

Contents

Introduction	1
Clarification of terms and concepts	3
Central collaborators	7
Overview of the book	9
1. Biographical context	11
Introduction	11
The Fónagy family	11
Fónagy's psychoanalysis with Anne Hurry	15
Mr S	21
2. Work at the Anna Freud Centre	26
Introduction	26
Research director at the Anna Freud Centre	26
The Anna Freud Centre retrospective study	35
Transformations	38
3. Mentalizing in development	49
Introduction	49
Origins of the mentalization concept	50
Reflective function	58
Disorganization and mentalization	69
4. Mentalization in transition	77
Introduction	77
Self-criticism	77
Four poles of mentalizing	82
Defining mentalizing	92
5. Forms of non-mentalizing	102
Introduction	102
Pretend mode	104
Hypermentalizing	106
The capacity for pretend as an asset	111
Psychic equivalence	116
Teleological mode	119
Why three forms of non-mentalizing?	123
6. Conceptualizing the 'self'	133
Introduction	133
What is a self?	136
The primary unconscious	142
Externalizing the alien self	151
Sexuality and aggression	157

7. Adaptation and mental health	166
Introduction	166
Adaptation and attachment	167
Epistemic trust	177
Diagnoses and the p-factor	196
Symptom contexts and networks	209
8. Mentalization-based therapies	216
Introduction	216
The development of mentalization-based therapy	216
Dynamic Interpersonal Therapy	219
Mentalization-Based Therapy today	222
The potential for harm	233
9. The wider social system	238
Introduction	238
The social environment	239
Prevention and public mental health	246
Collective mentalizing capacity	256
Mentalizing cultures	262
Conclusions	282
Constructive appraisal	282
Some remaining questions: mentalizing	285
Some remaining questions: non-mentalizing	287
Some remaining questions: epistemic trust	290
Core strengths of the theory	290
Index	293