

Contents

List of illustrations	x
Acknowledgements	xi
Introduction	1
Foreign policy change and the significance of the four upheavals	3
Intended contribution	5
Structure of the book	6
1 Domestic actors in Russia's foreign policy-making	9
Russian foreign policy decision-making	9
Opposition in Russia	17
Public opinion	23
2 Russia's foreign policy and role theory	31
Existing approaches to Russia's foreign policy and their limitations	31
Theoretical framework	36
3 Methods and codebook	51
Content analysis	51
Codebook	54
Process tracing	59
Conclusions	60
4 Internal development, partnership with the West and the Rose Revolution	64

	The Rose Revolution and Russia's reaction to it: state of the art	64
	The Rose Revolution and Russia's national role conceptions	66
	Changes in Russia's national role conceptions	66
	International level of analysis and partnership with the West	71
	Domestic level of analysis and internal development	75
	Individual level of analysis and changes in Russian power circles	82
	Conclusions	84
5	The Orange Revolution and the dominance of the partner of the West role	94
	The perception of the Orange Revolution and existing explanations	94
	Russia's national role conceptions during the Orange Revolution	96
	Changes in Russia's national role conceptions	97
	Discussion	102
	International level of analysis and importance of relations with the West	103
	Domestic level of analysis and threat of terrorism	106
	Individual level of analysis and foreign policy decision-making processes	113
	Conclusions	115
6	Russia's changing self-perception and intervention in Georgia	123
	Existing explanations	124
	The Russo-Georgian War and Russia's national role conceptions	125
	Changes in Russia's national role conceptions	125
	International level of analysis and changing relations with the West	130
	Domestic level of analysis: economic growth and rising sense of injustice	133
	Individual level of analysis: changes among leaders and their perceptions	142
	Conclusions	144
7	The Ukraine crisis and the defender of compatriots role	152
	Existing explanations	152

Dominant national role conceptions throughout the Ukraine crisis 153

Changes in Russia's national role conceptions 154

International level of analysis and increasing competition with the West 159

Domestic level of analysis and the 'conservative turn' 161

Individual level of analysis: informal and narrowing decision-making 170

Conclusions 172

8 Shifts in dominant national role conceptions and changes in Russia's foreign policy 181

Changes in Russia's national role conceptions 181

(In)significant differences between the upheavals and their consequences 184

International level of analysis 186

Domestic level of analysis 188

Individual level of analysis and decision-making processes 196

Benefits of the role theoretical and multi-level framework for (Russia's) FPA 200

9 Conclusions 205

The inseparability of external and internal factors 205

More than just the president: actors in foreign policy decision-making 208

Managed pluralism in foreign policy 212

Contributions to role theory: different roles, their changes, and contestation 214

Limitations and future research areas 220

Broader implications of the research 222

Index 227