

---

Contents

---

Preface to the English edition	xvii
Introduction	1
PART I
The basis of gestalt therapy	5
1 Gestalt psychology and field theory	7
The roots of the term 'gestalt'	7
A historical retrospect	8
The discovery of the phi phenomenon (motion illusion)	8
Perception of gestalts	9
The law of prägnanz	9
The principle of figure-ground	11
The 'aha' experience and problem-solving learning	11
Summary of gestalt psychology and perception	12
Field theory	12
The organism and its environment	13
The field	13
The principle of the interdependence of field forces	15
Here and now in the field	16
The importance of needs for regulation in the field	17
The Zeigarnik effect	17
Field theory summarised	18
2 Phenomenology and existentialism	20
From phenomenology	20
A historical retrospect	21
Exploring phenomena	21

From existential phenomenology	23
The body's sensation of the other	23
Meeting the other	24
From French existentialism	25
The fundamental values of gestalt therapy	25
Fundamental values in practice	26
Finality	27
Solitude	27
Responsibility	28
Imperfection	29
Some last thoughts	29
3 The founders of gestalt therapy	31
Personal and professional development	31
Influences from contemporary currents	33
Ideas from contemporary theory and philosophy	34
Interlude in South Africa	35
To the United States	36
Gestalt therapy is born	36
Gestalt therapy in development: the pros and cons	37
A new day, a new paradigm	39
Gestalt therapy training and research	40
Gestalt therapy today	43
Summary	43
PART 2
Fundamental terminology and concepts	47
4 The field in practice	49
The therapist as co-creator in the field	49
The therapist contributes to the organisation of the field	51
Here and now	52
Defining the field	53
Summary of key elements of the field in practice	54
The field in practice summarised	54
5 The theory of change	57
Spontaneous insight	59
Paradoxical change	60
Seeing things as they are	61

Fritz Perls' understanding of paradoxical change and impasse	62
To accept what is: suffering, pain, and resistance	62
Finding one's footing	63
Supporting clients in therapy	65
Summary	66
6 Creative adjustment	68
The theory of creative adjustment	69
Creative adjustment and the law of prägnanz	71
Self-regulation	74
Is all adjustment creative and 'the best we can do'?	75
Unfinished business	76
There and then, here and now	77
Creative adjustment and traumatic events	78
Creative adjustment in the therapy room	80
Summary	82
7 The theory of self in gestalt therapy	83
The theory of self	84
Aspects of self: id, ego, and personality	84
Three functions of self: impulse, personality, and I-function	85
Creating and being shaped by the situation—together	86
Self and creative adjustment	88
Conflicting needs in the situation	88
The theory of self in clinical practice	89
Choosing who I am in the therapy room	91
When the I-function is lacking	93
Working with the personality function	96
When impulse control is lacking	98
Summary	99
8 Awareness	101
To be aware	101
From awareness to consciousness: the awareness–consciousness continuum	102
History of the term 'awareness'	104
Words and concepts with different or overlapping meanings	105

Being aware and attentive in the therapy room	108
When awareness becomes conscious thought	109
Practicing awareness and attention	111
Awareness zones	112
The outer zone	112
The inner zone	113
The middle zone	113
The three zones in practice	114
From the middle zone to the outer zone and back to the middle zone	114
From the middle zone to the inner zone	115
Exploring activity in the middle zone	116
Summary	117
Examples of awareness questions related to the zones	118
9 Contact	121
Contact in gestalt therapy	121
Contact as an interpersonal phenomenon	123
Contact with oneself	123
Contact in the therapy room	125
Contact functions	127
Sensations and interpretations	127
Working with contact functions in couples' therapy	128
Working with contacts functions in therapy	129
Summary	131
10 Polarities	133
Polarities and needs in the field	133
The desire–fear model	135
Polarities and conflicting needs	137
Discovering opposite polarities	138
Developing flexible polarities	141
Discovering oneself in the other	142
Topdog–underdog	144
Topdog–underdog in therapy	145
Polarities and existential themes in therapy	146
Summary	148
11 Experiments	149
The experiment's place in therapy	149
Phases in experimentation	150

