

Contents

Preface

1	Introduction	1
2	Local charity, regional vagrancy and national assistance	13
1	Poverty, surplus and property	13
2	Disability, proximity and docility	15
3	Local charitable systems and the problem of collective action	21
4	The breakdown of local charitable systems	28
5	The emergence of a regional relief equilibrium	32
6	Regional vagrancy and local authority: an n -person game model	37
7	Regional vagrancy, workhouses and central authority	41
8	The workhouse as a dominant solution	46
3	The elementary curriculum as a national communication code	52
1	The uses of literacy	53
2	The floral figuration of communication networks	60
1	A probabilistic model of communication opportunities	66
2	The formal characterization of a floral figuration	69
3	Analysis of transformations in multilanguage figurations	69
4	Factual generalizations on the basis of the model	71
3	Language unification in Europe and America	76
4	The churches: local monopoly and state support	83

Contents

5	Lower and middle classes, primary and secondary schools	85
6	The beginnings of elementary mass education in Western Europe and the United States	88
1	Prussia	88
2	France	92
3	The Netherlands	99
4	Britain	103
5	The United States of America	110
7	Conclusion	116
4	Medical police, public works and urban health	118
1	Migration and the struggle for urban space	119
2	Cholera as the paradigm of urban interdependence	124
3	Individual coping strategies, networks and collective goods	128
4	The creation of the 'venous-arterial system'	131
5	How collective arrangements became citywide	137
5	Workers' mutualism: an interlude on self-management	143
1	Informal togetherness – fraud, strife and mismanagement	145
2	Homogeneity of membership – the accumulation of risks	146
3	Cooperation among equals – the exclusion of inferiors	147
4	The demise of the mutual funds – the rise of state insurance	148
6	Social security as the accumulation of transfer capital	152
1	Private saving and collective accumulation	154
2	The accumulation of transfer capital in a four-sided figuration	156
3	The compulsion to save	161
4	Changing relations in the four-sided figuration	167
1	The petty bourgeoisie	168
2	Employers	169
3	Workers	171
4	The regime	175
5	The adversities of working life	177
1	Disability insurance	177
2	Old-age insurance	179
3	Health insurance	181
4	Unemployment	183
5	Family wages	186

Contents

6	The beginnings of social security in Western Europe and the United States	187
1	Bismarck's beginning	187
2	The British breakthrough	192
3	France: the motor and the brake	197
4	The American big bang	204
5	The Netherlands: a long sizzle and a late bang	210
7	Conclusion	216
7	Conclusion: the collectivizing process and its consequences	218
1	Summing up: state formation and the collectivization of care	219
2	Collectivization after 1945: the hyperbole of expansion	223
3	The transformation of the middle class and the rise of the expert regimes	230
1	Professionalization and the advent of the expert regimes	232
2	The reluctant imperialism of the medical profession	238
4	The collectivizing and the civilizing process	244
1	Professionalization and protoprofessionalization	244
2	The collectivizing and the civilizing process	246
3	From charity to social consciousness	252
	Notes	258
	References	307
	Index	333