

Contents

Some Introductory Remarks on Architects, Engineers, Modes of Cooperation between Them, and the Importance of the Interwar Period for All This Roland May	7
Looking Back on Architect and Engineer Andrew Saint	25
Engineering Belgian Interwar Modernisms: Some Examples of Architect-Engineer-Contractor Relations Rika Devos	37
«Architect, do not imitate the forms of technology but learn the method of the structural engineer!» The Cooperation of Russian Avant-Garde Architects and Engineers Anke Zalivako	53
The Relationship between the Modern Movement and Civil Engineering in Weimar Germany Roland May	63
Architect and Engineer around the World, 1919–39: An Exploration in Photographs Roland May	85
Italian Modernisms: Structure and Architecture in the Interwar Period Tullia Iori, Sergio Poretti ⁺	103
Not Just the Dirty Work: Architects and Engineers in Britain between the Wars David Yeomans	115
Eduardo Torroja and Architects, 1926–36 Ana Rodríguez García, Rafael Hernando de la Cuerda	129
The <Queen of Engineering> The Engineer Max Mayer's <Science of Management> and its Impact on German Modernist Architectural Design around 1930 Gernot Weckherlin	147