Action research	150
Grading experiments	154
Various forms of experiments	158
Classical awareness experiments	158
Role-playing	159
Chair work	159
Imagination and visualisation	163
Metaphor	164
Dream work	164
Creative aids	165
Movement and bodily expression in therapy	165
Summary	166

PART 3

Contact forms 169

Form and creative adjustment	169
Contact forms and their polarities	171

12 Confluence 173

Flowing together	173
Confluence and empathy	174
Polarities to 'flowing together'	175
To resist or flow together	176
To flow with one's own thoughts and feelings	179
Confluence in therapy	180
To flow along with in therapy	181
Feeling helpless as a therapist	183
To confront with the heart	184
Differentiation through movement	185
Summary	186

13 Introjection 188

Integrating feedback	189
Swallowing, spitting out, or processing	191
Giving and receiving expectations: a field phenomenon	192
The gestalt therapist and introjection	192
Introjection in the therapy room	193
Introjection, body movement, and anger	193
Exploring choices	196
Expectations in the coaching room	198

	Expectations and creativity	199
	Introjection and learning	200
	Summary	200
14	Projection	202
	Definition of projection	202
	From us to you and me	204
	Projection and its opposing polarity	205
	Exploring projection in therapy	206
	Projection and introjection	207
	Seeing things as they are	208
	Projection and seeing what is	209
	The projection chair	211
	Projection as a creative method	213
	'Playing the client' in supervision	213
	Visualisation	214
	Summary	215
15	Retroflection	216
	Inner conversations turned outwards	216
	Retroflection—introjection and projection	217
	Coming out and holding back	217
	The inner critic	218
	Retroflection's opposing polarity	219
	The contact between us	220
	Doing to oneself rather than to the other	220
	Working with retroflection in the therapy room	221
	Working with bodily reactions in the therapy room	224
	Withheld emotions	225
	Exploring retroflection and projection	225
	Guilt and shame	226
	When retroflection is lacking	227
	A lack of knowledge—a lack of awareness	227
	Unrealistic beliefs about oneself	228
	Summary	229
16	Self-monitoring	230
	Self-monitoring and contact with the outside world	231
	Self-monitoring, egotism, and egoism	231

- Self-monitoring and other forms of contact* 232
  - Being in one's own bubble* 233
- Self-monitoring's opposing polarity* 233
- Self-monitoring and therapy* 234
  - Talking more with oneself than with the therapist* 236
  - Self-monitoring as a contact form in supervision* 238
- Summary* 240

17 Deflection

242

- Definition of deflection* 242
- Deflection and its opposing polarity* 243
  - Deflection and focusing alone or together* 245
- Working with deflection in therapy* 246
  - Being sent to therapy* 246
  - Using 'you' instead of 'I'* 247
  - Deflection and bodily unrest* 249
  - Turning away instead of standing firm* 249
- Summary* 250

PART 4

Process models

253

- Many diverse needs to be met* 253
- Process and change* 254
- Three process models* 255
- Adapting to the environment* 255

18 The process of contact

257

- Phases in a contact process* 257
  - An example of a contact process* 258
  - Contacting phase* 259
  - Final-contact* 260
  - Post-contact* 261
  - Transitions between phases* 261
- Contact processes in the therapy room* 263
  - The contact process described as circle, spiral, or sequences* 266
  - Silence in a therapy group* 267
- Creative adjustment* 269
- Summary* 270

19 The process of experience	273
Phases in the process of experience	274
Sensation	275
Awareness	275
Mobilisation	276
Action	276
Contact	276
Withdrawal	276
Challenges in the various phases	276
From the therapy room: becoming aware of the body	277
Challenges in mobilisation	280
The action phase	281
Contact and challenges in the withdrawal phase	281
Reduction of excitement, withdrawal, and rest	283
Completion and unfinished situations	284
The experience process: a model of waves, arcs, or sequences?	284
Summary	285
20 The process of change	286
First phase: stagnation	288
Exploration here and now	291
Different needs and conditions during the stagnation phase	294
The transition to the polarisation phase	296
Theme and underlying needs	299
Second phase: polarisation	299
The transition to the diffusion phase	301
Third phase: diffusion	301
The transition to the contraction phase	304
Fourth phase: contraction	304
Fifth phase: expansion	305
Change and time	306
The therapist's role and function	307
When the process of change is too demanding	307
Summary	308
Index	310