

Contents

List of figures	vii
List of tables	viii
Editorial review board	ix
List of contributors	xi
1 Introduction to The Future of Environmental Law Kars J. de Graaf and Stefan E. Weishaar	1
PART I THE PROFOUND ROLE OF INTERNATIONAL LAW
2 Governing the ocean in the Anthropocene era: area-based management as a tool to promote the socialisation of the law of the sea Vonintsoa Rafaly	14
3 An insufficient tool for sustainable development: limitations of systemic integration under Article 31(3)(c) of the Vienna Convention on the Law of Treaties Kazuki Hagiwara	30
4 The role of principles of international environmental law in greening the interpretation of human rights: the case of the UN Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights Megan Donald	49
PART II LEGAL PERSPECTIVES ON SUSTAINABILITY
5 The legal dimension of sustainability José Juan González Márquez	66
6 Sustainable management: political slogan or legal norm? Trevor Daya-Winterbottom	85
7 In doubt when in favour of nature? Taking science seriously in the Anthropocene epoch Mariana Coelho and Patryck Ayala	104

8	The principle of reparation: why the polluter-pays principle does not suffice and how to rebuild the law on environmental damage Heloísa Oliveira	121
PART III ENERGY
9	Renewables under the scrutiny of international investment law: the feed-in tariff Monika Feigerlová	141
10	The proliferation of offshore renewable energy in European seas: the regulatory challenges of emerging technologies for EU environmental law Nikolaos Giannopoulos	158
11	Environmental litigation before regional economic courts in Africa and Latin America Sonja Kahl	178
12	The national green tribunal model to ensure environmental justice through collaboration Masrur Salekin	196
13	People v Arctic Oil : context, judgment and takeaways for future climate litigation Suryapratim Roy and Alexandru Gociu	215
PART IV CASE STUDIES
14	A major future challenge for environmental law: salinization Annalies Outhuijse, Tatia Brunings, and Ida Helene Groninga	236
15	Bringing nature back to agricultural land: bridging ambition and reality in agri-environmental governance Edwin Alblas	252
16	Groundwater relevance for Brazilian semiarid development in the northeast: the need for protective environmental laws Jose Irivaldo Alves Oliveira Silva	270
	Index	287