and language practice	82
The Jews: a multicultural group par excellence?	84
Signs of multilingualism	92
The language of the city	97
CHAPTER THREE
BELLS AND CHURCH TOWERS: THE CONFESSIONAL DIVERSITY	107
A fragmented confessional landscape	107
The Roman Catholics	112
The Greek Catholics	115
The Greek Orthodox	117
Evangelical and Reformed Protestantism	119
Judaism	120
The Muslims: newcomers to the scene of confessional diversity	123
Mobile communities: mixed marriages and conversions	124
Religion and national politics	130
Building the multiconfessional city: churches, temples, and synagogues	136

CHAPTER FOUR

SCHOOLS: PLACES TO LEARN MULTICULTURALISM

OR FACTORIES OF THE NATION? 161

The framework of instruction and school systems in Austria-Hungary 161

Languages in school curricula 169

National struggle in Brünn, Trieste, and Lemberg 173

The gender issue: educating "the mothers of the nation" 186

Sharing schools in Czernowitz 194

Troublesome student associations 202

The struggle for the university 210

Universities as spaces of national rivalries: Lemberg 214

Universities in Transleithania 217

New universities for local minorities 220

CHAPTER FIVE

CULTURAL INSTITUTIONS: MULTICULTURALISM

AND NATIONAL DISCOURSE 229

Cultural associations as political actors 234

Hungarian associational life 236

Associations in Cisleithania 239

The song of the nation: choirs 245

The politics of singing 249

National institutes 251

Women's associations: new ways of action 254

Jewish associative life: coming out of the ghetto 256

The city as a stage: nationalizing the theater 263

Magyarizing theaters in Transleithania 269

German theaters in Cisleithania 277

Local patriotism and the sponsoring and financing of theaters 283

The press: actor and enemy of multiculturalism 287

The press in Transleithanian cities 304

The press in Cisleithanian cities 309

Jewish press 316

CHAPTER SIX

SPACES AND LANDSCAPES OF THE CITY 321

Modernizing the city 324

Associations for modernizing the city 332

Parks in the new urban landscape 334

Centers and suburbs in the modern city: garden cities 337

The appropriation of public space 341

Uses of and struggles for the public space: building a home for the nation	364
Going beyond the nation: social contest	380

CHAPTER SEVEN

POLITICS IN THE CITY	389
Inside the city hall	391
Turbulent Czernowitz	401
The experimental city: Sarajevo	408
Political parties	412
Women and political emancipation	445

CHAPTER EIGHT

SHARING THE CITY	451
The dimensions of city patriotism	452
Celebrating the city	456
The loyal city: memorializing the Habsburgs	472
Two cases of "constructed" Habsburg cities: Czernowitz and Sarajevo. A colonial project?	482

CONCLUSION	491
------------------	-----

APPENDIX	497
----------------	-----

Statistics	497
------------------	-----

Cisleithania	497
---------------------------	-----

Transleithania	499
-----------------------------	-----

Sarajevo	503
-----------------------	-----

Polyglossia in Hungarian towns	504
--------------------------------------	-----

Bibliography	507
--------------------	-----

Index	539
-------------	-----