

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Foreword	ix
----------	----

Author's Preface	xiii
------------------	------

A. THEORETICAL BASES

I. Elements of Institutional Legal Positivism	3
---	---

1. The Ontology of Normative Institutionalism	3
2. The Language of Practical Realms	5
3. The Logic of Practical Thinking	8
4. Why do I Conceive of the Theory of Action as Formalist and why as Finalist ?	12
5. Comments on the Definition and the Systematics of Institutions	18
6. Some Legal-Philosophical Implications of Normative Institutionalism	24
7. Why Legal Positivism?	29

II. Towards a Formal-Teleological Theory of Action	30
--	----

1. Starting Points	30
2. Common-Sense Theory of Action	34
3. Behaviour as Transformation. Description of Actions. Meaningful Actions	35
4. Scope for Action and Freedom	37
5. Action as a Process of Selection based on Information	43
6. Identity and Difference of Actions	46
7. Teleology	48
7.1. The Relation between Teleology and Causality	49
7.2. Some Remarks on the Principle of Causality	50
7.3. Linear Causality and Causal Networks	51
7.4. Some Notes on the Ontology of Ends	52
7.5. Discovery, Optimisation and Choice of Means	55
8. On the Problem of the Dynamics of the System of Ends	62
9. Reducing the Complexity of Teleological Reflection	63
10. Remarks on the Methodology of the Analysis of Action	65

III. The Significance of Logic for Modern Legal Theory. Fundamental Problems of Institutional Normativism	70
--	----

1. Main Areas of Logical Analysis in the Field of Jurisprudence	70
1.1. Logic as the Basis of the Structure Theory of Law	70
1.2. Rational Legal Argumentation	71
2. Logic, Law, and the Problems of the Logic of Norms	72

2.1. The Semantic Basis of the Logic of Norms and Action-related (or Practical) Disciplines	73
2.2. The Existence of Normative Regulations and the Institutional Conception of Law	74
2.3. Institutional Normativism and the Logic of Norms	75
3. The Idea of a Logic of Norms. Remarks on a Few Fundamental Problems	77
3.1. The Semantics of the Normative Sentences	77
3.2. Normative Sentence and Truth Value	80
3.3. Are there Normological Inferences?	81
3.4. Logic of Norms or Deontic Logic?	82
3.5. The Meta-postulate of the Non-derivability of 'Ought' from 'Is' and of 'Is' from 'Ought'	84
3.6. Compound Normative Sentences, particularly the Hypothetical Normative Sentence	85
4. The Institutional Structure Theory of Law	86
5. The Plausibility Argumentation and Legal Hermeneutics in the Conception of Logicism	88
 B. TREATISES ON LEGAL THEORY AND LEGAL SOCIOLOGY
 IV. Ontology, Hermeneutics and the Concept of Valid Law	 93
1. The Legal Problem of Validity	93
2. 'Is' and 'Ought'	95
3. The Field of Logical Operations	99
4. Institutional Ontology of Norms	100
5. The Juridical Definition of Valid Law	101
6. Legal Validity and Hermeneutics	105
7. Decision-Making Practice and Valid Law	106
8. Law and Purpose: On the Debate between Formalism and Instrumentalism	107
 V. Constitutional Theory in the Light of the New Institutionalism	 111
1. Preliminary Remarks Concerning Terminology	111
2. The Projected Task	111
3. Fundamental Problems of Constitutional Theory	112
4. Theses of Institutional Legal Positivism which are relevant to the Constitutional Theory	112
5. Comments on the Fundamental Problems of the Constitutional Theory	116
5.1. State and Constitution	116
5.2. The Indispensability of the Constitution for the Existence of the State	117
5.3. The Effectiveness of the Constitution	117

5.4. The Institutional Unity of the System of Legal Sources	118
5.5. The Legal Stabilization of the Constitution: The Law establishing the Constitution (the Basic Law, the Constitutional Charter)	119
5.6. The Essential Content of the Constitution	119
5.7. The Institutional Conception of Constitutional Knowledge	121
6. Political Power and the Structure of the Constitution	122
7. The Problem of Legitimacy	126
8. The Constitution and the Governing Ideas of Democracy	128
 VI. The Formal-teleological Theory of Action and Criminal Law	 133
1. Some Problems Facing Criminal Law and the Theory of Action and the Goals of my Investigation	133
2. Characteristic Features of the Formal-teleological Theory of Action	134
3. The Concept of 'Institutional Legal Positivism'	137
4. Fundamental Principles of the Teleological Theory of Action in Relation to Criminal Law	138
5. 'Action' and 'Omission' in Criminal Law Doctrine	140
6. The Generic Concept of Crime in Criminal Law	143
7. The Concept of Guilt	144
8. Notes on the Metatheory of Subsumption in Criminal Law	145
 VII. Institutional Theory and Institutional Legal Positivism	 148
1. The Program of my Inquiry	148
2. A Characterisation of Institutional Legal Positivism	149
3. My Concept of Action and the Semantic Foundations of Practical Philosophy	151
4. The Concept of the Institution and its Typology	154
5. Institutional Theory in Modern Jurisprudence	163
6. Institutional Theories in Sociology	173
7. Institutional Legal Positivism contrasted with Juristic and Sociological Institutional Theories	178
8. Institutional Normativism and Sociology	183
 VIII. Sociology and the Normative Institutional Theory. Reflections on Helmut Schelsky's Institutional Theory from the Point of View of the Normative Institutional Ontology	 186
 Introduction	 186
1. Behaviour and Action	186
2. The Language of Practical Philosophy	190
3. Normative Institutional Ontology	192
4. The Role of the Law in Schelsky's Theory	196
5. Schelsky and Luhmann's System-theoretical Method	200

6. Theses for a Theoretical Sociology	205
---------------------------------------	-----

C. TREATISES ON LEGAL POLITICS AND THEORY OF JUSTICE

IX. Legal-Political Analysis of Institutions	209
--	-----

1. Legal Policy as a Scientific Problem of our Time	209
2. The Relevance of the Legal-Philosophical Approach to Legal-political Analyses	210
3. Characterization of the Science of Legal Policy	212
4. Rational Thinking and Practical Cognition	213
5. Two Types of Legal Argumentation	221
6. Rationality and the Legal-political Discussion	222
7. Types of Legal-political Argumentation	222
8. The Sources of Practical Dissent and of the Search for Consensus	226
9. Common Flaws in Legal-Political Argumentations	227
10. The Conception of Democracy and Legal Policy	229
11. A Functional Analysis of Institutions and Democratic Legal Policy	233
12. Democracy and Power	237
13. Determinants of Political Control	238
14. The Role of the Sciences and of Experts in a Democracy	240
15. Democratic Legal Policy and the Concept of Justice	242

X. The Conditio Humana and the Ideal of Justice	247
---	-----

1. The Role of the Theory of Justice	247
2. The Anthropological Approach to the Problem of Justice	248
3. Ideals of Justice as Determinants of Action	249
4. The Analytical and Dialectic Character of Reflections on Justice	251
5. Formal Postulates of Justice	252
6. Natural Law or Convictions of Justice?	255
7. Postulates of the Just Application of the Law	255
8. Balanced Role-play as a Postulate of Justice	256
9. Collective Action	257
10. Present-day Aspects of the Problems of Justice	257

Bibliography	261
--------------	-----

Original Sources	275
------------------	-----