

Contents

1 The Nicholson plan	10
'No 1, Löwenstrasse could hardly be a more apt address ... unless we could change it to Pandastrasse!'
2 The London Preparatory Group	26
'One of the most valuable trademarks ever devised, and it took about twenty minutes.'
ENDANGERED PARADISES	54
African photographs by Emil Schulthess
3 Launching of a new ark	72
'My preoccupation is to see that every press report which can possibly carry a reference to the WWF should do so.'
4 The Morges Secretariat and the first national appeals	88
In the first ten years, WWF supported 550 conservation projects in 59 countries.
THE DIRECTOR'S PHOTOGRAPHS	102
Studies by Fritz Vollmar
5 Growth of the WWF family	118
'WWF's activities to save endangered habitats and species will not be of great value if man continues to destroy everything around.'
6 WWF, the corporate world and European royalty	144
'There is no end to the moral judgements one is able to apply to donors of any charity.'
7 Broadening the scope	162
'We have a clear responsibility for all life on this planet both for its own sake as well as our own.'

FROM SKETCH TO LOGO	182
How a panda conquered the world
8 A family row	194
‘WWF-US maintained their “right” to decide their programme for themselves, irrespective of what the rest of the WWF family jointly decided to do.’
9 Operation Lock	208
‘We are a bit confused, Sir.’
A PORTRAIT OF THE ENVIRONMENT	232
Brent Stirton’s WWF photographs
10 Implementing a new mission	258
‘WWF’s ultimate goal is to stop, and eventually reverse, the accelerating degradation of our planet’s natural environment.’
11 WWF – the first 50 years	284
‘As a historian I find plenty to learn from it all.’
WHAT IF...?	298
Contemporary artists’ perspectives
Sources and acknowledgements	310
WWF – five decades of conservation milestones	316
Notes and bibliography	325
Index	342
Photograph credits	349
Publication details	352

Preceding page: Giant pandas (Ailuropoda melanoleuca),
Chengdu Breeding Centre, Sichuan Province, China

Overleaf: Harbour seals (Phoca vitulina), Wadden Sea,
Netherlands